BRITISH FIX TERMS ON FRANCE'S DEBT, CONTINGENT ON OURS

Settlement Proposed on 2% Basis, or 62 Yearly Payments of £12,500,000.

WITH PARTIAL MORATORIUM

Proviso That United States Agrees to Fund French Debt on the Same Terms.

WASHINGTON IS DUBIOUS

Belief There Is That the Paris Government Will Be Asked to Pay Same Rate as British.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The conversations here on the French war debt to Britain between the French Finance Minister, M. Caillaux, and the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Winston Churchill, suddenly took a dramatic turn today.

After a deadlock which made agreement seem impossible, the British—after a Cabinet meeting hastily summoned—unexpectedly said they would accept from France in settlement of her debt of £623,000,000 sixty-two annual instalments of £12,500,000, or about 2 per cent. interest, to be provided by France entirely from French resources without drawing at all upon French receipts from Germany through the Dawes plan.

This represents a drop of £7,500,000 a year from the demand of £20,000,000 which a few days ago was proclaimed here as the minimum Britain would accept from France. It also represents—if accepted by France—a rise of £2,500,000 above the figure of £10,000,000 which the French financial experts offered early this month, and which M. Caillaux originally proposed here to Mr. Churchill. The net result, if the deal goes through, will be that France will pay a total of £775,000,000 instead of something like £1,800,000,000.

M. Caillaux took the British offer under advisement, promising to submit it to the French Government on his return to Paris tomorrow.

Offer Conditional on Deal With Us.

The point of vital interest to America in today's dramatic climax of the debt conversations is that Britain makes her offer with the following very important string attached: She declares she will accept from France the above mentioned annual payment provided the United States at the Washington Debt Conference with the French—which M. Caillaux is practically sure to attend—agrees to fund the French debt to the United States on the same terms.

In other words, M. Caillaux has won a victory—a temporary one, anyhow—for he can return to Paris and say, "I beat down the British demands from £20,000,000 to £12,500,000." On the other hand, Britain says, in effect, to France:

"I have abated my demands most generously, but if the Americans are not equally generous, up go my demands on you again to a figure exactly proportionate to what the Americans exact from you."

Thus the situation tonight is the following:

If France can prevail upon the American Debt Commission at the forthcoming Washington negotiations to fund the French debt to America at 2 per cent., France will have won a genuine victory today in the Caillaux-Churchill conversations. If, on the other hand, the United States stands firm for 3½ per cent.—the rate of interest which she exacted from Belgium when the Belgian debt to America was recently funded—Britain will have succeeded in placing upon America the onus of treating France on a purely business basis, ignoring all sentimental considerations.

Had Britain stood firm today in demanding from France a debt settlement on a 3½ per cent. basis, America could have said: "I must follow Britain's lead," whereupon the onus—in French eyes—would have fallen upon Britain. Now, however, owing to the British action, America faces the alternative of funding France's debt to her on the same terms on which Britain "settled" the French debt to her today, or of insisting upon 3½ per cent.

French and Americans Dissatisfied.

Thus the position crystallized tonight, amid plentiful growls from the French, who fear America will indeed prove inexorable, and from Americans, who believe the British have "let down" America shamefully in thus placing upon her the onus of the final decision instead of shouldering it themselves.

The dramatic close of the Caillaux-Churchill debt conversations today followed close upon yesterday's talks by the American Ambassador, Mr. Houghton, with the French and British statesmen and a further talk this morning between Mr. Houghton and the British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Chamberlain.

At the latter the security compact and China are said to have been discussed, but little doubt is felt here that the debt question also was much to the fore. This continues to be the impression, also, of yesterday's talks in which Mr. Houghton participated, despite denials from American official circles. These denials are even more emphatic today than yesterday. Mr. Houghton left London for the country this afternoon, but this is taken to mean that his intervention in the debt question was satisfac-

French Village Mobs Autoists After Boy There Is Killed

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 26.—At the village of Scionzier, in the Department of Haute-Savoie, France, half way between Geneva and Chamonix, after a boy of 13 years had been run over and killed yesterday by a motorist, the exasperated populace, from the Mayor on down, became so incensed they stopped every car passing through after the accident and distributed fines freely.

A Geneva motorist named Lubersac, with an American friend, Charles Harves, who refused to stop, were attacked by a mob which swarmed round their car and attempted to drag out the occupants.

A free-for-all fight ensued until Lubersac managed to speed up and escape after knocking down a man. The two motorists, however, were arrested at Bonneville.

LIVESTOCK GROWERS FEAR BANKRUPTCY

DOMAIN HEARINGS BEGUN

Senators Assert Issues Involved Affect Living Problem of Every Family in Nation.

Special to The New York Times.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 26.—The subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Public Lands began today its field investigation of the nation's public domain problem, a problem involving the administration and utilization of a vast area of Federal owned forest, prairies, Indian reservations, mineral lands and national parks in the eleven so-called public land States of the far West and Southwest.

The investigation, in the opinion of the committee, is of far-reaching importance to the country, involving as it does not only the rehabilitation and perpetuation of the Western live stock industry but the living problem of every family in the land.

The hearings today were given over to the national cattle and sheep growing organizations. The executives of those organizations declared that a situation exists the gravity of which the country at large has persistently refused to recognize. It was asserted that at this moment from 25 to 50 per cent. of the cattlemen in the public land States are bankrupt and that of the remainder fully 90 per cent. are laboring under a debt load the further increasing of which would send most of them to the wall.

It was a picturesque group of cattle and sheep men who faced the committee in the ballroom of the Hotel Utah this morning. There were between 300 and 400 of them present and they represented every State in the public land group. For the most part they were men well along in years, men who have spent the best years of their lives on the range, and they came before the committee, said Frank J. Hagenbarth, the President of the Wool Growers' Association, "not to register a grouch but to plead for survival, to live and not to go down and out."

"We are pleading," declared Mr. Hagenbarth, "for the continued existence of the live stock industry in this Western country.

"In the end," Mr. Hagenbarth asserted, "it will be the consumer who must bear the cost. The live stock man can go down and out and be forgotten, but the consumer must keep on consuming."

Call Present System Autocratic.

The Presidents of the two national livestock associations, Mr. Hagenbarth for the sheep growers, F. J. Bixby for the cattlemen's organization and F. B. Marshall, Secretary of the National Wool Growers' Association, were the principal witnesses before the commit-

BRIAND NOTE URGES A SECURITY PARLEY AND BERLIN AGREES

LEAGUE ENTRY STRESSED

Paris Hopes the Reich Will Apply as Result of Its Being Made Basis of Compact.

BERLIN MAKES CONDITIONS

Insists on No War Guilt Stigma and Equal Share in Colonial Mandates.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The latest French security note to Germany, made public this evening, quite clearly puts it up to the Reich whether there is to be in the near future a conference for an elaboration of the Rhineland Treaty.

In remitting the French answer to the German Government, M. Margerie, the French Ambassador at Berlin, indicated that the French Government would lose no time in appointing the commission of jurists to draw up the treaty projects which will serve as a basis of discussion.

Though cordial in tone, Foreign Minister Briand's communication calls attention to the delays of note exchanges and says:

"The French Government is in accord with its allies and invites the German Government to begin negotiation on these bases with the desire to evolve the treaty, of which, as far as she is concerned, France sincerely desires the conclusion."

The French note, which, it will be recalled, has the approval of the British, Italian and Belgian Governments, repeats that the entry of Germany into the League of Nations is regarded as an essential part of the proposed arrangement, and repeats the decision of the League Council that no special conditions may be attached to the application of Berlin for membership. This part of the note is of immediate interest because of the opening of the League Assembly at Geneva on Sept. 7.

Hope Germany Will Apply to League.

While it is frankly expected that Germany will use her application for League membership as a card in the treaty negotiations, it is said here that the Reich would be giving evidence of good faith in making an application next month, and it is said that the allied Foreign Ministers are perfectly willing to meet Dr. Stresemann and his colleagues at Geneva or near by at any time next month to carry matters ahead if Germany wishes to join the League at the coming session of the Assembly.

After pointing out that the Allies consider German membership in the League as an essential part of the general European settlement, M. Briand contends that the Germans, so far as their interests go, would be better off inside than outside of the League.

On the mooted point of a French guarantee of arbitration treaties between Germany and France's smaller allies, notably Poland and Czechoslovakia, the French note not only disclaims any intention to elevate France to the pedestal of a judge of who is the aggressor in a possible conflict, saying it would be arranged to have this determined automatically, but also clearly indicates willingness to negotiate this point with Berlin.

In fact, M. Briand's note openly asks for a cross-table discussion of all points at issue. He says it is because of this belief that he confines his present observations to general statements of principles, waiting for the conference to work out the delicate points.

In connection with the possibility of the security conference being held during the next month's session of the League Assembly, it is interesting to note that both Premier Painlevé and M. Briand will be at Geneva as members

French Scientist Reports Evidence of "Soul"; Says Radiations Prove "Life After Death"

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Professor Charles Henry of the Sorbonne, one of the leading mathematicians of France, declared today that he had proof of the scientific, mathematical certainty that "nobody dies entirely."

"That 'something' which is called a soul continues to radiate," he said, and, referring to the belief of some that when a man is dead he is dead forever, buried, finished and not to be talked of any more, he continued.

"What a mistake is theirs! In order to recognize their error it is necessary only to carry out certain experiments accessible to anybody knowing how to manipulate the essential apparatus 'ad hoc.' The apparatus exists."

Saying religions had sought to explain the phenomenon of death and to promise the infinite prolongation of life, Professor Henry went on:

"But I have acquired a certitude, and that by purely scientific methods, that the originators of these religions were in reality the precursors of science possessed by intuition of the truth.

"Among scientists there are means for measuring the radiation of all substances—for every substance body emanates radiation. Your lamp, your stove, your cherry tree are warmed by the sun's rays.

"Calculate that radiation which is due to heat, due to electro-magnetic elements and due to the attraction of our globe. If you make the calculations conscientiously your will with anguished surprise find yourself up against something unknown, some force which is neither one nor the other of these.

"Repeat ten times ten hundred times and calculate during many long nights—always you will discover this hidden power which manifests itself but remains utterly elusive, an ideal fluid defying all the scales and microscopes in the world, but always present with obstinate constancy.

"When bodies 'die' they are of far too subtle an order to preoccupy themselves with the psycho-chemical process of death. What happens to them? As they cannot disappear, they must proceed elsewhere, to find another envelope in order to recover the balance and stability of temporary harmony.

"That little something which gives you a distinctive personality among the millions of your fellow-beings is immortal. You hand your 'soul' on to others, that's all."

Dog Drivers in Nome Epidemic To Get Medals for Heroism

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Gold medals for their heroism in transporting anti-toxin to the diphtheria-stricken town of Nome last March will be presented at Juneau in October to the ten drivers of the dog teams by Governor Parks of Alaska, it was announced at the Interior Department today.

The drivers, whose names will be inscribed on their medals, are Jackscrew, Gunnar Kaasem, Tonnie Patsey, Dan Green, Henry Pitka, Sam Joseph, William Shannon, Henry Idanoff, Leonard Seppalla and Charles Olson.

They played a leading rôle in relaying 19,000 units of anti-toxin, which at the outbreak of the epidemic was rushed from Seattle by steamship to Anchorage, thence over the Government-owned Alaska Railroad to Nenana and then placed on sleds and hauled overland by dog teams to Nome. Prompt dispatch of this anti-toxin resulted in preventing the spread of the contagion and saving many lives.

TONGS IN PEACE TALK; ONE MORE IS KILLED

Rival Leaders Agree to See Pecora Tomorrow After Police Ask for an Armistice.

BUT REFUSE TO SIGN PACT

On Leong Chief Reported on Way Here for Parley—Chinese Slain in Baltimore.

Efforts of the police of this city yesterday to bring about a countrywide peace compact between the warring Hip Sing and On Leong tongs failed. Separate conferences with some of the leaders of the two rival tongs in Police Headquarters were continued for four hours. Then it was announced that each group dubiously had consented to "try" to bring about a cessation of killings and maimings of enemy tong members until tomorrow, but there was no formal armistice and no meeting of the warring parties.

The rival tong leaders did agree to call on Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora in the Criminal Courts Building tomorrow afternoon. The prosecutor, at the request of the police, volunteered to attempt the consummation of a peace settlement between them when it had become apparent that the police efforts were not going to succeed.

A few hours before the appearance of the rival tong leaders in Police Headquarters a report reached the local police of another tong war killing in Baltimore. The Baltimore victim was the fifth Chinese to be slain since the recurrence of the tong feud with the shooting of two Hip Sing men in Boston on Monday night. Other Chinese were killed the following day in this city, Pittsburgh, Chicago and Minneapolis.

Detectives Initiate Peace Move.

The move to end the tong hostilities in this and other cities was conceived by Acting Chief Inspector Thomas H. Murphy. He called in Captain Charles Stilson, head of the First Detective District, and Acting Captain John Archipoli, head of the Bomb Squad, and told them to assign detectives to bring leaders of the two tongs in this city to Police Headquarters in an effort to arrange a peace conference between them.

Detective Jackson of the Bomb Squad, who in his years of work in Chinatown had gained the friendship of both factions, was delegated as head of the two groups of detectives assigned to carry out the Acting Chief Inspector's order. Jackson commandeered a taxicab and at 1 o'clock in the afternoon drew up to Police Headquarters with Ho Don Hing, National President of the Hip Sing Tong; George Wong Tack, President of the local Hip Sing branch; Lee Ching, local Vice President, and Ong Foon and Wong Get, Secretaries of the local Hip Sing branch.

The five tong leaders were escorted to Acting Captain Archipoli's room in the Bomb Squad offices. They were accompanied by Charles W. Gould, the legal representative of the Hip Sings in this city. The large oak door between Archipoli's room and the larger room used by the detectives of the squad was slammed shut. Soon other detectives appeared with Henry Moy, International Secretary of the On Leong Tong; Lee Sin Young, President of that tong's local branch, and Lee Doo, its Secretary. They were ushered to a large table in the big room and thereafter for four hours Captains Stilson and Archipoli made frequent attempts, first with one group and then with another, to get them to agree to a peace compact. These efforts were met with dogged refusals to discuss not alone a possible renewal of the peace agreement which was broken last Monday night by the shooting of the two Hip Sing men in Boston but even to consent to sit down with the representatives of the opposing side for a discussion of their grievances which might result in a truce.

Both Alleged Bad Faith.

The Hip Sing representatives said: "We don't want to have anything to do with those fellows. They broke the peace agreement, and they're not to be trusted." The On Leong leaders said: "Don't ask us to try to come to an understanding with those Hip Sing men. They never keep their word, and we

MINE HEADS AGREE TO NEW PEACE MOVE; LEWIS SEES A BAR

MUST DROP LIMITATIONS

HOUR FOR ACTION IS NEAR

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Thursday, Aug. 27.—John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, reached here this morning shortly after midnight, followed a few minutes later by John H. Uhl, Chairman of the Citizens' No Strike Committee, who is endeavoring to settle the dispute between the anthracite mine operators and workers. Mr. Uhl bore the latest reply of W. W. Inglis, Chairman of the Anthracite Operators' Negotiating Committee to the miners' demands.

The two at once went into conference at the Bellevue Stratford, and an hour later were still discussing the terms of a possible settlement.

Mr. Uhl explained to President Lewis that the operators were willing to renew negotiations with representatives of the miners in an effort to provide a new agreement, provided he, Mr. Uhl, was able to arrange a conference. At the same time the operators reiterated their opposition to the check-off and wage increases, but yielded to the extent of saying they were willing to discuss them.

At 3:25 o'clock this morning, Mr. Lewis issued this statement:

Mr. Uhl of the Citizens' Committee read to me the formal statement of the operators, together with supplementary interpretations. I referred Mr. Uhl to one sentence in my Hazleton address having to do with negotiations as follows:

"If they will withdraw their statement on record in the conference that they will yield nothing and reject everything that disturbs the factor of mine costs, then there can be negotiations."

I advised Mr. Uhl that if the operators met this condition affirmatively we would enter negotiations.

If they acted negatively on the proposition then it is obvious that negotiations would be futile.

Mr. Lewis added that the situation did not look very hopeful, but that the miners were quite willing to do their share toward effecting a working agreement.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa, Aug. 26.—Hopeful that the latest reply of W. W. Inglis, Chairman of the Anthracite Operators' Negotiating Committee, to the Citizens' No Strike Committee was a softening of the operators' previous position, and might open the way to a resumption of wage negotiations with the mine workers, John H. Uhl, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee, left here this evening in a fast automobile to intercept John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, on the road to Philadelphia.

Mr. Lewis addressed a Welsh picnic this afternoon at Rocky Glen near Scranton and left by automobile at 4 o'clock for Philadelphia. He passed through Hazleton at 6 o'clock with Mr. Uhl in pursuit, determined to chase him the 150 miles to Philadelphia if necessary.

The chase was the sequel of a lively afternoon for Mr. Uhl's committee, beginning at 3 o'clock, when Mr. Inglis, in reply for the operators to the committee's request to "wipe the slate clean," and resume the interrupted wage parleys, declared that the operators would not abandon their opposition to wage increases, the check-off and other demands.

Willing for Discussion.

Determined to gain whatever concession they could from the operators before the issuance of the strike order of the miners tomorrow, the Citizens Committee asked the operators to amplify their reply. After further consideration, the operators presented this statement:

You wish further interpretation of our answer to your questions presented by you today. We hoped that you would understand our reply to mean this: In order to avoid a sus-

M'COOEY DISAVOWS ATTACK BY HYLAN ON GOVERNOR'S GRADE-CROSSING PLAN; SMITH TO ANSWER THE MAYOR TONIGHT

SMITH ARRIVES FOR SPEECH

BIG PARADE IN BROOKLYN

Governor and Walker to Be Met on the Bridge by Automobile Escort.

FIREWORKS ALONG ROUTE

Supporters of Tammany Candidate Plan Big Demonstration Preceding Meeting.

Governor Alfred E. Smith arrived in the city last night ready to take an active part in the campaign to nominate State Senator James J. Walker, Tammany candidate for Mayor, and to defeat Mayor John F. Hylan, backed by the county leaders of Kings, Queens and Richmond.

The Governor, with Senator Walker, will make his first speech of the campaign in Prospect Hall, Brooklyn, tonight. It was not by accident that Brooklyn was selected for the Governor's first speech, as Tammany considers that borough the battleground of the primary campaign, and the Governor's speech is expected to bring many wavering Democrats into line for Senator Walker.

Governor Smith's attitude of opposition to Mayor Hylan was indicated in a speech he made at the meeting of the Tammany Speakers' Bureau on Aug. 13, which was made public yesterday at Tammany Hall. In this speech the Governor declared that it was time for the city to get away from the necessity of apology or explanation. He criticized the Mayor for "tirades of abuse" directed at any one who disagreed with him, declared that the government of the city could and should be bettered and declared that as Governor he had cooperated with Mayor Hylan—when the Mayor was right.

Tired of the Mayor's Attacks.

The Governor is expected to go much further in his speech tonight. From personal friends it was learned that the Governor had become tired of the Mayor's attacks upon Senator Walker, George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, and himself. It was also said that the Governor did not consider himself to be hampered by the same considerations of expediency that have made Senator Walker reluctant to engage in a personal controversy with the Mayor, and that he felt free, if he wished, to specify some of the reasons why he believed Mayor Hylan should not be renominated or re-elected, but not in abusive form.

Governor Smith will continue to campaign for Senator Walker until primary day. He will speak in Queens tomorrow night and in Richmond on Saturday night.

The speeches of Governor Smith and Senator Walker will be broadcast from WJY. The meeting will be preceded by a parade, which will start at 7:30 from the Walker Brooklyn headquarters at Fulton Street and DeKalb Avenue, and will proceed by way of Flatbush Avenue, Sixth Avenue, Ninth Street, Fourth Avenue, Fifteenth Street, Seventh Avenue, Eighteenth Street, Fifth Avenue, Twenty-third Street, Sixth Avenue and Sixteenth Street to Prospect Hall.

When Governor Smith and Senator Walker "cross the bridge" at about 8:30, they will be met by an escort of twenty automobiles. In the automobiles will be John J. Curtin, Chairman, and other members of the Kings County Regular Democratic Citizens' Committee. There will be fireworks all along the routes of the main parade and the procession of automobiles escorting Governor Smith and Senator Walker. A great reception for the Governor and the Tammany Mayoralty candidate is expected on their arrival at Prospect Hall.

Berry to Be the First Speaker.

Mr. Curtin will be the Temporary Chairman, and Nathan S. Jonas, President of the Manufacturers' Trust Company, the Permanent Chairman. According to present plans, Major Gen.

Public Interest in Campaign Is Held to Be Unprecedented

Greater interest is being shown in the present contest for the Democratic nomination for Mayor than was ever indicated in any previous primary campaign in this city, it was declared yesterday by Benjamin F. Schreiber, manager of the Walker headquarters in the Hotel Commodore.

Although Prospect Hall in Brooklyn, where Senator Walker and Governor Smith will speak tonight, holds only about 3,000, there have been more than 15,000 applications for tickets. Amplifiers have been installed to enable those who cannot get inside to hear the speakers.

"Never has the interest in a primary campaign been so great or so wide," Mr. Schreiber said. "Many voters, out of town on their vacations and eager to hear the principals in the campaign, have swamped our headquarters with requests that the speeches be broadcast."

LABOR BAN ON HYLAN URGED BY DELEGATES

200 SIGN RESOLUTION

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The convention of the State Federation of Labor was thrown into disorder this afternoon by an attempt to adopt a resolution placing the organization on record as opposed to the re-election of John F. Hylan as Mayor of New York City. After a long parliamentary wrangle the resolution was shelved until tomorrow, when the fight will be reopened.

The resolution, which was signed by 200 delegates and introduced by Albert Day of New York, Chairman of the Grievance Committee, follows:

Whereas John F. Hylan, Mayor of New York City, has opposed the payment of the prevailing rate of wages to the members of our unions employed by the city, and

Whereas John F. Hylan has insulted and ignored the representatives of labor when they endeavored to secure justice and fair treatment for their members; therefore be it Enacted, That this convention go on record against John F. Hylan and urge the voters of New York City to vote against him in the present primary contest.

John F. Mullaney of New York City jumped to his feet to oppose the resolution.

"This convention," he said, "has no interest in politics of the garden variety. There's no time to discuss such matters if we are to adjourn in reasonable time."

Edward I. Hannah of New York City, one of the members of the committee of three whom the Mayor is alleged to have insulted when they met him and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in New York in June, responded heatedly.

"Politics don't mean a thing to me," he said, "and you know it. I wouldn't take a political job if they gave it to me. Let's tell labor of the treatment it has received at the hands of the Mayor. This question is dead on the level."

Delegates Dispute Hotly.

"If there was anything to it," Mullaney replied, "it would be introduced by the Central Trades and Labor Council of New York, and you wouldn't have to have gone about the halls buttonholing people for signatures."

"Mr. Chairman," Day interrupted, "it's taken us three days to get these signatures. It is a very worthy resolution."

"Hylan has publicly insulted organized labor, calling them gunmen and telling them that he wasn't going to allow them to 'stick him up'," cried a voice from the rear of the hall.

"No delegate here is ever forced to run around the convention halls to get individual signatures," said Mullaney. "If the building trades in New York City thought they had a real complaint they would have phrased their resolution before they arrived in the city."

Hannah arose excitedly and demanded a hearing for the resolution. He suggested methods of procedure to the Chair occupied by President Holland and criticized the way business was being conducted.

"Mr. Hannah," President Holland shouted, "the Chair demands to be addressed as is fitting. Regardless of who you are, you should know better."

Mr. Hannah muttered something about not wanting to embarrass the Chair, which elicited the retort, "You couldn't."

A motion was made to refer the report back to the committee, but Mullaney said that he wanted the issue settled.

"I want to know," he said, "that when

Ten Bandits Shoot Up an Illinois Town; Cut Wires, Blow Open Vault and Get $5,000

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Early today ten masked bandits in automobiles swept into the town of Heyworth, Ill., 120 miles southwest of Chicago, on the Illinois Central Railroad. After shooting up the town in Wild West fashion they cut telephone and telegraph wires, blew open the vault of the State Bank of Heyworth and rode away with $5,000 in cash and several thousand dollars' worth of negotiable securities.

The bandits were armed with sawed-off shotguns and revolvers. The Town Marshal said they riddled the windows of business houses with bullets and terrorized the entire community before blowing the safe. The blast that blew open the vault partially wrecked the bank and broke windows in adjoining structures.

The Marshal sent word of the robbery to the outside world by driving in a car to Bloomington, where he notified Deputy Sheriff Ertheil, who in turn telephoned the Chicago police to watch for the bandits, who are believed to be heading toward this city.

Efforts on the part of Chicago authorities to get in touch with the police of Heyworth were unavailing, the telephone company reporting that all wires were out of commission. When the word was received here Detective Bureau cars were assigned to watch all incoming roads.

NEW RIFT IN HYLAN CAMP

Brooklyn Leader and Connolly Both for $300,000,000 Bond Issue.

HEARST GROUP IS ANXIOUS

COHALAN DENIES A SPLIT

Declares the Various Factions Supporting Administration Are Working in Harmony.

John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader and the Mayor's main political prop, who returned yesterday from another vacation at Maplewood, N. H., repudiated the Mayor's attack on Governor Smith's grade-crossing elimination program and declared that he had inspired the statement of George M. Curtis, Chairman of the Brooklyn Democratic Speakers' Bureau, that the Democratic organization would support Senator James J. Walker, Tammany candidate for Mayor, if the latter should win the primaries.

Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens, the second in political importance of the Mayor's supporters, also repudiated the Mayor's grade-crossing attack on the Governor, Mr. Connolly said he was for the elimination of grade crossings by any method and did not care how the elimination was financed.

Anxiety in the Hearst Faction.

It also was reported that the Hearst faction of the Hylan adherents was not at all satisfied with the way the Mayor's primary fight was progressing and was contemplating the organization of its forces to back the Mayor as an independent candidate if he should be beaten in the primaries. No definite step toward this organization has yet been taken, it was said, but a conference of the members of the recently revived Independence League probably will be held next week, at which plans for the launching of an independent ticket are expected to be discussed.

It was said that an independent ticket, if launched, would not be the same as the Hylan primary ticket, except for the head. The Hearst following in the Hylan camp was reported to be dissatisfied with the Hylan primary city ticket and with the local tickets named in Manhattan and the Bronx. The independent ticket which some of the Hearst leaders were said to have in mind consists, in addition to Mayor Hylan, of City Chamberlain Philip Berolzheimer for Controller and Representative F. H. LaGuardia for President of the Board of Aldermen.

The report of a rift between the Hearst wing of the Hylan forces and the other groups supporting him was denied by former Surrogate John P. Cohalan, the Mayor's Manhattan and Bronx campaign manager. Judge Cohalan declared that all the elements supporting the Mayor were working together harmoniously to nominate him.

Mayor Hylan, intimating that he expected some attempt at fraud by his opponents, declared that he was going to see that he "got a square deal from Tammany."

Says Audience Will Be "Hand Picked."

The Mayor declared that the Brooklyn audience to be addressed tonight by Governor Smith and Senator Walker would be a "hand-picked" audience, carefully selected and admitted by ticket, so that Senator Walker would be asked no embarrassing questions. He added that proof that Senator Walker was "the traction candidate" had been furnished by the announcement that Arthur P. Somers, President of Mr. McCooey's political club, was supporting him. The Mayor said that Mr. Somers was a B. M. T. director and naturally would support Senator Walker.

Mr. McCooey did not appear any too well pleased with what Mayor Hylan had said and done during his absence in the White Mountains when he was met at the Grand Central Terminal on his return by newspaper reporters.

"We disagree with the Mayor on the grade-crossing proposition," Mr. McCooey said. "We have already taken our stand on that and I continue to stand with our legislators. There is nothing more to say on that."

Mr. McCooey disclosed that he had inspired the statement of Mr. Curtis, Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, that the Brooklyn Democratic organization would support Senator Walker unreservedly and wholeheartedly if the latter won the primaries. Mr. Curtis made this assertion at Tuesday night's meeting of the Kings County Democratic Executive Committee, at which Mayor Hylan was present.

"I was authority for that statement," Mr. McCooey said. "This is a primary election at which the enrolled Democrats are asked to express their choice for Mayor. The Brooklyn Democracy will support the winner of the primary."

Mr. McCooey had no comment to make upon the defection of the two women Assembly district leaders, Mrs. Jennie McMahon and Mrs. Minnie J. Abel, who declared for Senator Walker. A copy of one of the Hearst newspapers with a headline, "Walker Underworld Choice —Hylan," was shown him. He made no comment, but showed his displeasure by brushing the paper aside.

Mr. Connolly said he was for the elimination of grade crossings, first, last and all the time. "I see in the newspapers that I am expected to be embarrassed when Governor Smith asks the question next Friday night as to whether I am in favor of the elimination of grade crossings in Queens," he said. "I am for the elimination of grade crossings and I am not much concerned with the method of financing, provided the elimination of grade crossings is done at the earliest possible moment.

"I fought for the elimination of grade crossings in Queens for many years before any assistance was obtained from Albany or the Legislature. Year after year bills were introduced at my suggestion requiring the elimination of grade crossings along Atlantic Avenue, but no help was received from Albany, although Senator Walker was for many years the Democratic leader in the Senate."

The Mayor's attack on the proposed $300,000,000 bond issue for the elimination of grade crossings, sponsored by Governor Smith, seems likely to lose him considerable support in Brooklyn and Queens, where there are many dangerous crossings at grade, the elimination of which has been sought for years. It was said that four Brooklyn Democratic Senators, William L. Love, James A. Hastings, James A. Higgins and Philip M. Kleinfeld, would show their displeasure at the Mayor's attack on the Governor by sitting on the stage of the Smith-Walker meeting tonight. Senator Love alone so far has announced that he would support Senator Walker, but each of the other three Senators has declared for the Governor's grade crossing program.

Mayor Attacks Somers.

Mayor Hylan's assertion that the audience at the Smith-Walker meeting this evening would be a "hand-picked" audience was made in an interview at City Hall.

"Every one knows that Arthur Somers is a big B. M. T. director and has always been against me," the Mayor said in reference to Mr. Somers's declaration for Senator Walker. "He stands for an increased carfare. The fact that Somers has come out for Walker is proof that the B. M. T. is running Walker's campaign. It proves the connection which I knew existed and which Walker attempts to deny.

"The traction interests are now putting the screws on all who are tied up to them, and it is pitiful to see them getting into line, toeing the mark and licking the boots of their traction masters.

"I have just received information that thousands of the tickets issued for Prospect Hall Thursday night, when Governor Smith is expected to make his defense of the inner circle-Fourteenth Street-traction candidate, Walker, are being carefully distributed, chiefly among traction sympathizers, so that this meeting will be a packed meeting.

"Why issue tickets for a Democratic political meeting anyway? Why select the audience? Are they afraid of some anti-Walker people getting in and asking a few personal and perhaps some very embarrassing questions?

"The inner circle at Fourteenth Street, composed of the poolroom king and others, has their hand-picked candidate, Walker, and now they are hand-picking an audience. Has it come to such a pass in this town that, unless you have a ticket, you have to jimmy your way into a hall to hear Jimmie?"

Encounters Tammany Leader.

The Mayor's notice that he must receive a "square deal" from Tammany was served on Thomas A. Williams, Tammany leader of the Ninth Assembly District and chief examiner of the Board of Aldermen. Mr. Williams as he was leaving his office in City Hall encountered the Mayor in the corridor.

"Am I going to get a square deal in your district?" the Mayor asked Mr. Williams, interrupting the latter in a conversation with friends.

"Yes, Mr. Mayor," replied Mr. Williams. "We give every one a square deal in our district."

"I have always given Tammany a square deal and had the aid and cooperation of Mr. Murphy," said the Mayor softly.

Then in firmer tones the Mayor added: "I am going to see that I get a square deal."

The Mayor, who was accompanied by his brother-in-law, Detective Sergeant Irving O'Hara, then entered his automobile and drove away to attend a meeting in Queens.

Announcement that United States Senator Royal S. Copeland would begin an active speaking campaign for Mayor Hylan next Monday was made by Judge Cohalan after luncheon with Senator Copeland, at which campaign plans were discussed. The Mayor and Senator Copeland will speak Monday night at Morris High School in the Bronx and from then on will speak practically every night until the primary election on Sept. 15.

"I am not in this campaign as a United States Senator," Senator Copeland said, "but as a friend of Mayor Hylan. The Mayor has had a successful administration and should be continued in office. It is my intention to appear at different mass meetings to speak in the Mayor's behalf whenever and wherever my services are called upon, and I shall make plenty of positive and constructive statements which, it is my belief, should convince the people of New York City that it is to their best interests to reelect Mayor Hylan. This primary fight will take up my time continuously until Sept. 15."

Avoids Comment on Smith.

"What about Smith?" Senator Copeland was asked.

"Is Governor Smith running for Mayor?" he replied. "I have no quarrel with Governor Smith. As far as I know personally he might be for Mayor Hylan. I have heard nothing direct from him on the subject. I intend to talk on the Mayoralty and can see no reason for referring to Governor Smith at all."

Senator Copeland explained that the recent death of his mother in Michigan had prevented him from making an earlier start in his campaign for Mayor Hylan.

Victor Torina, a notary public, of 1,855 Lexington Avenue announced his support of the Mayor in a letter to him. Mr. Torina declared he was for Mayor Hylan on the transit issue and declared it was no time for the people to "swap horses in the middle of the stream."

DETECTIVES RECALLED FROM SARATOGA TRACK

Hylan's Attack on Up-State City Believed to Have Resulted in the Order.

Much comment in police circles yesterday followed the return from Saratoga of eight local detectives who were to have remained there until the end of the month to aid the Saratoga police in keeping watch on pickpockets and thieves at the race track. It has been customary for a group of detectives to spend their twenty-two-day vacations up-State, receiving special pay from the City of Saratoga and combining work with pleasure during that period.

In some quarters it was intimated that the recent attack of Mayor Hylan at Saratoga as a "wide-open town" and the reply of Arthur J. Leonard, Commissioner of Public Safety of Saratoga, that it did not befit the Mayor to criticize the city which had spent much effort in his behalf when he was convalescing from an illness there, had brought about differences that were responsible for the recall of the detectives. The official reason given for their return was that their vacations were over.

HYLAN HITS OLVANY, SPEAKING IN QUEENS

CONNOLLY PRAISES MAYOR

Mayor Hylan, William H. Edwards, candidate for Controller on the Hylan ticket, and William A. Cokeley, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, opened their campaign in Queens yesterday with speeches to 1,000 members of the Ridgewood Democratic Club at Beekman's Pavilion in Whitestone, and to the members of the executive committee and the election district captains of the regular Democratic organization of the county at the Eahle Palace, Jamaica.

Sheriff Mason O. Smedley, Chairman of the Queens County Democratic Committee, presided at the latter meeting, which was well attended by the workers of the Connolly organization. Mayor Hylan, who spoke extemporaneously, was received with great applause.

The Mayor declared that he had tried to be fair in the conduct of his office and to run the City Government in the interest of the people. He said he had rejected the advice of the Citizens Union soon after he took office, and that the Citizens Union had tried to make trouble for him. Speaking of the division in the Democratic Party, the Mayor said he had been a man of peace all his life.

"When trouble starts, however, I am always there at the end of the fight," he added. "I will be there at the end of this fight."

In discussing the designation of Senator Walker as the Taminany candidate for Mayor, Mayor Hylan said that there were three men who attended the meeting at Tammany Hall at which Senator Walker was named as a candidate.

"There was a pool room king of past days, who wanted a wide-open town," the Mayor said. "There was a lawyer of the B. M. T., who wanted a ten-cent fare, and there was a representative of the gamblers whose place was closed by the Hylan Administration.

"These three men demanded that Hylan be defeated, and that unsophisticated, weak individual, George Olvany, acceded to their request."

Mayor Hylan said that Olvany could not answer the fourteen questions that had been put to him as to why Hylan should be defeated. The Mayor said that the rank and file of the people of New York City were in sympathy with him because they knew what he had done and that he would not stand for exploiters. He said:

"Those that are opposed to me are in league with men who want a 10-cent fare, the cost of $100,000,000 to the public. If you want a wide open town, with gambling rampant in the city, then support some one else. I have but one ideal, and that is to run the city honestly for the benefit of all concerned. I want to leave public office as honorable as I entered it in 1918.

"I could better, the subway and transit lines in thirty-eight hours if I had the power. Three members of the Transit Commission, McAneny, Harkness and O'Ryan, would not last until morning if I had power to remove them. They are in league against the people and have taken over Olvany and Flynn and are working for one purpose because they cannot put over their billion dollar traction steal with Hylan and Connolly in office."

Borough President Maurice E. Connolly, a candidate for renomination, praised Mayor Hylan and declared that the Democrats of both Manhattan and the Bronx had shown ingratitude in opposing the Mayor's renomination.

"There is no cause to be alarmed in Queens, Mr. Mayor," he said, turning to Mayor Hylan. "We talk organization, we vote organization and we remain organization Democrats."

HITS AT CALDWELL'S RECORD.

Smedley Says Ex-Representative Did Nothing for Queens.

Sheriff Mason O. Smedley, Democratic County Chairman of Queens, said yesterday that former Representative Charles Pope Caldwell, candidate against Borough President Maurice E. Connolly for the Democratic nomination for Borough President, had failed completely to get anything in the way of an appropriation during his service in Congress. Mr. Smedley asserted that Mr. Caldwell had not obtained a single appropriation for the improvement of harbors in Queens, although the borough was surrounded by more navigable water than any other borough of the city, and had failed to obtain an appropriation for a general postoffice.

"His record of achievement in this particular case is without parallel," Mr. Smedley said. "It is not possible to point to any single thing that Mr. Caldwell did while in Congress for the benefit of his constituents."

DEMOCRATS CALLED UNFIT BY THOMAS

Socialist Candidate for Mayor Blames Both Hylan and Tammany for Misgovernment.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, charged Mayor Hylan and Tammany Hall with joint responsibility for the misgovernment of New York City during the last seven and a half years in a speech last night at the Harlem Socialist Centre, 62 East 106th Street.

"Everything that Hylan says about Walker or Walker says about Hylan they have known about each other these many years," Mr. Thomas said. "If, as Mayor Hylan now charges, Senator Walker is the friend of the underworld and of the traction interests, so was he when Hylan supported him as part of the Tammany organization. If Governor Smith has appointed commissioners too friendly to fare increases, that fact also was known to the Mayor during the years that he now assures us he supported the Governor. If, on the other hand, Mayor Hylan has been incompetent, surely it didn't take Tammany Hall these many years to find that out. The one thing that the present cat and dog fight in the Democratic Party shows is its unfitness for the business of governing New York.

"That unfitness is further proved by the kind of campaign the Mayor and his rival are making. They assume that the voters are such boobs that all they want is promises. They promise something to everybody. They will reduce taxes, yet extend the municipal service. They will both keep the 5-cent fare—Mr. Walker says he will give a seat instead of a strap for a nickel—but they give no suggestion how they will do it. Mr. Waterman, the hand-picked Republican candidate, makes the same sort of glib promises.

"None of them explains what good it will do to build new subways if we have no better provision than at present for zoning manufacturing plants and building houses. None of them is aware that even more than a seat in the subway the New York worker wants room to live in. They are silent on the housing problem. Silent on markets, save for a few empty generalities. Silent on effective reform of the educational system. Silent on any plans for achieving municipal ownership of gas and electricity as steps in a public super-power system. On all these points and many others we have a definite platform.

"The best commentary I have seen on the old parties, Mr. Waterman unconsciously made when he denounced municipal operation of the transit system on the ground that our lives would not be safe in a system where the employes were political appointees. In assuming that public operation necessarily means that kind of a system, Mr. Waterman gave us the measure of the old party machine."

WALKER SPEAKS IN BRONX.

Visits Four Democratic Clubs Despite Sore Throat.

State Senator James J. Walker, Tammany designee for Mayor, made a speaking tour of the Bronx last night, but was handicapped by a sore throat, which forced him to make his talks brief. He spoke at four Democratic clubs, the Monroe Democratic Club in Lafayette Hall, Alexander Avenue and 137th Street; the Pondiac Democratic Club, 801 Westchester Avenue; the Star Democratic Club, 1,216 Southern Boulevard, and the Arthur Murphy Association, 862 East Tremont Avenue.

A large crowd was on hand at the Monroe Club, and Senator Walker was greeted enthusiastically. He told of his sore throat and said he was speaking against the advice of his physicians.

He confined his remarks chiefly to a reiteration of the principles he has already set forth. Regarding the five-cent fare, he declared that since every candidate was committed to maintaining the dollar fraction steal with Hylan and Connolly in office.

Obviously referring to Mayor Hylan's attack on himself, Governor Smith and Tammany, he said: "Somebody seems to be getting all excited and mad about this campaign. I'm not mad. I do not see any reason to get mad. And I want to say that no amount of slander and vituperation can offset the record which I have made. I stand on that record."

Other speakers at this meeting were District Attorney John E. McGeehan and County Clerk Robert L. Moran of the Bronx. The latter was formerly President of the Board of Aldermen and during his speech he said:

"I worked with Mayor Hylan at City Hall, and while I will not say he is financially dishonest, I found him dishonest in his statements, and in his methods incompetent, and as a rubber stamp for William Randolph Hearst."

District Attorney McGeehan declared that the letter written by the Mayor to Senator Copeland, containing that attack on Governor Smith, Walker and Tammany, read "like the utterances of a brain-soaked invention and dictated by a tongue dripping mud."

He declared that the Mayor, beaten hopelessly, sought to befoul the name of Governor Smith, and he then launched a bitter diatribe against Mr. Hearst.

"Mayor Hylan," he said, "you have been calling a spade a spade, but you have not used the spade to dig subways. Bronx County Democracy is not interested in your adjectives. It would be more interested if you spoke of achievements. The Bronx stands with Smith, Walker, Berry, McKee, Olvany and Flynn, and no slanderous tongues can destroy their efforts."

Charles W. Berry, candidate for Controller, will be the first speaker. He will be followed by Justice Joseph V. McKee, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen. Governor Smith, the last speaker, will deliver the "keynote" speech of the primary campaign.

Further accessions to Senator Walker and the rest of the Tammany city ticket in Brooklyn and Queens were announced during the day. Prominent Brooklyn Democrats declaring for Senator Walker included Harrington Putnam, Edward M. Bassett, former Public Service Commissioner, and Melville J. France, who expressed approval of the endorsement of Senator Walker by the Brooklyn Democratic Club.

"Senator Walker is explicit on the question of the 5-cent fare," said Mr. Putnam. "Last May, however, in the Board of Estimate Mayor Hylan disappointed his friends. A resolution for 5-cent fares was offered in the Municipal Assembly, intended to close this question. On motion of the Mayor its discussion was cut off by its being laid over for five months, which would take it after the November election."

"I am heartily in favor of the nomination of Senator Walker," Mr. Bassett wrote, "and hope the Brooklyn Democratic Club will approve his nomination and endorse the leadership of Governor Smith."

"I am unreservedly and unqualifiedly for Senator Walker," General Berry and Judge McKee," said Mr. France. "How any intelligent Democrat, except one who had his bread and butter by grace and sufferance of the Mayor, can be otherwise is beyond me. The demagogic influence of Hearst has been a curse upon everything political that he has ever touched. Thank Heaven, that influence was destroyed in this State through the courage and ability of Governor Smith. We now have the welcome opportunity to give it the coupe de grace here in the City of New York—its last stand. The effort—and what will undoubtedly be the successful effort—to end the local orgy has my full support."

S. W. Gumperts, President of the Coney Island Board of Trade for the last twelve years, said:

"You can say for me that I am with John H. McCooey and his county ticket and I will work as strong for him at this election as I have in the past, but when it comes to the Mayoralty situation let me say emphatically that I think eight years enough for any one man. Another thing, I have the fullest confidence in the State Democratic leader, Governor Alfred E. Smith, and any man who is good enough for the Governor is good enough for me; therefore I will work hard for Senator James J. Walker, whom I consider an able young man and capable of filling the position of Mayor. Senator Walker's past record in Albany is a guarantee of his political future."

Others who endorsed Senator Walker were George B. Gallagher of 903 St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, a personal friend of Mr. McCooey and a member of the latter's Madison Club, and Mrs. Mary Green, Captain of Sixth Election District of the Third Queens Assembly District. In explaining her support of Senator Walker, Mrs. Green said:

"The unwarranted and wholly unjustified attack on the greatest Governor the State has ever had settled the case of the present incumbent of the Mayor's chair, so far as I am concerned."

Frank X. Sullivan, the Walker Queens campaign manager, announced the formation of an executive committee, which would advise him during the campaign. The committee includes as members former State Senator Frank P. Adel, President of the Queens Chamber of Commerce; Eugene E. Nevin, Past Exalted Ruler of Queensborough Lodge of Elks; Harry I. Ruber, former Assemblyman; William J. Sullivan, Joseph C. Devereaux and Harry Gordon Lynn.

The Hungarian Democratic Club of 245 East Seventy-ninth Street, Manhattan, also has endorsed Senator Walker.

Representative Charles Pope Caldwell, candidate for Borough President of Queens County gave out a statement yesterday in which he said he was asking all his friends to vote the Walker-Berry-McKee ticket in the primary.

"Without their election," the statement said, "I would see in a hopeless minority on the Board of Estimate. Friendship and common interest require that we stand together.

"If my friends will join with Governor Smith's forces we can not only elect the Walker-Berry-McKee ticket but we will register a rebuke to the one man control that has undertaken to deliver us to the enemies of Governor Smith. Without Mr. Connolly's support Hylan would not have made a campaign against the regular nominees."

SMITH TELLS WHY HE OPPOSES HYLAN

CITES PROBLEMS OF CITY

Text of Speech in Wigwam, Aug. 13, Advising Aggressive, Clean Campaign Just Made Public.

Governor Smith's estimate of Mayor Hylan and his Administration and some of his reasons why he believed Senator Walker, and not the Mayor, should receive the Democratic nomination were contained in his speech to the Tammany Speakers' Bureau at a closed meeting on Aug. 13 at Tammany Hall. The Governor's speech was made public yesterday for the first time. It follows:

I have myself personally looked forward with a great deal of satisfaction, year after year, to the usual meeting of the Speakers' Bureau prior to the campaign, in order that we might have an understanding of what we were in turn to say to either the people of the city or of the State as to why in our opinion we should be entrusted with the reins of government.

We have a rather unique situation in that we are about to enter into the first primary battle under the new Primary law. The whole State of New York, politically speaking, was racked from one end to the other from 1907 until 1913 on this question of direct primaries. The Democratic Party could not be expected, in view of its history, to take any other position except the one that it took, and that position was that nominations in the last analysis should be made by the enrolled members of a political party. Now it is hard to speak against that. Nobody ever made any successful argument against the principle involved in direct primaries. Because if the party does not belong to all the people that are enrolled in it, to whom does it belong? If they are not able to make their nominations, who can make them for them? Nobody ever answered these questions, and therefore, because of the righteousness of the principle involved, the final theory and principle of direct primaries was carried to successful fruition in 1913. It was a Democratic Senate and Democratic Assembly and a Democratic Governor that put on the statute books of this State the present Direct Primary law.

I participated to a very broad extent in all the debates that led up to the passage of that act. I was one of the people who urged that it was healthy for a political party to talk among themselves and find out what was best and see that the rank and file of the party had something to say about its nominations. Therefore, I approach the question of the issues involved in this primary fight without personal feeling of any kind, because I assure you I have none against anybody. I certainly have none against the Mayor, because I believe I helped him in my humble way to be Mayor. I worked as hard for him as any man in the organization. I worked for him when I thought I had retired from politics—that is, from public office holding; not from politics; I will never do that.

I made the nominating speech for him from the City Hall steps in 1921 and I spoke for him in every borough in this city. And as I said to the Executive Committee of New York and Bronx County in Tammany Hall today, if I do say it myself, I at least made as intelligent speeches for his re-election as he made for himself.

In the course of the campaign, no matter what issue may arise, you can carry home safely with you the suggestion from me that, as Governor, I cooperated with him to the very last degree—when he was right.

Now, I dislike by my very nature campaigns of defense, because the Democratic Party in this State and the Democratic Party in this city is not on the defensive. We certainly have nothing to defend in our conduct of the Government. When we meet the common enemy, the defensive campaign must come from them, whether in or out of power, it does not make any difference.

I campaigned this State from Montauk Point to Niagara Falls four times, and I never was on the defensive. I never had to be, because the attitude of the Democratic Party to the great public questions that affect the rank and file of our people does not need any defense. It is up to the other fellow.

So, therefore, primary or general election, I cannot escape the impulse to advise the speakers of the bureau that the campaign must be put upon an aggressive, progressive, upstanding, forward-looking plane. It must be one of progress, and not of complaint or of fault-finding. When the other fellow starts something, we will meet it, but until he does, let us confine ourselves to what benefits the 6,000,000 people that live in New York, the greatest city in the known world.

This building was opened to the public in 1867. That was six years before I was born. During all of its history it has been devoted to the thought of promulgating Democratic doctrines. Is there anybody in New York or elsewhere foolish enough to say that, if it was dedicated for all these years to only the selfish purposes of the men who came into it, it could exist? Nobody believes that. The advanced and progressive thought of today would deny it in 1925 if it was never denied before. And if it is to live, if it is to progress, if it is to command the respect and attention of the people of this city, it can only do it by what it is able to accomplish, not for those that come into it but for the six million people, no matter what their faith politically or otherwise may be, that live in, contribute to and make up the great City of New York.

Government by its very nature has a certain personal relationship to everybody, and everybody, therefore, is interested in the success of the Mayor's chair, so far as I am concerned."

Frank X. Sullivan, the Walker Queens campaign manager, announced the formation of an executive committee, which would advise him during the campaign. The committee includes as members former State Senator Frank P. Adel, President of the Queens Chamber of Commerce; Eugene E. Nevin, Past Exalted Ruler of Queensborough Lodge of Elks; Harry I. Ruber, former Assemblyman; William J. Sullivan, Joseph C. Devereaux and Harry Gordon Lynn.

The Hungarian Democratic Club of 245 East Seventy-ninth Street, Manhattan, also has endorsed Senator Walker.

Representative Charles Pope Caldwell, candidate for Borough President of Queens County gave out a statement yesterday in which he said he was asking all his friends to vote the Walker-Berry-McKee ticket in the primary.

"Without their election," the statement said, "I would see in a hopeless minority on the Board of Estimate. Friendship and common interest require that we stand together.

"If my friends will join with Governor Smith's forces we can not only elect the Walker-Berry-McKee ticket but we will register a rebuke to the one man control that has undertaken to deliver us to the enemies of Governor Smith. Without Mr. Connolly's support Hylan would not have made a campaign against the regular nominees."

any nothing of what passes through it as a port of entry, presents an enormous problem that is pressing the city for solution, and is related directly to the present high cost of living.

We have also the question of railroad track removal. New York has grown from the series of small villages that made it up only thirty-five years ago, to one great big municipality. What were formerly villages organized under the general village law of the State have been merged into one great big city. It is not so many years ago when Brooklyn ended at Thirty-sixth Street. It is not so many years ago when Prospect Park was the end of the City of Brooklyn, and beyond it were the villages of Flatbush and the village of Flatlands and the village of Gravesend and the township of New Utrecht, all merged into one great city. And the question of railroad track removal from surface operation not only has to do with life, not only has to do with the preservation of human life and of property, but it has to do with the growth of the community itself, because the statistics of the State show that the slowest growth in every community is close to railroad tracks where trains are operated at grade.

It does not seem so many years ago since we left New York on a bicycle and went down to Far Rockaway, and beyond Jamaica we saw nothing until we reached the bathing beach at Far Rockaway. At that time the Rockaways were entirely devoted to Summer resort purposes. Nobody looked upon it as a place of all-the-year residence. Today we find the situation entirely changed, and we find that these outlying communities that in their time were small, struggling villages on the outside of the great metropolis, now belong inside the City of New York. And the question of track removal from grade is pressing us for solution.

We have it even on Manhattan Island, and it seems a kind of senseless, foolish operation for me to sit up in Albany signing bills for the removal of the operation of these railroads at grade until we can have some sympathetic and intelligent cooperation from the city itself.

The question of transit will always press the people of New York for solution, over and above practically every other great issue, because on this island particularly we are the victims of a very peculiar geography. Everybody is riding down in the morning, and everybody is riding back at night. There is no way of changing it until we either fill in the North River or the East River, and that is a kind of a dream that some men indulge in when they have got blueprint paper and pencils to spare.

We are forced to the position of dealing with the geography of the territory as we find it.

The question of proper housing is one that is pressing this community for solution as it presses no other known civilized community. No place in the world today has real estate of the value it has in New York. In no place in the known world today is there the congestion of population in given spaces. You can look off the top floor of the Waldorf and you can see cabbage grown inside the City of New York, and the room that you look out from costs $6,000 a year to live in.

No other community has ever experienced anything just like that.

What is the solution of these problems? Are we going to be content to let the city run along and just meet its every-day wants and conduct the departments as the law requires us to conduct them, or are we going to bring to the study of these problems some man that by experience and by record, by early training and by achievement, promises some form of solution rather than talk about it?

We have had in this town a surfeit of language. We are overwhelmed with it. It washes everybody back like a tidal wave, but we have no action; after it is all finished, the beach is clean, nothing has been accomplished.

Designated by the Democracy of the County of New York and the County of the Bronx is a man that to my way of thinking is particularly and peculiarly qualified to give that action.

The problems of the State, after all, parallel the problems of the city. The State is engaged in road-building; so is the city.

The State is engaged in promoting transportation; so is the city.

The State is engaged in the care of the sick, the care of the poor and the care of the afflicted, and the proper housing of the wayward; so is the city.

Track removal is a State problem as much as it is a city one.

Health and sanitation and the promotion of good living conditions for the people is a State problem just as well as a city one.

And who can devote his attention to the solution of these problems any better than the man that has so successfully made what there is of public record along this line of endeavor in Albany during the last sixteen years?

While we are speaking about the qualifications of men to be successful in public office, let us not lose sight of one cardinal principle that it is impossible to overlook, and that is the personal equation. Government, after all is a human thing. Never lose sight of that.

The President of a great corporation pushes a button and some fellow opens a glass door and the President says: "Go out and build a twenty-five mile spur on the road leading down to El Paso." And the fellow walks out and then the railroad President mops his brow and says, "There, thanks be to God, that is one job I have got done." But nobody in Government can do that. You cannot push any buttons and pass any word along to a subordinate. You have got to do it yourself. The Lord knows I have tried to pass some problems out, and after they were well thumbed up they came back to me and I found them on my desk, and so will any other executive at the head of Government, whether it is nation, State or city. There is no escape from it. So, what is the great essential that is required in view of that situation? The great essential for successful public office is the ability of the Executive to get along with men, not with problems entirely, but with men, and with women, men and women that he is bound to meet if the problem is ever going to be solved.

Well, I could not find in all this State, if I put all the thought and ingenuity that I am able to bring to my command into the solution of it—I could not think of a man that more aptly fits into that picture than your candidate for Mayor.

With twenty-six Senators, the constitutional number required to pass a bill in the Senate, he put over, part of it came to me and part of it went down to destruction at the Republican Assembly, the most progressive legislative program that this State has known in fifty years.

Not only that, but going back to the history of 1920 and again to the history of 1924 and 1925, when he was the leader, not of the majority but of the minority, because of his ability to deal with men and to talk with men and to bring them around to his way of thinking by the logic and soundness and persuasiveness of his arguments, he did it even as against a hostile majority. By comparison with that, we have but to think of the tirade of abuse that runs to nearly everybody that disagrees in the slightest degree with the present Mayor, a man who, by his very nature, mistakes and always has mistaken and will always mistake honest criticism for hostility. Now, nobody can get away with that.

In the last twenty years we have witnessed an era of material progress in world events that no generation will see again. I am trying to conjure up something in my mind that is going to be mysterious to my children or my grandchildren. In our twenty years we have seen the complete development of the telephone, we have seen the complete development of the talking machine, we have seen the complete development of the automobile, we have witnessed the wonders of submarine navigation. Crowning it all, as one of the great mysteries of our time, comes the radio, where a single man puts his voice into the ears of millions of people at once. We have conquered the air and we have conquered the sea. Medicine and surgery have made the greatest advance in the last twenty years in all of their history. Must government stand still? Must there never be any progress in government? Are we to take everything as we find it and be satisfied with it? Not at all. No political organization can survive that proceeds upon the theory that they are just going to carry on and that nothing new is going to happen or nothing of betterment is going to grow in the government. The organization, Democratic, Republican or whatever you may call it, is bound to fall by the wayside, just the same as the old-fashioned doctor or the old-fashioned dentist or the old driver of the horse and wagon is going to fall by the wayside because he is unable to understand and appreciate the advances that have been made in the line of business in which he is engaged.

The government of the City of New York can be bettered. It can do more for the six million people that are paying so liberally and so richly for it. It can be made more responsive, it can be made more economical. It need not cost so much for the service that it is giving, providing the right power and the right brains are applied to the study and the working out of it. No man that I can think of approaches the solution of the problems that will bring this about with anything like the understanding of government and its needs and necessities as does your candidate for Mayor.

There is another thing that the organization cannot stand, and that the Democratic Party cannot stand, and that is interference with its operation from the outside. It must live and it must progress upon the record, and it need never expect any permanent success if any part of its policy, even that size (indicating tip of finger) can be dictated to by anybody who at will can find fault with it when his own personal interests are not subserved by its operation.

I made a statement in Albany, and I stand by it; I put it out to the public press throughout the State and let it sift all through this country, that when the Democratic Party needs advice, it gets that advice from Democrats and not from crack-pots.

When I went to Albany in 1904, that city was in control of the Republican Party. From 1904 until 1921 Democrats did not have a chance in the City of Albany. In 1921 Mayor Hackett was elected. He was re-elected in 1923, and he will be re-elected this year. The Republican organization of the City of Albany is so disrupted and so disorganized that it was impossible for it to find anybody to run against him, so it drafted the Chairman of the County Committee and told him he had to do it as a matter of duty, so that on that ballot there would not be a vacant space under the Republican emblem. Why? Why? There must be a reason for that. I would not be true to myself if I did not try to find out why that happened. That is not something that springs up out of the earth, it is not something that comes out of a clear sky and finds its way into everybody's mind by some automatic process. There must be a reason for it. The reason is that the Democratic Mayor and the Democratic Administration gave to the people of the City of Albany a constructive administration. They did things, they solved some of Albany's problems, and they solved them in a sane, clear-headed, sensible way, so that there could be no real argument made against them on the public platform. And for that reason the very citadel of Republicanism, that monarchy that existed for so many years, or that principality within a republic has finally run to decay because the Democratic organization of the City of Albany has been a constructive force. It has been a powerful force for betterment of the conditions of the citizens of the City of Albany. There is the key to it, and there is the answer to it.

Every big thing that has ever happened in this city has happened under the auspices of the Democratic Party. When we have had Republican Mayors, they bridged their term over waiting patiently to find out whether their policy of making no progress was going to be approved or otherwise. They felt that they were there for a transitory period, that they had no long lease of power, and for that reason their achievements, as far as the City of New York is concerned, amount to practically nothing.

We have here, too, another question that I do not mind discussing in a perfectly friendly way with you, and that is whether or not any man ought to be a Mayor of New York for twelve years.

Now, entirely impersonally, and aside from any feeling about it, without reference to any living individual, should anybody be the Mayor for twelve years?

Theodore Roosevelt fixed a conception of political ethics for the country when he said that he would not take a third term of the Presidency. And remember that he considered the unexpired term of President McKinley as being his first term, and he stopped at that. During the campaign probably you will hear somebody say, "Well, what about Smith himself?" The answer to it is this: I have not yet been six years the Governor of New York. I have not yet been five years the Governor of New York. The Gubernatorial term is only two years. And I violate no confidences, because I look around the room here and I see so many people looking at me that are familiar with the facts and circumstances; the real truth is that I did not want to be the Governor for three terms, and I did everything that I could to let that honor go to somebody else. Because you cannot expect young men to take an interest in government, you cannot expect them to devote their talents and their energy to it if when starting at the bottom rung of the ladder they are confronted with this long line of succession at the top to be determined by the incumbent himself.

Somebody wanted to know why I was interested in this—if it was because I was the Governor. Well, there is a complete and perfect answer to that—that I am not speaking as the Governor. I left Albany. Gubernatorial business is conducted on Capitol Hill. I am down here as a resident of the City of New York, born here and interested in it. And interested in the solution of the problems that are pressing it, interested in its betterment, interested in the upbuilding of its government and the betterment of its people.

And can you think of any man in your lifetime, in either public or private life, that has a greater reason to be interested in this city than I have? Can you think of anybody? Do you know of any man who has been so signally honored by the people of this city as I have been? Why, I could be up in the Adirondack Mountains tonight, surrounded by the soldiers and the State automobiles and having a great good time. I could have done it all through July and all through the early part of this month. But I am interested in the City of New York, and I am interested in her people. I have had no vacation, and I am certain that I am not going to have any, and I am not looking for it. I am going to stay here until this issue is fought out to a finality.

And all that I want the Speakers' Bureau to believe, as they start out upon their campaign, is that, like myself, it means nothing to us personally, but it means an awful lot to the City of New York, and, after all, that is what we are interested in. We want to give her her place among the cities of the State. We want to be able to be proud of our Government. We want to get away from the hour of apology and of explanation why we are so far behind the other municipalities in the solution of our big problems. We want to be able to stand beside the resident of any other city in this country or any other city in the world and have upon our countenance a look of satisfaction and a look of pride when we sign the hotel register with the striking words behind it, "New York City." That is what I am here for. That is what you are here for.

I urge you during the campaign to put your arguments on the high constructive sense—what is best for New York. Let everybody examine into his conscience and let every man study his own heart. Let every man say, "I will do on primary day what I would do if I was a majority stockholder in a great corporation. I will do that thing that my conscience and my heart suggest to me is the best for my city, for my neighbors and for the people that make up her population."

BENNETT QUESTIONS RIVALS ON TRANSIT

Asks Each Candidate How He Would Keep 5-Cent Fare, Build Subways and Cut Taxes.

POINTS TO PRESENT DEFICIT

Quotes Delaney's Estimate That the New Lines Will Need 8-Cent Rate or an Assessment.

William M. Bennett, candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor, asked his principal rivals yesterday to explain in detail how they intended to maintain the five-cent fare, find the money to build new subways and lower the tax rate.

Mr. Bennett said that it now cost the city $15,000,000 a year to meet the subway deficit and that at least $800,000,000 would be required for new subways. He declared that, so far as he could see, the promises made by the other Mayoralty candidates were impossible of fulfillment and added that he believed the public was tired of generalities on the transit question and demanded specific facts.

In a letter, addressed to Frank D. Waterman, candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor, and to Mayor Hylan and Senator James J. Walker, candidates for the Democratic nomination, Mr. Bennett said:

"Having read your respective platforms, I write to ask each of you to be a little more explicit on the transit situation. Under the dual subway contracts the Interborough and the B. M. T. are entitled out of the five-cent fare to a preference, first, for operating expenses, and second, for interest on their investment of private capital amounting to about $80,000,000. If anything is left out of the five cents, the balance goes to pay to the city interest and sinking funds on the bonds issued by the city to build the subways. In other words, during the Mayoralty of Mr. Gaynor a contract was made making the city a partner with the Interborough and B. M. T. under the terms outlined above.

Cites Delaney's Estimate.

"The city has already spent a little over $300,000,000 on building the subways—$57,000,000, representing the old subway, earns enough to pay operating expenses and interest and sinking fund on the city's bonds. The other $250,000,000 does not, and there will be put in the budget for next year $15,000,000 to be raised by taxation to pay the deficit which falls upon the city by reason of its being a partner to the Interborough and B. M. T. subways. Since the making of this dual subway contract the total deficit thus raised by taxation amounts to $160,000,000.

"Mr. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, estimates that the new subways, which all of you have promised to the city, will cost about $800,000,000. He also reported that unless these new subways are allowed to charge an eight-cent fare they will operate at a loss, unless at least $300,000,000 of their cost is raised by a special assessment upon the property through which they run. If these new subways are not self-supporting, there will eventually have to be put into the budget to be raised by taxation an additional amount of $38,000,000 for interest and sinking fund, which, added to the present deficit, will make something like $53,000,000 to be raised by taxation to pay the city's share of the deficit for furnishing transit.

"I think it only fair that you gentlemen should make clear to the voters what you intend to do about this situation, and I therefore submit to you the following questions:

Asks for a "Practical Method."

"Frank D. Waterman: You, Mr. Waterman, in your speech at the National Republican Club, stated, 'I will dig subways. I will maintain the five-cent fare.' The Sun, one of your supporters, stated editorially the next day, as follows: 'Mr. Waterman declares that he will maintain the five-cent fare. The Sun hopes it can be done without confiscation. Presumably Mr. Waterman has worked out a practical method.' What is your practical method, Mr. Waterman? Are you going to continue the policy of raising by taxation this enormous amount necessary to make up the deficit for furnishing transit? How are you going to build the subways? Are you in favor of a special assessment against the property owners of Manhattan, Kings, Queens and the Bronx to pay the cost of these subways?

"James J. Walker: You, Mr. Walker, have stated that you would give your strong right arm, if necessary, to maintain the five-cent fare. You also promised to build subways and reduce the tax rate. You also declare for municipal operation of the subways, which, of course, means a great multiplication of the number of employes on the subways because of the introduction of politics in their selection. Under your platform the amount which will have to be put into the budget to make up the deficit will have to be greater than the amount stated above. Are you going to continue the policy of raising this amount by taxation, thereby furnishing transit at less than cost? Are you going to favor an assessment on the property owners in Manhattan, Kings, Queens and the Bronx to build the subways?

Transit at Less Than Cost.

"John F. Hylan: You, Mr. Hylan, claim to have kept the 5-cent fare. I think that there is some truth in your claim in so far as it applies to the subways, but what of the future? In your budget, now being made up, you are inserting $15,000,000 to be raised by taxation to make up the deficit in furnishing transit. You also are in favor of municipal operation and you have promised to build subways.

"There has already been incurred under the dual subway contract a deficit of $100,000,000, which has been raised from the taxpayers and rentpayers. How much longer do you intend to continue the policy of having the city furnish transit at less than cost? Do you favor a special assessment on the property owners of Manhattan, Kings, Queens and the Bronx to build the new subways? If not, how do you propose to build them, in view of the present narrow margin of debt-incurring capacity of the city?

"Gentlemen, I think that on the question of the transit situation the voters are entitled to more than glittering generalities, and I therefore should appreciate an answer to the foregoing questions."

Bronx Leader Quits Waterman for Lyons; Thinks Receivership Was Bait to Hold Him

Alfred E. Simonds, Republican leader of the Third Bronx Assembly District, declared yesterday for John J. Lyons, candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor. In a statement Mr. Simonds declared that Richard W. Lawrence, Bronx County Republican Chairman, had offered to obtain for him a lucrative receivership if he would support Frank Waterman.

Mr. Simonds is the first Assembly district leader to come out openly for Mr. Lyons.

"I told Richard Lawrence last week that the majority of the members of my organization were for Lyons, but that I would not do anything until I had put the matter up to the workers of my club and that I would abide by whatever they expressed as their will. On Monday when I reached my offices at 261 Broadway I found a telephone call there to call Lawrence. I did so, and over the phone he said to me: 'Say, I've got a nice receivership for you. Can you get a $25,000 bond?'

"Whereupon I said: 'Say Dick, what's the price?'"

"Lawrence said: 'Say, don't talk that way. Why don't you get your fellows in line up there?'"

"I said: 'Wait a minute, Dick. Isn't it rather peculiar that in all my fourteen years of leadership you should pick this particular time to offer me a receivership that requires a $25,000 bond?'"

"So Lawrence switched the conversation and said to me 'Say, now, I want you to let me know what you and your fellows are going to do.'"

"I told him that I would do so after the Monday night meeting at my club house, at which I expected that the members of the organization would make known their choice. This is exactly what happened, for the members of the club passed a resolution unanimously to support Lyons in his fight for the Mayoralty nomination.

"This morning I was informed that the receivership that was offered to me was given to Samuel J. Joseph, who is the leader of the Furth Assembly District, in an effort to keep him in line.

"In all the time that I have been a leader in the Bronx, and that has been fourteen years, I have had but one receivership and that amounted to $35 or $40, so I was more than surprised when I received this one, especially at a time when the affairs of the party are in a more or less divided state."

Mr. Lawrence declined to comment upon Mr. Simonds's statement. From other sources it was learned that Mr. Simonds had been an assistant United States Appraiser until last February and since then had been disaffected with the Bronx Republican organization.

ASSAILS MRS. KNAPP ON VOTE MACHINES

CALLS IT AN OUTRAGE

Warns Republicans They Will Lose Union Votes If Secretary of State Persists.

Alderman Peter J. McGuinness supported yesterday the attack made Tuesday by Hugh Frayne, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, against the purchase of voting machines from a non-union shop by Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State for New York. He declared: "There will be no union men casting votes for Republican candidates in the City of New York if Mrs. Knapp carries out her plan to put in voting machines made in an open shop."

Alderman McGuinness is the organization leader of the Brooklyn Assembly district embracing the Greenpoint area, a stronghold of unionism. Mr. McGuinness said he probably would bring the matter before the Board of Aldermen. He joined Mr. Frayne in condemning the machines obtained by Mrs. Knapp on account of their high cost as well as for their non-union manufacture. He said Mr. Frayne's charges had been substantiated by many union men who had brought the matter to his attention.

"I am a union man and always will be," Mr. McGuinness continued, "and I consider it an outrage for Secretary of State Knapp to order non-union-made voting machines for New York when it is possible to buy machines made by union workers.

"I understand there are any number of machines on the market which were built by union labor. Organized labor in this city will answer Mrs. Knapp and the Republicans at the polls."

Peter J. Brady, President of the American Federation of Labor Bank in this city, former Supervisor of the City Record and official spokesman of the allied printing trades, has gone to the convention of the State Federation of Labor in Syracuse, N. Y., where, it is said, he will protest strongly against Mrs. Knapp's action when the voting machine question is brought before the convention.

None of the members of the Board of Elections would comment on the matter yesterday further than to say the purchase of the voting machines was entirely in Mrs. Knapp's hands and entirely out of their jurisdiction.

Mr. Frayne said Tuesday that the machines which are to be obtained by Mrs. Knapp from the Cummings Vote Register Corporation of Jamestown, N. Y., would cost $2,000,000 more than would union-made machines.

Veteran Bellevue Employe Dead.

Mrs. Mrs. Mary Murphy, one of the oldest employes of Bellevue Hospital died from heart disease yesterday at her home, 43 Fifth Avenue. Mrs. Murphy was 61 years old and for twenty-eight years had been employed in the offices of the hospital. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church, on Twelfth Street near Third Avenue.

Again Hannah rose to a point of order, pressing his point time and time again, despite the indifference of the Chair.

"Listen, friends," he said, "I don't want you to be swayed by argument, but by the facts. That's all I want to present, the facts. I have no axe to grind. It seems to me that in justice to the 750,000 workingmen you control in New York City you'd want to listen to them. Can't we get a chance to put the evidence before you, get a chance to tell the truth?"

In his excitement he slid out of his seat and advanced menacingly toward the platform.

"The building trades spend $100,000 a year in connection with the State Federation. Can't we even have a chance to tell the State what the Mayor's done? I don't give a rap for Hylan, or for Willie Hearst who's behind him, or for Governor Smith, for that matter, but I move that we vote to consider it."

John P. Coughlin of New York labeled the resolution as "hick-town politics," but moved for a compromise. "This convention," he said, "is made up of Socialists, Republicans and Democrats. I don't see what right Socialists and Republicans have got to butt in on Democratic primaries."

"I don't see why 700 men in two departments should have to work for $2.50 less a day for the city than for private enterprises. The city owes me $300 now as it is. It's a disgrace."

Toward adjournment it was moved that a special order be declared for 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to discuss the Hylan resolution.

"All right, then," Hannah declared, "we'll make it 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. And the whole argument will hinge on the point whether or not Hylan insulted organized labor at the June meeting of the Estimate Board, banging his fist down on the table and evading a question asked by labor for over a year which labor declares is not a question of raising money, but of living up to municipal law."

HYLAN TO LET B. M. T. RUN CARS ON BRIDGE

CITY LINE LIKELY TO STOP

Mayor Will Recommend Ending Municipal Operation to Board of Estimate.

Reversing his position as a result of complaints by business men, Mayor Hylan agreed yesterday to the resumption of B. M. T. surface car traffic on the Williamsburg Bridge to replace the municipally operated line.

The business men appeared at City Hall headed by Harry Gropper of 946 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, a neighbor of the Mayor and President of the National Gropper Knit Tie Manufacturing Company. They told the Mayor that the old B. M. T. bridge service was better than the present one because it was an unbroken through service, while the cars now merely run back and forth across the bridge. The present service is operated by the Department of Plant and Structures.

Mayor Hylan said that he would give his permission for the B. M. T. to put the cars back if the company would consent. He said that if the B. M. T. refused to pay for the connection, the city would do so within forty-eight hours on being informed that service would be restored. He promised the merchants to do everything he could to see that better service was given on the bridge.

While the stopping of the bridge locals operated by the Department of Plant and Structures was not within his power, the Mayor said, he would suggest it to the Board of Aldermen.

'RADIO TEAS' FOR MRS. CATT.

Westchester County Women Listen In on Suffrage Speech Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—In every city, town and village in Westchester County members of the Westchester County League of Women Voters today attended radio teas given by members of the league to enable the women to hear the address of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt in New York broadcast from Station WEAF. Many of the leaders of the League attended the luncheon given for Mrs. Catt and Miss Mary Garrett Hay at the Women's City Club in New York and listened to Mrs. Catt's address there.

After hearing Mrs. Catt's talk by radio the members in their homes here discussed county problems with regard to local tickets.

It was estimated that about one hundred of the radio teas were held in the county, and that the average attendance was from fifteen to twenty.

NEW CANDIDATES FOR WESTCHESTER

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—For the first time in many years one of the two major political parties designated an independent for office on the city ticket yesterday, when the Democratic City Committee named Ritchie G. Betts of 153 North Broadway, retired publisher, to fill the vacancy caused by the declination of Harvey Husted to run for Mayor.

The naming of Mr. Betts came after many deliberations of the committee. He was selected a few minutes before midnight last night. Three names were considered by the committee, the other two being Mortimer C. O'Brien, lawyer, and Frank J. Lamb, who was the opponent of Mayor Frederick E. Weeks, Republican, at the last election.

Mr. Betts, at one time publisher of Motor World and later of The Sporting Goods Journal, will run against Frederick C. McLaughlin, Republican designee and now a member of the City Council. Mr. Betts said today he would disclose the platform on which he would run after the primaries in September.

Other designees named to fill vacancies caused by declinations on other city tickets in the county were Oscar L. Spears as Supervisor-at-Large in Mount Vernon on the Democratic ticket, to fill the vacancy caused by the declination of James D. Ewing.

A threatened contest for Alderman-at-Large on the Democratic ticket in Mount Vernon was avoided when Edward C. Haywood declined the designation. The name of John M. Real remains. Mr. Real had filed notice that he would contest, but the declination of Mr. Haywood leaves only three Aldermen designated.

Policeman Dies of Auto Injuries.

Robert Cookson, 28 years old, of 113 Charles Street, Jersey City, a policeman, died in the Jersey City Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered last Sunday when his motorcycle collided on the Hudson County Boulevard with an automobile driven by Jacob Simon, a Bayonne merchant. Simon is held in $2,500 bail on a technical charge of manslaughter.

REPUBLICAN SCORES CITY'S LEGAL WORK

CITES EXPERTS EMPLOYED

Wilson Recalls That Hylan Made Hiring of Outsiders a Campaign Issue, Then Practiced It.

Inefficiency and extravagance in the city's Law Department, as conducted by the "Tammany-Hylan Administration, were alleged yesterday by Edward H. Wilson, Chairman of the Research Committee of the Kings County Republican Advisory Committee. Mr. Wilson said that this department's evils had not been exceeded "since the palmy days of Tweed."

"One cause of this is that the Corporation Counsel's office, instead of attending to its legitimate duty of representing the city and city officers in litigation affecting city interests, has used up the efforts of its assistants in attempting to horn into controversies over gas, telephone and transit rates." Mr. Wilson said. There might have been some excuse for this if the action of the Corporation Counsel's office ever resulted in success, but the melancholy record is that after using up $2,000,000 of public funds for extra expenses in these litigations, the city's counsel has walked out of court unsuccessful in every such litigation. This committee shortly will have a little more to say about that.

Says Counsel Lost Suits.

"But even in the ordinary routine work of the Corporation Counsel's office the staff, according to published reports of the Tammany Corporation Counsel, has lamentably fallen down.

"In 1916, as shown by the last report of the Corporation Counsel of the Mitchel Administration, the city recovered 8,864 judgments in its favor, amounting to $1,256,091.69. In 1923, the last year in which the statistics of the Tammany-Hylan Corporation Counsel's office are available, the city obtained only 5,027 judgments in its favor, amounting to $717,144.52. This shows a decrease in the amount recovered of $538,947.17, or 43 per cent., and upon this basis the record of the Tammany-Hylan "Seven Years of Progress" shows a progressive shortage on this account of some $3,500,000.

"Taking the other side of the ledger, a comparison of the judgments recovered against the city for these same years shows that under the Tammany-Hylan Administration the city in 1923 was mulcted in judgments for the amount three times larger than the recoveries against it in 1916."

Mr. Wilson said that extravagance was shown by the fact that in 1916, during the Mitchel Administration, the Law Department operated on a budget of $831,085, while for 1925 the budget appropriation for the department was $1,605,489.

He declared that much of this increase was due to the employment of special counsel and "experts," employment of whom had been attacked by Mayor Hylan when first a candidate, in criticizing an appropriation of $73,000 for that purpose in the last year of the Mitchel Administration.

"In detail the Tammany figures for special counsel and experts are: 1918, $287,209.39; 1919, $317,324.89; 1920, $530,137.43; 1921, $456,516.23; 1922, $686,915.12; 1823, $657,002.56," he continued. "The exact figures for 1924 are not available, but the budget appropriated $439,758, to which was added $100,000 more. The 1925 budget set aside $573,658, which was not enough, for on June 12, last, the Corporation Counsel asked the Board of Estimate for $61,850 more.

"Why this tremendous amount of money in being spent in this way may be apparent from a contemplation of the names of the gentlemen who get it.

Johnson Got $25,000.

"Hiram Johnson of California, friend of William Randolph Hearst, received $25,000 for being retained in transit litigation in which, of course, the city was walloped in 1921.

"Congressman Fiorello H. LaGuardia, originally a Republican, now one of Mr. Hylan's most active boosters, received $13,976.13 as fees in the Citizens' Water Company condemnation case in Queens. In other Administrations work of this sort has been done by the regular salaried assistants of the Corporation Counsel's staff. Incidentally in the Citizens' Water Company's case the city spent $700,000 more than the price for which the company originally offered to sell it to the city at private sale.

"John J. Boylan, Tammany Congressman, formerly State Senator, who has been on close terms of friendship with Hylan and Hearst, received as a real estate expert, $56,750 in five years, thus: 1918, $2,300; 1919, $4,900; 1920, $8,300; 1921, $7,710; 1922, $13,240; 1923, $18,330.

"John E. Herrity, who was Charles F. Murphy's private physician, received from 1918 to 1923, $31,809 as fees as an expert in damage claims.

"Notwithstanding the Tammany Administration's professed abhorrence of foreign talent, A. S. B. Little of Chicago, Ill., received from 1920 to 1923, $42,395 for expert engineer's services in the gas cases in which, of course, the city was wholly unsuccessful, and J. G. Wray & Co. of Chicago, other foreigners, received for services in the telephone cases in 1921 and 1922, likewise wholly unsuccessful, $108,544.25.

"Mark Wolff, an accountant on the civil service list, who up to 1918 was employed by the city at $2,700 a year, received $165,100 for accounting services in gas cases, in which again, of course, the city was wholly unsuccessful."

WISCONSIN BATTLE RAGES.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 26.—Wisconsin looked like an old-time political battlefield last night when Robert M. La Follette Jr. opened his attack on Senator L. L. Lenroot at Lake Geneva, and Governor J. J. Blaine in a campaign speech supporting young La Follette, at La Crosse, echoed it.

At the same hour Roy P. Wilcox, stalwart Republican candidate for the Senate seat of the late Robert M. La Follette, pledged himself to the policies of President Coolidge and declared that if young La Follette is nominated in the primary he will continue the battle as an independent.

Both Governor Blaine and young La Follette attacked Senator Lenroot for "hanging on to the President's coat tails." La Follette also assailed President Coolidge's appointment to high places in governmental offices of men who he said have been allied with the big interests.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 26 (AP).—Launching his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Senator from Wisconsin, W. G. Bruce of Milwaukee, declared that his slogan will be "ten ocean ports for Wisconsin."

"I know of no project that will affect the economic interests of the State so much as deep waterways connecting the lakes with the seaboard. It will bring Wisconsin 1,000 miles nearer the sea and the markets of the world," he said in a statement.

WOMEN CELEBRATE THEIR SUFFRAGE DAY

Mrs. Catt Hails Five Years of Progress, but Says Men Are Still Antagonistic.

'WORLD NOT REFORMED YET'

All War Must Be Abolished—First, She Says—Miss Hay Pleads for Women in Office.

Women are not yet received on an equal footing by men, their participation in politics and business is still resented despite suffrage, and they still labor under an inferiority complex, said speakers at the luncheon in the Women's City Club yesterday to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the ratification of the suffrage amendment and the cooperation of women to abolish war. The great achievement of suffrage, they said, was not that it had won the vote for women, but that it had liberated their minds to a greater extent than anything in several centuries.

It was a frankly jubilant gathering of representative women who thronged about Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Miss Mary Garrett Hay, the two guests of honor. Although they admitted that they had not reformed the world in five years and did not expect to in many more, they were proud of the record of administrative and professional success women had attained in politics and other walks of life. Such discrimination as exists will disappear with a new generation and before the united front of women, they said.

"We should not give up the responsibility as women of standing together whenever the principle of the rights of women is at stake," said Miss Hay. "We should continue to protest when discriminations are visited on women. We won the vote by hard work, so let us now stand together in winning our rightful place in church, schools, business and politics."

Concentrate on Anti-War Fight.

The prevention of war is now the engrossing question of those who led the suffrage fight, and Mrs. Catt said that not until the idea of war is overcome, until peace is assured to the world, can the feeling of superiority of men over women be dispelled, and women freed from the incubus that has come with military inferiority. In a speech which Mrs. Catt made in part at the club and later delivered over the radio, she said women were continually being asked for an accounting for the last five years.

"Most politicians were reluctant converts to woman suffrage and returned to their former attitude of resistance," she said. "Granting the vote did not mean to many an old time party leader that women would have in consequence a say about nominations, party policies or platforms, and he 'stands pat' to see that they confine their political liberty to voting the ticket and platform which has been picked out by a few of the party elect in a hotel bedroom. This is no more acceptable to the woman of spirit and intelligence than it is to the man similarly equipped.

"Meantime the chief business of all progressive women is to carry forward education for equal rights and opportunities, in industry, in social reform, in the church, in business, in education, in the arts and sciences. That we are now in this second stage and our education going strong, is the second reason for rejoicing today."

There are gratifying results already, she said, recounting the positions women have already attained in politics.

"Election day has been literally transformed in most States by the presence of women as election officials and voters," she said. "The insistence by long headed women that party platform pledges shall be kept is in a satisfactory stage of agitation. Corrupt or incompetent rings or cliques here and there have been broken up, sometimes by the initiative and always by the aid of women. Nowhere has any unexpected obstacle appeared, and everywhere resistance is receding."

Women were robbed of their property, wages, inheritance, education, freedom of thought or speech or rights over the children by war, said Mrs. Catt, and kept in a state of subjection for centuries because of the argument that women could not fight and therefore must not vote. In a moment of generosity after the close of the war the women of half the world were enfranchised, and then the door closed and pessimism possessed the world, she said, which will last for years.

Cites Post-War Evils.

"Just now the cost of living is higher than at any time in our history," she said. "Taxes are higher than this nation has ever paid. 'Terrifying crime' is more prevalent than it has ever been, and over and under it all is a nervous sense of premonition of something dreadful about to befall us. These are merely the normal and the inevitable aftermath of war. Is it not good sense, therefore, to attack first of all the cause of distress? Instead of attempting to treat the effects? Get rid of war, and progress will eventually proceed to amble onward without a continual shout of whoa from the war-makers. We may even dream that in time men and women will obey the Ten Commandments by instinct and live up to the Sermon on the Mount."

Mrs. Catt said she was in favor of the World Court as the easiest and most logical step to end war at the present time. She gave as her reasons: "Membership is an easy first step toward peace; it is an institution with which we are acquainted; the World Court is an American idea and proposal; the richest nation in the world should help pay the bills of this first World Court. It will contribute enormously toward world peace; it will give evidence to the world that this nation means to cooperate with other nations to gain peace."

There are three current phrases connected with the peace movement on which women might begin to work, said Mrs. Gordon Norrie.

"The first is that hackneyed sentence, the economic cause of war," she said. "Does it not seem probable that the great international struggle today is for markets? Why else are the Western powers unwilling that China should raise her customs duties? Why else should the English Government lay an internal duty on cotton goods manufactured in India in order that they should not undersell Manchester?"

The second current phrase with regard to war is racial antagonism, which does not necessarily exist, she said; and the third, political education, which is prevented by misunderstanding between important groups.

A plea for women to stand by political candidates of their sex irrespective of party was made by Miss Hay.

"Our responsibility as workers for the vote is now to make it possible and easier for the younger women to take their right place in politics," she said. "I have never believed in and do not now believe in a woman's party, but I do believe in women in public office, and when an efficient, capable and honest woman is nominated for office we should stand by her, even though she may be on the ticket of another party than the one we are enrolled in. Nor do I think a poorly qualified woman should be supported if she is running against a well-qualified man. In other words, do not support a woman just because she is a woman."

Mrs. Raymond Brown and Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse also spoke. Mrs. Whitehouse suggested that Aug. 26 be set aside as a national holiday to celebrate the winning of suffrage by women. Miss Ruth Morgan presided.

Among those present at the luncheon were Mrs. E. V. Colbert, Mrs. Frederick Edey, Mrs. Frederick Greene, Mrs. Arthur Livermore, Miss Annie Mathews, Alice Duer Miller, Mrs. Daniel O'Day, Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. Alexander Trowbridge, Mrs. Henry Villard, Mrs. Thomas B. Wells and Miss Rose Young.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, August 27—Men, almost as much as women, now chase the will-o'-the-wisp of youth. They can't go to the beauty parlor for it, so they go to the gym, the golf course and the clothes-shop. The youthful, slenderizing look of the double-breasted suit is the reason so many men will be indulgent to it next autumn. It is favored even by those who, though they may have gray in their hair, have none in their disposition. Exclusive, but not expensive.

FRENCH CRITICIZE DELAY IN MOROCCO

SPANIARDS BOMB REBELS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—In Nationalist quarters here dissatisfaction is expressed that the French Army in Morocco is not making greater progress.

It is pointed out that for several weeks more than 150,000 French troops have been available, yet no big drive against Abd-el-Krim has been started, and, although the French north of Taza recently have brought the Tsouls back into camp, yet, after all is said and done, the French are scarcely back to the lines from which Abd-el-Krim drove them some months ago.

In six weeks the rainy season will begin and the Government's critics point out that if something big is not done between now and then Abd-el-Krim will have until next April to consolidate and better his army for next Summer's campaign.

The Nationalists also have in mind the fact that Parliament will reopen in October and, due to the opposition of the Socialists, they fear the Government will be hampered in conducting the war against the Riffians. Therefore, they wish to see a decisive stroke before October.

Supreme Authority for Petain.

Marshal Lyautey's headquarters issued a communiqué today ending with the statement: "Marshal Pétain will from today on take general direction of military operations and command of Moroccan troops," thus confirming Paris opinion that Marshal Pétain was to have supreme authority in Morocco.

Many reports are being circulated today about a proposed Franco-Spanish landing at Alhucemas Bay or at the mouth of the Oued Lau River southeast of Tetuan, but while such reports have been current for more than two months their periodicity in the past, in the opinion of Paris commentators, does not weaken the belief that these or other equally important combined military-naval operations will be forthcoming soon.

At several Spanish ports army transports, cruisers and barges, with special armor-plate shields concealing their decks, are being prepared for departure to Morocco, while less is known of French preparations, except isolated departures of reinforcements. Belief is expressed here that continual references to landing at specific points in Morocco may be blinds, because Abd-el-Krim's secret service, working through Tangier, is known to be exceedingly well informed.

Three French columns operating against the Branes are reported to have reached all their initial objectives, but details are lacking. Three-fifths of the Tsoul tribe remain with the Branes tribe, which is difficult to conquer because of the terrain.

French Columns on Move.

The first column left Bab Maroudj toward the northwest for El Menzel, whence it will attack Djebel en Nehir Mountain, which is northwest of the Djebel Amessef stronghold and controls one of the only two paths reaching that mighty bastion.

The second column left Bab Maroudj toward the northeast, while the third left Dar Caid Medboh toward the southwest. These columns will meet in the pass linking two valleys which are the only lines of communications the Riffian outpost has.

Airplanes report the Riffs massing at Oued el Habar River, which flows north of Djebel en Nehir Mountain.

This battle is considered very important by the opposing forces, because once the French hold the area operations toward the north is easier going, terrain will be possible, with Ajdir only seventy kilometers away. Two great mountain ranges lie across the roads, but they are not such a "crazy patch" as the country the French now are fighting through.

MELILLA, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 26 (AP).—An aerial armada of more than forty Spanish airplanes and seaplanes have dropped tons of high explosive bombs in a raid over the Beni Urriaguel Mountains and surrounding territory. The raid was effective principally in the destruction of rebel gun emplacements.

The aviators also made photographs and observed that Abd-el-Krim has some very large calibre cannon placed along the coast. The Moors do not station their guns in battery style, as is done by European armies, but place them in isolated spots, making firing against them difficult. It was also observed that the cannon, after firing, are taken into caves constructed behind fortifications to protect them from air bombardments.

In the Tsoul country the rebels marched up to the French advanced positions, which they attacked with bombs and bayonets. They were driven off after a sharp fight, leaving some dead and wounded on the field.

A minor attack also has been made on Kolleine by Dejebala tribesmen. The Moors were repulsed and left several wounded in the hands of the French.

Important decisions on the subject of the approaching general Franco-Spanish offensive are understood to have been reached at a council of war presided over by Marshal Pétain, who is proceeding to Rabat to confer with Marshal Lyautey, Resident General, before the latter sails for France.

The operations in the Branes country are proceeding normally, foreshadowing useful results, despite any resistance the tribesmen, supported by Riffians, may offer.

The principal objective of General Boichut's troops is the Djebel Amessef range. The country is extremely difficult, offering admirable defensive positions to the enemy, but success would have highly important consequences. It would bring the French line to the old advanced posts in the Kiffane region, providing the best starting point for a direct drive upon Abd-el-Krim's headquarters at Ajdir, which is only fifty miles distant.

ASKS SUTTON RECEIVERSHIP

Dayton Firm Acts in Auto Company's Affairs—President is Sought.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 26.—Suit for receivership against the Sutton Motor Car Company was filed today by Charles B. Terry, counsel for the Continental Finance Company of Dayton, Ohio, following the discovery of alleged forged mortgages on which money was borrowed from the finance company.

At the same time search was begun for G. E. Sutton, President of the motor company. Mr. Sutton left Cincinnati Monday, it was learned. He was supposed to be at Cedar Point, Ohio, but representatives of the finance company were unable to locate him there.

Following the action of Mr. Terry, representatives of several other finance corporations, the Fourth and Central Trust Company and the Auburn Motor Company visited Mr. Sutton's offices. Numerous alleged irregularities, including checks which were returned marked "no funds," were uncovered, it is charged. The presence of alleged irregularities in the affairs of the Sutton Company became known, it is said, when the Continental Finance Company discovered that a mortgage, said to have been signed by Dr. Alvin F. Renneker, was a forgery.

De Rivera Says Directorate Will Quit When It Terminates Its Work in Morocco

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Aug. 26.—Provincial Deputy Daniel of Barcelona has received a letter from Primo de Rivera stating that once it has terminated its work in Morocco the Directorate would withdraw, leaving its power in the hands of the new party, the Patriotic Union, from which he expects men will arise to continue the work of the Directorate, segregating Communists and all other "pernicious elements."

The declaration of General Primo de Rivera [Marqués de Estella] that his Directorate would make way for the Patriotic Union as soon as the war in Morocco ended is emphasizing a point in his policy which has been in evidence ever since it has been believed by him and his associates that the political party created by the Directorate (the Patriotic Union) was strong enough to carry on the ideals of the Directorate without the old political parties coming back into power. The hoped-for time arrived a year ago, nearly a year after the inauguration of the Directorate, when first aim was to demolish the old parties.

The Patriotic Union was organized by the leaders of the Directorate in December, 1923. At first it enrolled few members, as everybody looked for an early return to the "good old times." Then, when the workers found that although discharged from private employment they could always find work under the new Government, there was a rush to join the new party in spite of all the old bosses could do. Although there have been no national elections, provincial caucuses and municipal elections have revealed the growing strength of the party, so that last September General Primo issued a manifesto in which he said:

"We must continue. The road to purification still stretches ahead. The caciques [bosses] still cling to their nests. The feudalism of certain public bodies and bad habits of indiscipline and laziness still persist, for they had become a second nature. * * * We must proceed with the extirpation of the social cancer. * * * The only solution possible is now the field of battle. Know it, therefore, Spaniards, as the truth which we will always proclaim, war must be carried on in Morocco until the enemy is defeated."

This was four months before the withdrawal of the Spanish troops to the fortified lines which were on the defensive when the Franco-Riff clash occurred last April. In the preceding January, General Primo de Rivera being then in Morocco, Admiral de Magaz, Vice President of the Directorate, said the one obstacle which continued to prevent the withdrawal of his Government was the Moroccan problem. And he added: "As soon as that is solved we shall depart. Although the Spanish nation is now well aware of what we stand for and is desirous of continuing our work, none of us ignores the effect produced abroad by the prolonged continuation in office of the Military Directory."

At present nearly all the decrees against the exercise of constitutional liberties have been abrogated. Martial law was discontinued May 15. There remain, however, the decrees suppressing special privileges in Catalonia, which are not likely to be abrogated at all, and the press censorship, which, it is believed, will be continued until the Directorate announces the return to parliamentary government.

TOKIO AREA DAMAGED BY TORRENTIAL RAINS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Aug. 26.—This city of natural calamities has been drenched all day by torrential rains, which have inundated two-thirds of the place with the worst flood in eight years. The high sections, where foreigners reside, generally untouched by floods, also are inundated this time. The Imperial Hotel is being flooded by waters sweeping in the side doors, which put out the kitchen fires before sandbag dikes could be built before the doors.

The slum sections, including the segregated district of Yoshiwara, as well as Akasaka, Honjo and Fukagawa, are several feet under water. Some casualties are reported, but it is impossible to complete the check.

The movie street in Asakusa Park is under a foot of water, the torrent sweeping the personal belongings of the dwellers out to sea.

Suffering is intense, despite the efforts of army reservists and young men's associations to apply relief measures, as the rain continues to fall in a heavy flood and many thousands are being driven from their homes by the rising waters.

Street car service has been stopped, and most of the telephone and electric lines are interrupted in some sections.

One street car plunged twenty feet into a moat near the Imperial Akasaka Palace when the bank was washed away. The occupants escaped after the car had stopped, almost submerged in the moat, by crawling through the windows. The basement of the Imperial Diet Building is flooded.

Tokio to Kobe train service is suspended, with the tracks washed out near Mount Fuji. Landslides are also reported.

Rains are reported also to be heavy throughout Southern Japan. Temporary bridges erected after the earthquake throughout the district are threatened and are being watched by reservists. More rains are predicted for tomorrow.

DAVIS ELATED BY TESTS OF ALIENS IN BRITAIN

Secretary of Labor Returns and Says Both Officials and Immigrants Praise the System.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Labor Department's new immigration inspection system, attacked recently in a public statement by Immigration Commissioner Curran of New York, was declared by Secretary Davis, who returned to Washington today, to have been successful in the British and Irish Free States ports, where it recently was installed, even to a greater degree than he had anticipated.

The Secretary, returning from a visit of several weeks in Great Britain, said other foreign Governments had been so greatly impressed with the new system that many of them had sent representatives to the places where it was in operation, to determine whether they should agree to have it installed in their ports.

The greatest evidence of the plan's success, Mr. Davis said, lay not only in the approval by officials of the nations where the experiment is being made, but in endorsement by prospective aliens themselves, who were relieved of the fear that, after arriving in the United States, they would be rejected at Ellis Island and sent back.

In order that the Secretary of Labor should reach Washington in good time yesterday, special arrangements were made with the United States Public Health Officer at Quarantine and the Collector of the Port to take him off the White Star liner Olympic.

The liner anchored off Quarantine at 12:23 A. M., and after the health officers had been on board to see that there was no contagious disease among the passengers or crew, Secretary Davis left at 2:30 A. M. in a United States Coast Guard cutter for the Battery, where he had an automobile waiting to take him to the Pennsylvania Station to catch an early train for Washington.

WANTS WAR DRAFT LAW ALWAYS READY FOR USE

J. A. Stewart Also Asks Neighborly Spirit and Defends the 'Babbitts.'

HAMILTON, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP).—Enactment of a federal law making the draft immediately effective in the eventuality of war is suggested today by John A. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors of the American Society, as a means of making the "hyphenated-American" element shoulder a part of the responsibility in the next war.

The suggestion was made in an address prepared for delivery before the Associated Daughters of the American Revolution, the Fortnightly Club and the Business Men's Association.

Other measures suggested by Mr. Stewart for the solution of the country's internal and foreign problems were the development of "a spirit of neighborliness" among heterogeneous racial elements and a broadening of international relations on a basis recognizing the legitimate chauvinistic pride of foreign nations.

Announcing that the American Society has paved the way for introduction of the draft measure before Congress, Mr. Stewart denounced "slackers" and the "hyphenated-American" groups "whose entanglements in America in European problems caused our main and most disturbing problems."

"Our department of defense should be so constituted as to be able to recruit the moment war is declared a fairly adequate corps of men trained in the art of war," he said. "But as for permitting men of patriotic mind to interpose their own bodies as a defense against the performance of an equal duty on the part of others, mainly of alien antecedents, who are slackers or malingerers, should not be permitted."

Lamenting the lack of the "spirit of neighborliness" among groups in this country, particularly quoting the Ku Klux Klan as an example of "the dissevering state inevitable among men conscious of race and religion," Mr. Stewart urged the introduction into American social life of the late President Harding's "neighborliness of just folks."

"There is in our folk inter-relationship a lack of neighborliness," Mr. Stewart said, "and it is disconcerting that many of the Germans of the second and third generation in this country call themselves German-Americans; the Irish, Irish-Americans when abroad and here at home, Irish; and the Jew, a Jew. Time alone can affect the cure."

Defending the "Babbitt" type of American business man ridiculed by some novelists and Europeans, he said:

"Let us not be ashamed to be called 'Babbitts,' because 'Babbitts' are the very foundation of our society, the only restraining moral social force preventing more evil days than any which have yet befallen us."

AUTONOMY FOR HELIGOLAND

Visit of Prussian Minister Believed to Herald Change.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—Return to government by autonomy for Heligoland, which the island enjoyed before the war, is believed to be presaged by the visit of the Prussian Minister of the Interior, Herr Severing, to the island, although it purports to have to do with deciding whether the inhabitants of the peaceful little village on German's formerly strongly fortified possession shall be uprooted from their homes and transported to the mainland or allowed to remain.

Five landslides this Summer have alarmed engineers, who assert the island is no longer safe, though it is pointed out that even at the present rate of dropping into the sea the island would not be entirely consumed for a thousand years. Fishermen shuddered when told of the proposal to make the island a bird refuge with the only human inhabitant a lighthouse keeper. With the fortifications razed, Heligolanders have hopes of a return to the golden past when the island was a popular Summer resort.

BRIAND NOTE URGES A SECURITY PARLEY

Text of the French Note to Germany.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The official English translation of the French note to Germany, given out here tonight, reads as follows:

The French Government have given careful consideration to the German note of the 20th of July, 1925. They are glad to observe the community of views which exists between the two Governments and to realize that the German Government are as anxious as they are themselves to see the peace of Europe based upon an understanding which will insure to the several countries supplementary guarantees of security.

They note with satisfaction that the German Government, after a careful study of the French note of the 16th of June, express their conviction that agreement is possible.

The French Government, desirous of not delaying such an agreement, will confine themselves to such observations as the examination of the three essential points of the German note has suggested to them in common with their allies.

The German Government, in passing over in silence certain questions raised by the French reply of the 16th of June, desire apparently to intimate that they see no objection on principle thereto, but wish only to reserve their right to discuss the points of details. The French Government are happy to note that the German Government do not seek to subordinate the conclusion of a pact of security to a modification of the provisions of the treaty of peace.

The German Government, however, twice draw attention to the eventual possibility of concluding agreements under which the existing treaties might be adapted to changed circumstances and invoke, moreover, certain provisions of the covenant.

They also suggest a hypothesis of modification of the conditions of the Rhineland occupation.

Insist on Adherence to Treaty.

The French Government are well aware of the provisions of the treaty to which the German note makes reference. Nor, in their respect for international undertakings, have they any intention of evading any provisions of the covenant. They would, however, remind the German Government that the covenant is itself primarily founded on scrupulous respect for treaties which form the basis of public law in Europe, and it defines as the first condition of the entry of a State into the League of Nations the sincere intention on the part of that State to observe its international obligations.

In agreement with their allies, the French Government consider the Treaty of Peace and the rights which Germany as well as the Allies possess thereunder must not be impaired, nor can the guarantees of its execution and the provisions which govern the application of these guarantees [and in certain cases contemplate their alleviation] be modified by proposed agreements any more than the treaty itself can be modified.

However liberal the spirit, however pacific the intentions with which France is ready to guide the present negotiations, she cannot surrender her rights, and it is for this reason that the French note of the sixteenth of June specified that the security pact could not "affect the provisions of the treaty relative to the occupation of the Rhineland nor the execution of the conditions laid down in relation thereto in the Rhineland Agreement."

The French Government, however, hereby renew, so far as they are concerned, the declaration already made by them to the effect that they intend scrupulously to observe their obligations.

Germany in League the Only Basis.

The Allies are convinced that membership in the League of Nations would provide Germany, once she entered the League, with the most efficacious method of establishing her requirements as other States have done in regard to their own interests. The entry of Germany into the League of Nations is the only solid basis of a mutual guarantee and a European agreement. It is not, in fact from the outside that a State can properly express the reservations, which would thus assume the character of conditions. It is from within that it can submit its wishes to the Council in exercise of the right common to all States that are members of the League.

It is thus with regret that we have read the reservation in the German note declaring the question of Germany's entry into the League of Nations required to be further elucidated on the ground that the note dated thirteenth of March, 1925, from the Council of the League of Nations had not, according to the German Government, removed their objections.

The French Government are not qualified to speak in the name of the League of Nations. The Council, having had before them the reservations formulated by Germany, have acquainted the German Government with their decision. This decision was based on the principle of the equality between nations, the equality which implies that neither exception nor privilege favor any one of them.

So far as they are concerned the allied Governments can only adhere to their former statements and repeat that the entry of Germany into the League of Nations under the same conditions as are prescribed for everybody remains in their opinion the basis of any understanding on security.

It is precisely the absence of such security which has hitherto blocked the initiation of that process of general disarmament which was provided for in the Covenant and to which the German note alludes.

Object to Treaty Reservations.

The German Government have formulated certain reservations regarding the scope and character of the arbitral conventions to be concluded between Germany, on the one hand, and, on the other, either France or Belgium, the signatories of the Rhineland pact, or Germany's other neighbors, signatories of the Treaty of Versailles.

These reservations are of such a nature as to limit the obligatory character of these conventions by conforming them to the treaties arbitration which Germany has already concluded with some of her neighbors. These treaties imply resort in all cases to a permanent conciliation board, but the actual arbitral settlement provided for thereunder, while applying to the generality of cases, does not cover the most important, that is, those of a political nature, which are precisely those most liable to lead to war.

By such a procedure the provisions of the original German memorandum of the ninth of February, 1925, which contemplated the conclusion of the arbitration treaties should guarantee the peaceful solution of political as well as juridical disputes, would be dangerously restricted.

In the opinion of the Allies the arbitration convention thus limited in that it would not apply to all disputes between the limitrophe powers would not be of sufficient value as a guarantee of peace, as it would still leave open certain opportunities for war.

Our primary object is to render impossible, under the conditions formulated on the sixteenth of June, any fresh resort to force. We feel that this object can only be attained by means of some obligatory pacific settlement applying to all issues which may arise. In our opinion the principle of compulsory arbitration, thus conceived, is an indispensable condition for any pact of the nature proposed by the German Government in the note of the ninth of February.

As to Guarantee of Arbitration.

The apprehensions which the German Government betrays on the subject of the guarantee of the Arbitration Convention will scarcely withstand objective criticism. Under the system contemplated, the guarantor does not decide autocratically and unilaterally who is the aggressor.

The aggressor defines himself by the very fact that instead of submitting it to pacific solution he resorts to arms or violates either a frontier, or, in the case of the Rhine, the demilitarized zone.

It is obvious that the guarantor, who will have the greatest interest in preventing such violations from whichever side they come will at the first sign of danger be sure to exercise all his influence for that purpose.

Moreover, it will be the business of the limitrophe States themselves to see to it that this system of guarantee, conceived for their mutual protection, does not work to their disadvantage.

As for the system of guaranteeing the Arbitration Convention, it proceeds directly from the idea which was pronounced consistent with the spirit of the covenant by the Assembly of the League of Nations at its last session in Geneva.

It would not seem impossible to establish provisions adapting the operation of the guarantee [whoever be the guarantor and whether the guarantee applies to frontiers or to arbitration] to the nature of the violation and to the circumstances and the degree of urgency which might necessitate the immediate execution of this guarantee.

In this connection, an examination might be made whether some means could not be found safeguarding the impartiality of decisions come to without diminishing the immediate and efficacious operation of the guarantee itself.

Summary on Three German Points.

To sum up on the three essential points of the German note of the 20th of July, 1925, the French Government is agreement with their allies, and without claiming to evade the legitimate application of any of the provisions of the Covenant of the League of Nations, can only confirm their earlier remarks on the need for scrupulous respect of the treaties.

They are not qualified to discuss the questions concerning the admission of Germany into the League of Nations, on which the Council of the League will have to come to a decision.

Finally, they trust that the proposed guarantees are capable of being laid down in terms both just and reasonable and as such will not expose them to interpretations and applications which may be improper and unjustified.

The French Government, in agreement with their allies, are conscious of the difficulties and of the delays involved in the continuation by the exchange of notes of the negotiations on such delicate questions. It is for this reason, while again drawing attention to their note of the sixteenth of June, they confine themselves to these general observations without going into further details.

Such are the preliminary explanations which the French Government have to offer. They are tendered in all sincerity and their purpose is to remove all possibility of misunderstanding. The French Government, in agreement with their allies, have now the honor to invite the German Government to enter into negotiations on this basis—negotiations which they for their part earnestly trust will result in the conclusion of a definitive treaty.

Overshadowed by Debt Decision.

When the French reply to the German note on security was given out this afternoon here, with M. Caillaux and Winston Churchill reaching their unexpected conclusion on the debt question, it attracted little attention.

The Daily News, however, thinks much the best feature of the note is its invitation to oral discussion. It has long been delayed, it says, and half of the difficulties and misunderstandings of late years have been due to the futile attempts to discuss delicate controversial points in intermittent diplomatic correspondence.

The Daily News approves of the note as a whole, though it thinks the German objections to entering the League of Nations were skated round rather than answered, and adds:

"The wisest course for Germany under the present circumstances undoubtedly is to accept the invitation extended to her and join the League."

GERMANY FAVORS PROPOSAL.

Government Approves French Plea to End Notes and Start Negotiation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—In a lengthy declaration issued in the press tonight the German Government approved of the allied proposal for an immediate conference of juridical experts on the legal aspects of the security compact preceding a formal and decisive conclave of the statesmen and powers concerned.

The Cabinet's decision, which was cabled to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, does not cover the question of whether the Premiers as well as the Foreign Ministers shall participate in the final deliberations. The German official statement leaves this point in abeyance, a separate communiqué merely recording the fact that the suggestion made by the allied diplomatic representatives here called for the meeting of Foreign Ministers only.

The statement handed to the press simultaneously with the text of the French note constituted for the most part the Luther Cabinet's commentary on this document. Complete accord with the French thesis that verbal discussion should take the place of written communications in subsequent security negotiations is formulated. From the start it is emphasized that the problem confronting the European statesmen is "the form and substance of the security compact to be concluded in the West," these last two words being pointedly repeated in the next sentence of the declaration.

In accepting the juridical parley idea, the German Government observes that this proposal involves only informatory deliberations on the jurists' part and not the actual drafting of the proposed agreement, which can be carried out only with the collaboration of politically responsible authorities.

Of the note as a whole the statement welcomes "its less rigid tone," but says that at first sight it is difficult to tell whether it represents a substantial approach to the German standpoint since its individual phrases can be construed "either optimistically or pessimistically."

Germany, her Government declares, cannot accept the French view that her non-membership in the League of Nations gave ground for not undertaking a general disarmament, but the Reich stresses the present Allied position that Germany's entry into the League would make the performance of this obligation the immediate task of the League. The statement continues:

"The French note directs Germany to apply to the League itself as regards her reservations about entering the League and refers to the exchange of communications on the subject between the League authorities and Germany.

"Technically, it is doubtless correct that this question must be solved between the League and Germany. But France and her allies dispose of a decisive influence in the League. Germany believes that it may expect that this influence may yet be used to satisfy Germany's justifiable wishes in the question of the German standpoint toward actual equality.

"Germany demands for herself no special rights, but asks that for all peoples who are in the same situation as Germany the factor of their general disarmament or the factor of their geographical and economic position be taken decisively into account.

"Germany has no intention of damaging the stipulations of the League whereby every nation's entry must take place unconditionally. But just as those powers represented in the League Council have declared themselves ready to support in the case of Germany's entry into the League her representation in the Council and the Secretariat, so does it rest within their power to bind themselves to overcome the features of Article 16 objectionable to Germany."

It is specified further in the German declaration that no distinction must be made by the League against States defeated in the war, as for instance, through the proposed League supervision of German armaments; that no recognition of war guilt must be demanded of the Reich and that "Germany must be admitted to a share in the colonial mandates in the same measure as other nations who have possessed themselves of this right."

The German Government finally insists that to meet the conciliatory standpoint under which the security negotiations must be conducted, the evacuation of the Cologne Zone must be carried out forthwith, independently of "the few remaining issues" still existing between the Allies and Germany relative to her disarmament.

PLEA TO USE ARMS HALTS CHINA PEACE

STRIFE HELPS AMERICANS

Our Exemption From Strikes and Boycotts Is Attributed to Our Friendly Policy.

By THOMAS F. MILLARD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 26.—Some ominous tendencies lately have been creeping into the developments of the international aspects of the China situation, which, unless checked, probably will prolong the impasse or else cause military and naval action.

These are focused now on the Hongkong-Canton embroglio, which is affecting the entire British position and attitude toward the bulk of China questions.

British bodies in Hongkong, also some British publications elsewhere in China, are advocating that Britain take military action, by international cooperation if possible, but otherwise separately, to compel the lifting of the Canton embargo on British trade and shipping and restore her treaty rights at that port.

That would be tantamount to intervention. Using force to compel the Chinese to observe treaties and reopen ports to foreign commerce would revive the method whereby foreign trade was introduced here and would revert to the old-time policy. And if one nation acts that way it will participate a crisis that would involve the American policy and have incalculable results.

Such an action, if taken at Canton, would in principle apply to all of China, and hardly could be prevented from extending and drawing in all the principal Pacific Ocean powers. A gesture toward intervention now would completely wreck the prospect of action in any conferences to settle important matters.

Chinese Blame the British.

The Chinese press accuses the British of trying to cause an armed clash for the purpose of causing intervention and to ruin prospects of treaty revision. Meanwhile other powers are using conciliation separately to settle their troubles.

The Japanese have adjusted matters and obtained the lifting of the strikes and boycott in Shanghai and North Central China. These moves to extend the isolation of the British make their position conspicuous and more difficult. The British here are disposed to attribute the existing situation to the alleged failure of other powers to back her up in a firm policy in dealing with the disorders. Such criticisms illustrate a wide divergence in the attitudes and policies of the leading Governments; also the deep differences of opinions among the foreigners here which must be composed before real cooperation is possible.

The latest strikes in Shanghai and elsewhere are more economic than political. The strikers perceive that the time is favorable to obtain their demands. However, the shipping strike is political in character and is being kept up.

American Publicity Is Asked.

The practical exemption of Americans from strikes and boycotts, benefiting us commercially from the situation, causes much international irritation and accusations that we are not playing the game. These results are inevitable and are not caused by any effort of Americans here or in Washington to turn the situation to our advantage, but are the logical results of the pursuance of our traditional policy. It would help if Washington gave out more publicity in regard to its moves as to China and the reasons actuating its present attitude.

Interest here is turning toward the prospects of the conferences in Peking, commencing in October. It seems apparent that the proposed judicial inquiry into the Shanghai shootings will be abandoned, because the Chinese decline to participate, but the local British press insists that the inquiry be held anyhow on purpose to clear the reputation of the Shanghai settlement before the world, which, it alleges, is besmirched by false propaganda.

Conference Dispute Expected.

Preliminary moves for the coming conference indicate on the part of China an intention to enlarge its scope to include all important national questions. On the part of certain powers it is their intention to prevent that and confine the conference to tariff revision. Washington's attitude is one of willingness to extend the agenda to discuss everything that pleases the Chinese, who, whoever, still fear the influence of other powers to change the Washington viewpoint.

If the conference is not broadened, it would seem impossible to obtain nationwide support and approval in China.

In that event it is probable that Central and South China would refuse to cooperate and would denounce the treaties so signed. The Chinese press and political leaders are inclining to build their hopes on the conference, provided the agenda includes the important national questions.

EXPECT HOWARD TO GO FREE.

Greene and Consul Say Bandits Will Soon Release Him.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—Dr. Harvey J. Howard, the American captured by Chinese bandits on July 20, is expected here to be released and to return to Fuchin within ten days.

Roger S. Greene, representative of the Rockefeller Foundation at Fuchin, has advised Consul Samuel Sokobin at Harbin that Chinese army officials will meet the bandits' demands.

Consul Sokobin reported receipt of the message from Mr. Greene to the State Department today, adding that Yu, chief of General Teng's staff, on Aug. 22 was en route to the bandits' camp where Dr. Howard is held "with authorization to meet their demands for the release" of Howard.

The bandits demanded that part of the hand to which they belong and which now is located in the vicinity of Ya Tang Ho should be admitted into the Chinese army.

HARBIN, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Manchurian bandits who are holding Dr. Harvey J. Howard have taken their prisoner by boat up the Hwachwan River to a point 250 miles from Fuchin, in the Manchurian Province of Holungkiang.

TWO SLAIN, FOUR HURT IN SHANGHAI RIOTING

Chinese Police Fire Into Dockyard Workers Demanding Release of Comrades.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 26 (AP).—Two persons were killed when Chinese police today fired into a crowd of dockyard workers who were besieging the police station and demanding the release of four arrested workmen. Four of the besiegers were wounded.

The workmen held by the police had been arrested for assaulting a coolie. The crowd which gathered about the police station numbered about 1,300. The first efforts of the police to disperse the gathering were greeted with cries of derision.

Shots fired into the air failed to intimidate the dockworkers, whereupon the police turned their guns against the front ranks.

HIGHTSTOWN FIRE ENDANGERS BLOCK

Several Jersey Towns Send Aid as Flames Sweep Seven Buildings—No One Is Hurt.

HIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Aug. 27.—Fire swept the business section on the Main Street of Hightstown early this morning, levelling a row of two-story buildings and doing damage estimated at more than $200,000. Firemen from this town, Princeton, Cranbury and Freehold fought from 1 o'clock on in a futile effort to check the blaze which threatened to destroy the entire block. No one was injured. At 3 o'clock this morning, the flames were not under control and the Baptist Church was threatened.

The fire started in the Hightstown Hardware Company from some undetermined cause and, fed by stores of varnish and oils in the plant, raced through the structure. A retail gasoline station near-by caught fire from sparks and exploded, spreading the blaze.

Within an hour, despite the efforts of the Hightstown firemen, the flames were communicated to the Chamberlin building, housing the Brook Brothers clothing establishment on the north, and the Dewes Building, housing the Weller Clear Store and dwelling on the south. Weller and his wife escaped to the street.

The Hightstown Candy Kitchen next to the Weller Shop and the pool parlor and billiard room conducted by Ed Ralph, were next in the path of the flames. The Dey Building, where plumbers' supplies are manufactured, was next.

don't want to talk to them under any conditions."

Each side insisted that it had nothing to do with the shootings in the preceding two days. Each group insisted that it knew of no motive for the revival of the activities of the tong gunmen in this and other cities, and Mr. Gould, in declaring his belief that the trouble was not due to the Hip Sing leaders, admitted that, although he is the local Hip Sing lawyer, there are many things that his clients do not reveal to him about their tong affairs.

The two detective captains had made no progress in their efforts at mediation up to 4 o'clock when Archipoli slipped out of Police Headquarters and drove toward the Criminal Courts Building, four blocks south on Centre Street. He returned in about half an hour, and in another half hour, when detectives escorted the Hip Sing leaders out of the building to an automobile, it was announced that at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon both groups of Chinese would appear in the office of Acting District Attorney Pecora, who would undertake another effort to bring peace to the warring tongs.

Archipoli, it developed, had appealed to Mr. Pecora to take a hand in the move to end the feud, and had imparted some line of procedure, which was withheld, through which the prosecutor might persuade the rival tong leaders that hostilities should be ended.

The On Leong Tong leaders were escorted out of Police Headquarters ten minutes after the leaders of the rival tong had been driven off in the direction of Chinatown. Detectives seated themselves beside them in the automobile which took them away.

A report was spread around Police Headquarters soon after the departure of the second group that both sides had agreed to a cessation of hostilities, at least until after the conference with Mr. Pecora. Some of those who had participated in the efforts to bring about peace denied that any such promise had been made by either side.

The Hip Sing leaders, it was said, consented "to do all that is in our power" to stop shootings between members of the two tongs, but in the manner in which they made this promise it was recognized that they held out little hope that such a truce could be brought about by them. The On Leong Tong representatives sullenly consented to a similar undertaking, but indicated that ill-feeling between the rival tong members had reached such a state that men of much higher station than themselves in their tong were the only persons who could bring about such a result.

Business Men Urge Peace.

In the meantime officers of the Chinese Merchants' Association, the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association and the Chinese Chamber of Commerce in this city had been exerting every influence through members of their organizations in different parts of the country to check the further spread of killings and maimings by tong gunmen. The members of these three organizations are not affiliated with either tong.

On Tuesday night the Chinese Chamber of Commerce held a meeting in its headquarters at 16 Mott Street, at which it was agreed to send communications to the leaders of both tongs in this city, urging them to consent to the signing of a new peace agreement and thus end further bloodshed. No reply was received from either the Hip Sings or the On Leongs up to a late hour last night.

Word that the communications would be ignored reached the officers of the Chamber of Commerce early yesterday afternoon, and then a new move was decided on. Telegrams were sent to Su Ho Soon, National President of the On Leong Tong, and Lee Gee Ming, International Secretary of that body, both of whom were in Detroit, urging them to come to this city immediately and aid Chinese merchants throughout the country in bringing about a peace compact with the Hip Sing Tong.

It was reported that a telegram was received late in the afternoon from Lee saying that Su and he were starting for this city and expected to arrive this forenoon. The merchants in Chinatown said later that, while the trip of the two high figures in On Leong Tong affairs might not result in a favorable outcome, it was the most comforting report received up to that time in connection with the renewal of the tong war.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 26.—With seven Chinese under arrest in connection with the murder today of Louie Kwong, an On Leong tongsman, detectives searched every Chinese rendezvous in the city for Frank Lee, who is said to have driven the car in which the murderer escaped.

Kwong's death is the fifth to be reported in Eastern and Midwestern cities in the last two days in the renewal of hostilities between the On Leong and Hip Sing tongs. The police think a Hip Sing gunman shot Kwong in his restaurant on Druid Hill Avenue early this morning.

Charlie Lee, cook in the restaurant, told the police that two Chinese, whose names he did not know, came into the restaurant and ordered a meal. Lee retired to the kitchen, he said, to prepare the dish. He heard shots and ran back into the room to see Kwong as the policemen had found him. The two late diners had fled.

Persons drawn to the scene later noted queer characters scrawled in chalk on one of the panels of the door.

Kwong came to Baltimore several months ago from San Francisco and set himself up in business, Charlie Lee, the cook, said.

GUNMEN RAID CHINESE SHOP.

Bind Laundryman and Ransack Place—Tong Hirelings Suspected.

Lo Min, a Chinese laundryman seeking a place of business, wondered a fortnight ago why Jack Lum, proprietor of the laundry at 535 East 184th Street, was so anxious to sell the shop for $1,200 when it seemed to be worth $2,000, but he bought it, took in washing and made a satisfactory profit until last night.

Then, while Lo sat in the rear of his shop smoking a peaceful pipe, three white men entered with pistols, bound and gagged him, threw him on a cot and set the place upside down seeking something. The last place they searched was the cash drawer, whence they took Lee's gold watch and $62 in cash. Then they left hurriedly.

Lo was unable to talk when he ran next door to 531 and got George Kuhn to untie him. He was unable also to tell the police summoned by Mr. Kuhn anything more than that he had been robbed. He denied he was a member of the On Leong or the Hip Sing tong. The police believe the gunmen were hired by one of the tongs to search the shop for something owned by Jack Lum. Later a guard was placed at the door of every Chinese laundry and restaurant in the Bronx.

MINE HEADS AGREE TO NEW PEACE MOVE

pension on Sept. 1, 1925, we are willing to renew the negotiations with the representatives of the mine workers looking toward a new agreement, provided you can arrange a conference and provided further it is distinctly understood that we have not agreed to abandon our opposition to the check-off and wage increases, both of which we are willing to consider fully, but both of which we now believe to be unsound and unwarranted.

Chairman Uhl, in opening the meeting with the Anthracite Operators' Negotiating Committee this afternoon, said that his committee met the mine union officials at Hazleton yesterday, and had asked for a resumption of negotiations without conditions. He quoted Mr. Lewis as saying that if the operators "withdraw their statements on record in the conference that they will yield nothing and reject everything that disturbs the factor of mine cost, then there can be negotiations."

He then asked Chairman Inglis of the operators, "regardless of any statement heretofore made by either party, may we have your assurance that you will resume negotiations at once with the United Mine Workers of America on the basis that the points at issue will be reconsidered on their merits?"

Mr. Inglis read the following reply, drawn up by the Operators' Negotiating Committee this morning:

Answering your questions as to the attitude of the operators toward further negotiations with the mine workers for a new contract:

We have always desired, and we now desire, that negotiations be carried to a conclusion. During the negotiations begun July 10 the miners' representatives occupied the major part of three weeks in pressing part of their demands. Their argument had not been completed—several demands not having been discussed at all—when the conferences were abruptly terminated by the miners before the operators had formally answered the miners' arguments. We had prepared data as to employes' earnings, labor cost of production, the menace of competition, and other matters, which we had no proper opportunity to present.

Recalls Miners' Rebuff.

On Aug. 3, the possibility of a deadlock being apparent, the Chairman of the Anthracite Operators' Conference proposed in writing:

1.—That, regardless of the course the negotiations may take, there shall be no suspension of anthracite production.

2.—That as to any matters upon which we are unable to agree prior to Sept. 1, such matters shall be referred for determination to a board of impartial persons.

This proposal was rejected and the conferences were discontinued by the miners on the ground that further meetings were useless unless we were ready to grant the miners' demands. We were advised in writing by the miners' spokesman: "I will be glad to hear from you when you abandon this position," when we should withdraw our opposition to increased wages, the check-off and other demands. This we are unwilling to do.

Our minds are not closed to meritorious demands of any kind and we are prepared to discuss fully such demands, but we are not willing to withdraw opposition to demands which we regard as being without reason or substantial merit.

As to the needs of the immediate situation, we are thoroughly in accord with your desire to avoid a suspension. To that end we renew our proposal that, pending the results of further effort to draw up a new contract, the operators and miners agree that there shall be no cessation of operations. We see no good reason why there should be a strike or suspension while efforts are being made to negotiate a new agreement.

We appreciate your efforts to avoid a suspension and hope that you will continue these efforts, in which you may be assured of our full cooperation.

Basis Seen for Hope.

The members of the Citizens' Committee discussed this first reply and then suggested a more specific one because they were in doubt as to the exact meaning of the first. The operators retired for half an hour and then returned with the second, which started Mr. Uhl off in pursuit of Mr. Lewis.

The eleventh hour flicker of hope in the Citizens' Committee was fanned by the fact that the final statement by the operators did not reiterate their oft-repeated declaration that they would not consider any demand that might disturb the factor of mine costs.

Chairman Inglis and his associates on the operators' sub-committee hurried to catch a train for Philadelphia in order to be on hand tomorrow morning at a meeting of the Joint Conciliation Board to be held in the offices of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal & Iron Co.

The Conciliation Board, which consists of six mine workers and six operators will go through certain routine business that has accumulated, and as the final order of business will discuss the question of keeping the pump men and other maintenance men at work in the mines when the strike order goes into effect on Tuesday.

It is reported that the mine union leaders will ask the operators to promise that the maintenance men will be kept on duty during the entire period of idleness. This demand is said to be based on the ground that in previous strikes the anthracite companies replaced some of their maintenance men with monthly salary men from their clerical and office forces after the strike had been in effect a short time.

After the meeting of the Conciliation Board the miners will return to their headquarters in the Bellevue Stratford Hotel and issue the strike order which was tentatively drawn up yesterday in Hazleton.

COOLIDGE STUDIES DISPUTE.

But Will Not Act Until Great Suffering Is Threatened.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 26.—With evidence accumulating that the disputes between operators and miners will not be amicably settled and a strike averted, President Coolidge gave no indication today of the policy the Government will pursue after a strike occurs.

His program at present is to place the responsibility for settlement of wage differences upon the employer and employe. He holds that the Administration has no concern with the relations between capital and labor as to wage scales. Until a hard-coal strike has continued so long as to threaten a scarcity of fuel and great suffering it is believed President Coolidge will do nothing. Even then, when a public calamity is approaching, he has no legal power to compel the operation of the mines and cannot legally seize them for Government operation.

While he is preserving a "stand-off" attitude at present, President Coolidge is gathering all the information he can about the coal situation. He has conferred with mining engineers lately and today saw John J. Storrow, who was Fuel Administrator for New England during the war.

"I believe that this is the best time a strike could happen," Mr. Storrow said. "Capital is ready for it and the public is better prepared with a larger surplus of hard coal than at any other time."

Mr. Storrow declared there would not be the suffering in the event of a strike there was two years ago. He explained that the railroads and ships were in a better position today to transport substitutes to those sections most greatly affected by the cutting off of their hard coal supply; that there was a greater amount of coal in storage than during any previous coal difficulty, and that it was easier now to get the consumer to use substitutes than in years past.

Mr. Storrow said he would favor seeing the operators and miners fight out their differences right now and get it over with for all time rather than have their controversy come up every two or three years, because the country is fairly well able to meet a cessation of coal operation, at least for a reasonable period. Mr. Storrow while with the President discussed business conditions generally and railroads and a variety of domestic subjects, as well as the coal question. He said he told the President that the banking house he was associated with had reports to the effect that business was good generally throughout the country.

SEES SOFT COAL GAINING.

Trade Review Says Anthracite Exhibits Unwonted Calm.

The threat of an anthracite strike Sept. 1 cast a lengthening shadow over the coal markets of the country last week, says The Coal Age weekly review. To the bituminous producers it was a friendly shadow, quickening demand and adding a firmer undertone to current prices, according to the review, which continues:

"The influence, of course, was most strongly marked in the movement of soft coals suitable for domestic consumption, where the combination of the strike threat and the seasonal pick-up in that branch of the trade was felt over the territory from the Canadian border to Alabama and from Utah and the Continental Divide eastward to the Atlantic Ocean.

"In the face of the complete suspension set for next week, the anthracite market has been exhibiting unwonted calm. The skyrocketing prices which have featured offers of independent coals in past crises are absent. The few attempts made to capitalize unduly on the situation have been effectively discouraged. Such speculative movement as exists seems to be centred in New York Harbor, where certain shippers are holding loaded boats for further advances in prices.

"Bituminous output for the week ended Aug. 15 is estimated at 10,244,000 net tons, as compared with 9,971,100 tons the week preceding. Anthracite production again declined, dropping from 2,061,000 to 1,904,000 net tons.

MINES TOP 1925 RECORDS.

Hazleton Anthracite Field Sends 921 Cars to Market in Day.

HAZLETON, Pa., Aug. 26 (AP).—The thirty-seven anthracite mines on the Hazleton and Mahanoy division of the Lehigh Valley Railroad broke all 1923 records yesterday when 921 cars of coal were sent to market, according to figures given out today. This approaches the maximum tonnage produced during the World War.

With the wage agreement between the miners and operators expiring Aug. 31, demand was strong for fuel and the output from now until the end of the month is expected to be exceptionally heavy.

DEMAND FOR SOFT COAL RISES.

Production Also Gaining in Central Pennsylvania Field.

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 26 (AP).—Due to the possibility of suspension of work in the hard coal regions, the demand for soft coal in the Central Pennsylvania region is stronger now than it has been since early in the present year. Inquiries are being made from all points of consumption, and production is increasing.

The loadings in the Central Pennsylvania field for the week ending Aug. 22 were 15,828 cars, as compared with 13,819 cars for the week of Aug. 15. The loadings for the month to Aug. 22 were 42,001 cars, as compared with 37,054 cars for the same period of July.

Coal Prices Rise in Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—Leading coal dealers in Boston announced increases of 25 cents a ton in the price of anthracite today, bringing the price to $14.25 for stove sizes, $15 for nut, and $15.15 for egg. The advance brings the price nearly to the levels reached during the shortage in 1922.

The Greater Hotel St. George Puts Balloon Tires On Living!

MANY substantial business men of Lower and Mid-Manhattan are swinging to the St. George as their permanent home. A number of them have taken up residence here, thus avoiding lengthy travel to and from business as well as servant problems and every other bother incident to maintaining a house or apartment.

They like its new 400-room addition recently opened—the faultless taste of its design and furnishings and the thorough-going comfort of its public and private rooms.

They like its smooth service—without any servant problems.

They like its moderate prices—proof that experienced management can achieve an economical price-scale.

The St. George has met a rising demand for en suite accommodations by preparing a number of most attractive two-room suites high up in the New Addition.

Two connecting single rooms provide a delightful sitting room and a bed room of ample size to accommodate two day-beds. Suites of a single and double or two doubles also are available.

2 single rooms . . . $46 per wk.
1 single & 1 double. $55 per wk.
2 double rooms. . . $68 per wk.

Very fine single rooms are available at $23, $25 and $27. Splendid double rooms from $32. All rates substantially lower on yearly lease.

Decorations throughout are of the best quality and represent the most cultured taste. The bed-living room idea, an innovation of ours which has become very popular, is employed.

All suites have one or two private tiled baths and very generous closet space. They are open to the finest light and air and a number of them afford an unmatched direct view of New York Bay and Lower Manhattan.

Plenty of reasonable garage space within a block. Amusements, stores and churches of all denominations are very near.

We extend a cordial invitation to visit and inspect the Greater Hotel St. George at any time. Further details are given in the most unusual booklet ever issued by a hotel property—"Home Through the Ages". A new edition has just been printed and a gratis copy will be mailed immediately on request.

FEDERAL OFFICIALS THINK STRIKE SURE

Belief That Fight Will Be Long Is Expressed as Davis Returns to Capital.

NO INTENTION TO INTERFERE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Following the return to Washington today of Secretary of Labor Davis, who has jurisdiction over the Division of Conciliation, the only Federal agency that has authority to mediate in industrial disputes such as now prevail in the anthracite coal fields, it became known that the Administration has reached the conclusion that the miners will go on strike on Sept. 1, and reports from official observers in the field are to the effect that the fight between the operators and the workers is likely to be prolonged.

Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, who has closely watched the negotiations instituted with a view to averting a strike, expressed the view today that the pending exchanges would fail of their purpose and that Sept. 1 would witness a walk-out. Senator Reed believes that if the strike eventuates it will be long continued and probably be the most determined struggle between capital and labor that has ever been waged in the anthracite coal fields.

Federal officials declare that for some time at least a strike would not result in serious hardship, although they admit that a walk-out undoubtedly would result in an immediate rise in prices. Their reports indicate that there is an adequate supply of coal on hand to last until Dec. 1. By that time it is hoped the troubles in the Pennsylvania coal fields will be over.

President Coolidge will not intervene in the coal fight, according to Senator Reed. The Pennsylvania Senator does not believe that there is anything in the situation at present that would warrant the President informally taking steps to persuade the operators and the miners to compose their differences. It was stated, further, today in an official quarter that the Division of Conciliation will not move in the matter unless called upon to do so by one or both parties to the controversy. Secretary Davis was today in conference with officials of the Division of Conciliation in respect to the threatened strike, but with what result could not be learned.

It is understood that the developments in the coal fields that marked his absence in Europe were outlined to him at length. Secretary Davis declined to comment on the peace negotiations now in progress, except to express the hope that a strike would be avoided.

Figures made public today by the Department of Commerce show heavy exports of anthracite and bituminous coal and coke in July. Total exports of anthracite during the month were 462,676 tons, compared with 313,585 tons in June. The July exports were the heaviest monthly shipments since June, 1921, and the second highest since August, 1920. Total exports of bituminous coal in July amounted to 1,648,895 long tons, the heaviest exports of any month since September, 1923. In June overseas shipments of bituminous coal aggregated 1,435,973 tons, and in May they were 1,356,933 tons.

Deputy Sheriff Escorts United Mine Workers From Logan, W. Va.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 26.—A Deputy Sheriff escorted Van A. Bittner and other United Mine Workers of America officials out of Logan today. The party went there yesterday from Charleston and was served with a permanent injunction granted in 1924 by Judge Robert Bland prohibiting attempts by the United Mine Workers to organize non-union mines in the Logan district.

Two committees called on members of the Bittner party at their hotel and advised them to leave Logan because of the feeling that their presence was "not for the good of the community." One committee was of members of the Chamber of Commerce and the other of leading Republicans.

It was against Logan County that the armed march of miners was directed in 1921, which march brought on an industrial war that was not ended until United States troops took charge.

In the Bittner party were E. E. Pauck, Indianapolis, and T. C. Townsend of Charleston, counsel for the union, and John O'Leary of Pittsburgh.

Reports received here failed to state the destination of the party after leaving Logan. The union officials, riding in a big touring car with a Deputy Sheriff on one of the seats, were reported headed toward Charleston.

FLAGG FORFEITS BAIL.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 26.—"James M. Flagg!" called Judge James F. Brown in Police Court today while hearing cases of motor law infractions, and a man in the rear of the room shouted, "Here!"

"What is the name of this defendant?" asked the Court.

"James Montgomery Flagg."

"Occupation?"

"Artist and author."

"How old are you?"

"I am 26 years old."

"How long has the defendant been driving an automobile?"

"Nineteen years."

There was silence in the court room and Judge Brown stared sternly at the speaker.

"Do you mean," he asked, "to tell me you have been driving an automobile since you were 7 years old?"

"No your Honor, but the defendant, James Montgomery Flagg, has been driving for nineteen years. He is 47 years old. I am Phillip Denlon. My age is 26 and I am an attorney of 5 Nassau Street, New York. Mr. Flagg asked me to appear for him."

And Mr. Donlon pleaded guilty for Mr. Flagg to the charge of speeding at thirty-five miles an hour in Elizabeth last Saturday and agreed to forfeit $10 bond for his client's appearance tomorrow because, he said, Mr. Flagg was in Maine.

OLYMPIC PASSENGER WON $6,000 ON TRIP

New Yorker's Wagers at Baccarat Ran to $1,000 on Turn of Card—Pools Net $2,000.

Two of the 602 first-cabin passengers arriving yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg on the White Star liner Olympic who attracted attention on the voyage were John McKeon, who won two pools on the ship's run and at baccarat, and Harry G. Martin, who boarded the liner at the French port without a ticket and was detained yesterday until a check for $500.50 had been sent by the lawyers for his father, C. G. Martin, a retired real estate operator, to release him. Both are New Yorkers.

Mr. McKeon was described by Joseph A. Shepherd the purser of the Olympic, as a "lucky banker." He explained that he did not mean the men who pull on big oars to move lighters around the harbor, but the dilettante who drifts along and everything comes his way. Two voyages ago, the officer added, McKeon went east on the ship and won three pools on the day's run which netted him $7,500. On this voyage he won $2,000 on two pools and the rest at baccarat, where the stakes were as high as $1,000 on the turn of a card.

McKeon bet $500 that the run for the liner on the following day at noon would be above 585 miles or under 535. This was a big risk, the purser said, because most of her runs were between those numbers. She did 528 and McKeon won.

It was purely a question of luck and taking a chance that caused him to win the pool fourteen times in eighteen trips, McKeon said. There could be no possibility of any one getting a clue to the total of the day's run beforehand, Captain William Marshall, the master, said, because he did not know it himself until he had computed it after taking the sun at noon. The pool was always sold on the previous evening after dinner.

Harry G. Martin said that he came on the Olympic without a ticket because a friend on board had promised to advance him the money before reaching New York, but decided later not to do so.

NO REPLY ON BRIDGE TOLLS.

Pinchot Fails to Answer Jersey Board's Joint Meeting Plea.

No reply had been received yesterday by the New Jersey Interstate Bridge and Tunnel Commission to its letter sent on Tuesday to Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, requesting that a special meeting of the Delaware River Joint Bridge Commission be called within ten days. Governor Pinchot is Chairman of the Joint Commission.

Recently the Pennsylvania Legislature acted to make the bridge now under construction between Camden and Philadelphia, at a cost of $36,000,000, toll free. In New Jersey this action caused considerable resentment. In the letter, signed by Theodore Boettger, Chairman of the New Jersey Interstate Bridge and Tunnel Commission, it is pointed out that New Jersey entered into the building of the bridge with the understanding that tolls would be collected to pay for the cost of the structure.

It is also pointed out in the letter that New Jersey, in its legislation authorizing issuance of bonds to pay for the bridge, expressly provided for the collection of tolls.

SYRIAN CITY REPORTED IN HANDS OF REBELS

Jebel Druse Tribesmen Are Said to Have Taken Deir-ez-Zor—Anti-French Move Spreads.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (AP).—An Exchange Telegraph message from Cairo reports that the French garrison at Deir-ez-Zor, an important city of Syria, on the right bank of the Euphrates River, has been captured by the rebellious Jebel Druse tribesmen.

The message says that the rebellion of the Druse tribesmen against the French régime in Syria is spreading.

Deir-ez-Zor, a city of 20,000 population, is in the territory of Aleppo, one of the five districts of the French mandate area of Syria. It is about 200 miles northeast of Damascus and about 200 miles from the place where the Jebel Druse rebellion had its origin. It is in the centre of a district peopled mostly by Arab nomads, but it is singularly European in appearance, with macadamized streets.

GREENWICH ROBBERS FAIL.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 26.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the safe in the railroad station here early this morning, while the general store and post office in Riverside, a suburb of Greenwich, was entered and a half dozen razor blades taken. The store was conducted by Samuel Lowden, postmaster.

Four youths arrested in Sound Beach early this morning are held on suspicion. A heavy charge of nitro-glycerine was used to remove the safe door, but the thieves were unable to get at the money.

SAYS WESTERN 'HICKS' INFLUENCE BIG CITIES

British 'Investigator' Also Tells of the 'Flummery' Airs of Hollywood.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—One of the oddest historical curiosities in the modern world of democracy is that the opinions and culture of the American Middle Western "hicks" largely determine what happens in New York, London and Paris, declares Robert Nichols in the first of a series of articles on the American moving picture industry in The London Times.

He applies this primarily to movies, pointing out that more than 80 per cent. of the films shown in Great Britain are American—and of a sort calculated to meet the approval of the aforesaid "hicks"—but he extends his assertion to other things besides the screen, declaring that "Lloyd George confessed that his conduct of things during the war was more than once influenced by the possible reactions on the opinion of the Middle Western farmer and small townsmen, and the opinion of the 'hicks' today is probably the greatest individual factor against the political participation by the United States in moral affairs."

Reverting to the movies, this British investigator describes Hollywood as largely overturned by emotion increased by "an omnipresent atmosphere of press stunts, publicity, bubble reputations, general ballyhoo and flummery."

Finds No Heater Patent Violation.

Federal Judge John C. Knox dismissed a suit for an accounting brought by Babcock & Wilcox Company against the Springfield Boiler Company yesterday, holding that there was no infringement of patents held by the former company in the construction of superheaters installed in the boiler room of the United Electric Light and Power Company at Hell Gate. The boilers were built and installed at a cost of $1,250,000.

Even scientific enthusiasts say that it will take ten years to find useful facts about a cancer cure that cures. Why not give this Home at once to penniless people who are facing rampant cancer as their only actual possession?

We sister-nurses cannot in one house properly take care of more than 100 men and women thus afflicted, for we believe it necessary to personally attend to our patients. We will not use the aid of paid nurses. The increase of workers for such a labor is slow.

BRITISH FIX TERMS ON FRANCE'S DEBT

tortly finished rather than as a sign of America's lack of interest in the question.

Meanwhile, American reaction to the arrangement today between Britain and France is awaited by the British and French with the utmost eagerness. It is hoped the news of the terms tentatively agreed upon will have reached America early enough to permit the newspapers to comment on it, so that the first inklings of how America takes it may reach Europe tomorrow morning.

If American comment indicates that Washington will adhere strictly to business in funding the French debt there will be wails from the French. On the other hand, if the indications are that America is inclined to let France off easily, British love for America will not be increased.

The eleventh-hour decision of the British Cabinet to offer France the generous terms of sixty-two annual payments of £12,500,000 after the original figure was placed at £20,000,000 came at the close of diplomatic activity unequaled since the Dawes conference in London last August.

The most interesting factor in the turn which the Caillaux negotiations took was the definite manner wherein these two extremely skillful politicians brought America into the very centre of the question. With all hope given up of any agreement, however tentative, the last-minute surprise was sprung upon the unsuspecting public, which had practically dismissed the conversations from its mind as simply another agreement to disagree.

An unemotional communiqué issued by the British Treasury at 6:30 o'clock contained the first news of the British offer, which M. Caillaux later told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent he felt sure would be accepted.

Since the British terms which M. Caillaux will take back with him to Paris tomorrow morning represent no more than 2 per cent. on the total French debt of £623,000,000 it will be seen that this is 1½ per cent. lower than the American Debt Funding Commission has fixed in the American-Belgian agreement. Some of the more thoughtful of the French observers tonight, therefore, were highly sceptical of the "Caillaux victory," especially in view of the fact that repeated French inquiries in American official quarters have failed to establish that Washington will go below 3½ per cent. in approaching Franco-American negotiations.

Hopes to Sway Washington.

Nevertheless, although Mr. Churchill told M. Caillaux that Britain would not recede from the principle of equal treatment by France of her creditors, the French Finance Minister expressed the opinion to friends tonight that he thought he could convince Washington that France could not possibly pay more than 2½ per cent. on her debt.

The upshot of the negotiations here makes practically certain the visit of M. Caillaux to Washington with the French debt mission, so that that French financial "wizard" can exert the full force of his personality in an effort to obtain at least as generous terms as he finally succeeded in getting from the British Government. Such is the view in best-informed French circles.

M. Caillaux, in addition to obtaining this big reduction in the terms of payment, also succeeded in convincing Mr. Churchill of the necessity of a "partial moratorium" until 1930—that is to say. France would pay a smaller sum annually until 1930 than the £12,500,000 fixed in the tentative agreement. This was a concession to M. Caillaux, who yesterday explained that the French commercial debt of £150,000,000 now in process of payment by the Bank of France to the Bank of England would be too great a burden if the war debt had to be paid at the same time. The commercial debt payments end in 1930.

A Further French Condition.

A further condition was placed upon the British agreement by M. Caillaux, who told Mr. Churchill that payments to Britain under the proposed scheme must temporarily cease in the event that payments to France by Germany under the Dawes plan at any time fell below the total which France must pay to her creditors. France hopes to obtain £25,000,000 yearly from Germany under the Dawes agreement, or 52 per cent. of the total reparation payments.

When the British Cabinet was hastily summoned to a meeting at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon, interest in the negotiations revived, although the most optimistic observers did not anticipate what subsequently happened. The Cabinet Ministers in many instances had been reached by telephone at their country places and rushed to London. The council, presided over by Mr. Chamberlain in the absence of Prime Minister Baldwin, met for thirty minutes during which it discussed the new offer to France.

M. Caillaux, knowing of the meeting, waited anxiously at the French Embassy. Shortly after lunch, Mr. Chamberlain, as acting head of the Government, telephoned the Embassy asking the French Minister to come to Downing Street immediately after the Cabinet meeting. M. Caillaux arrived a few minutes after the Cabinet adjourned and had a long talk with Mr. Chamberlain, later seeing Mr. Churchill.

Previous to this Mr. Chamberlain had an hour's talk with Ambassador Houghton, who likewise had been suddenly called to Downing Street. Mr. Houghton was told in effect what the British proposed to do, and it is believed he was requested to obtain as soon as possible Washington's reaction to the British offer.

Another Cabinet meeting was held later in the afternoon whereat the terms of the debt agreement with M. Caillaux were formally approved and the official communiqué drawn up.

In addition to this M. Caillaux again saw Reginald McKenna, director of the Midland Bank, and Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, to ascertain the effect the agreement would have on French credit in England. There were also several long telephone conversations between M. Caillaux and members of the French Government.

Finally M. Caillaux again saw Mr. Churchill at the British Treasury, when the French Finance Minister is believed to have told him that the British offer made agreement almost certain.

Caillaux Tells the Press.

Hastening back to the French Embassy M. Caillaux found journalists of ten countries eagerly awaiting confirmation of the reported offer which had just reached them by telephone. With a copy of a French communiqué in his hand M. Caillaux hurried into the reception room and was surrounded by the newspaper men.

"Well, gentlemen," he said, "I again apologize for keeping you so long, but this time I have got something"—and he waved the text of the terms delightedly in the air. A translation was read while M. Caillaux, leaning against a bookcase, interpolated corrections in the phrasing of the translator, again giving evidence of his knowledge of English.

"Does this British exception about equal treatment mean America, monsieur?" asked an American.

"Certainly it does," replied M. Caillaux.

"Are you quite happy over the sudden change?" asked another.

To which the French Minister characteristically replied:

"You know I am always happy. This debt question is a strange thing, you know. When I was a little chap my mother said to me: 'Never lend money to your friends. When you lend money to friends and try to collect it they usually cease to be friends.' Well, our friends loaned us money and we are going to pay and, I hope, still remain friends."

In conclusion M. Caillaux said he would return to Paris tomorrow morning and that he "did not doubt for a moment that the terms would result in agreement."

Then he shook hands with all the correspondents.

The first reaction in French official quarters tonight was that France would do well to accept the British offer and make it binding before the Washington negotiations are begun. French experts figured that the British terms represent a reduction of two-thirds of the French debt to the British, based on the rate of interest and the number of annual instalments.

British and French Communiques.

The British and French both issued official statements tonight. The British communiqué was as follows:

The negotiations for a settlement of the French debt to Great Britain, which have been proceeding in one form or another since the beginning of the year, entered upon a new phase three weeks ago when the Cabinet authorized the Chancellor of the Exchequer to propose to the French Government that the net obligation of France should in principle be halved. This would have involved payments by France of about £18,000,000 a year during the sixty-two years of the British debt payments to the United States.

This basis of calculations was, however, affected by the view which might be taken upon a number of disputable points of detail and certain counter-claims. Moreover, in accordance with the Chancellor of the Exchequer's correspondence with M. Clémentel earlier in the year, the British proposals contemplated a portion of the French payments being dependent upon the yield of the French share of the Dawes annuities.

In response to this definite and detailed offer M. Caillaux visited London. After repeated discussions during which various alternatives were examined he made the counter-proposal that France should pay in principle one-third of her debt to Britain by 62 annuities of £10,000,000 a year, the whole of which should be upon the responsibility of France.

This proposition constituted a noteworthy advance on all previous tentative suggestions which had been put forward from time to time on behalf of France. Nevertheless the gap between the British offer to remit one-half and the French proposal to pay one-third, although modified by exclusion of all references to the Dawes annuities, remained wide and unbridged.

The position was of course further complicated by the impending negotiations for a settlement of the French war debt to the United States, which is greater than their war debt to Great Britain.

His Majesty's Government have, from the outset, made it perfectly clear that any arrangement which they come to with France must be governed by the principle so often declared that they must receive from France proportionate and part passu payments to any she may eventually make to the United States in settlement of her war debt.

It would be no service to Europe already so grievously stricken, if the sacrifices of one creditor of France merely conducted to the advantage of another. Any agreement which could be entered into between Great Britain and France at the present time could, therefore, in this respect be only of a provisional character pending the outcome of other negotiations.

However, his Majesty's Government, deeply concerned at the general unrest and impoverishment of Europe and finding themselves in the presence of a sincere and manful offer from an ally with whom they have shared so many tribulations, felt bound to respond to the new proposals.

They have therefore authorized the Chancellor of the Exchequer to offer finally on their behalf a settlement of the French debt to Great Britain on the basis in principle or sixty-two annual payments of £12,500,000 a year on the sole responsibility of France, subject to an agreement being reached on various matters of detail and subject also to the Government's condition described above of proportionately equal treatment by France of her creditors.

The Official French Statement.

M. Caillaux issued the following:

When the conversations on the subject of the settlement of the debt between Britain and France were resumed in July the British experts asked that France discharge her debt by means of an annuity of £20,000,000, of which a small proportion only should be taken from the proceeds of the Dawes plan. On the eve of the day when the representatives of the Finance Ministry returned to Paris Mr. Churchill reduced to £16,000,000 the amount of the annuity then contemplated.

On the French side an offer of £10,000,000 was made, a proportion of which was to be taken from the Dawes receipts.

Anxious to make a noteworthy concession to my partner and having ascertained by other means that the British Government while willing to accept a percentage of the Dawes plan would subject it to terms which would reduce its interest to a substantial extent, I decided to propose payment to Great Britain of an annuity of £10,000,000 on the responsibility of France herself.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Churchill, showing in this a goodwill to which it is only fair to pay tribute, after repeated conversations and after having consulted the British Cabinet, reduced his demands to the payment of an annuity of £12,500,000. He also agreed to an additional demand by me to concede a partial moratorium till 1930.

I shall transmit these new proposals to the French Government and I highly appreciate their value. I consider, however, that apart from any question of figures an arrangement with Great Britain would be worthless unless it contains a stipulation—only partly accepted, it is true, by Mr. Churchill—to suspend transfer of annuities in case these operations would threaten to disturb the exchanges.

I also consider that in one form or another a guarantee should be given France that in no case would she have to pay to all her allies collectively a higher sum than she herself would receive from Germany.

It is understood, of course, that the conversations have been pursued in a most friendly way and are merely interrupted. I do not doubt for a moment that an arrangement with Great Britain will finally be concluded.

Wshington Is Not Impressed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—While high officials tonight refused to comment for publication on the proposed tentative plan for the settlement of the French debt to Great Britain, it was evident from a preliminary canvass that the proposal implied in the statement of Winston Churchill, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, does not appeal to Washington.

According to the needs from London, Mr. Churchill is willing to go through with the bargain only in the event that the United States receives no more from France—in proportion to the size of the two loans—than England. Under any such arrangement the United States would receive considerably less from France than she is now receiving from Great Britain and considerably less than it is understood this Government has been hopeful of obtaining in the forthcoming debt funding negotiations with France in the event that a settlement can be negotiated.

The British debt to the United States is funded on the basis of $4,554,000,000 and calls for the payment to the United States of $11,105,965,000 in principal and interest. The annual interest instalments to be paid by the British Government to the United States on its refunding bonds is at the rate of 3 per cent. for the first ten years and 3½ per cent. annually after that until final payment.

Under this, the British Government obligated itself to pay $133,000,000 in interest and $23,000,000 on account of principal, or a total payment of $161,000,000 the first year. The British payments to the United States are to increase progressively until a total of $311,125,000 is scheduled to be paid in during the sixty-second, or final, year.

Indebtedness of France.

On May 15, 1925, the total indebtedness of France to the United States was $4,210,526,000, of which $370,040,904 represented arrears of interest, while the principal amounted to $3,840,516,043. On that date the principal amount of the French debt to the United States was relatively eleven-fifteenths the size of the principal amount of the British debt to us.

If the French debt were funded to the United States on the same basis as was the British debt, and at the same rates of 3 and 3½ per cent. interest, and spread in exactly the same manner over a period of sixty-two years, the initial French payment—if based on $3,840,516,043, the principal amount of the French debt, exclusive of interest on May 15 last—would amount approximately to $118,000,000 annually.

If based on the total French indebtedness of $4,210,526,947, which is the aggregate of principal and accrued interest—the French payments to the United States would be even higher than $118,000,000 annually were France to refund on the same basis as the British.

The Government's desire is to effect a debt settlement with France according to the same principles following in other refunding arrangements and collect according to the ability of the French nation to pay. It has been the belief of responsible officials here all along that the French should be capable of refunding on virtually the same terms as did the British, and that there should be no departure from this rule unless it is clearly proved that French capacity to pay is below American estimation.

It was pointed out in informed quarters tonight that if the size of the two loans Mr. Churchill has in mind is the original French debt of £623,000,000 to England and the principal of the French debt to the United States, which stood on May 15 last at $3,340,516,043, these sums would represent the relative proportion of France's obligations to the two countries. Computed on the basis of an exchange value of $4.85 for the British pound, the original French debt of £623,000,000 would have a present principal value of $2,921,155,000.

Relative Proportion of the Debts.

The relative proportion of these two debts of France is as 33 to 20, and it was pointed out that if it is Mr. Churchill's idea that Great Britain is willing to go through with her tentative bargain with France only in the event she receives no more from France than thirty-three twenty-ninths of what the British tentative agreement obligates France to pay England, then France would pay the United States only a little more than £14,000,000 annually as compared with the £12,500,000 which France would pay England annually under the proposed tentative agreement with the British.

A payment of £14,000,000 annually by France to the United States would be less than $70,000,000, and this sum is considerably less than the figure of $118,000,000 which would about represent the first payment by France if her debt to us were refunded on the same terms as we granted the British.

Aside from these considerations it was pointed out tonight that the United States Government has always insisted that there is no relationship whatever between the war debts the Allied nations contracted among themselves and the debt of any one of them to the United States, so far as this Government is concerned, and it has heretofore insisted upon making its settlements with its debtors without linking them in any fashion with interallied debts.

Furthermore, it was stated in a high official quarter tonight that Ambassador Houghton is not participating in any way in the Franco-British debt settlements.

Would Deal With Us on Same Basis.

PARIS, Aug. 26 (AP).—M. Caillaux's conversations with Winston Churchill, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, at London, concerning France's debt to Great Britain, are regarded in Cabinet circles here as profoundly relevant to the forthcoming negotiations at Washington respecting the French debt to the United States.

M. Caillaux's ideas, in accord with those of his principal colleagues in the Government, have been gradually developing into two convictions—first, that the settlements with the United States and Great Britain, when made, must be priorities upon French resources, now that northern France is nearly restored, and, second, that France can have no other policy than to place the United States and Great Britain upon precisely the same basis.

Both are friendly creditors; each is entitled to its share in all that France can pay, and the British loans, although made before those by the United States, cannot be considered as a first lien. As the two loans total nearly the same, the payments to each country must correspond also.

The French Finance Minister is determined to deal with both the United States and Great Britain so that both shall know what has been done; he is making no effort to play off one against the other.

The declarations attributed to President Coolidge at Swampscott relative to the individual debtors' capacity to pay appear to be accepted here without reserve.

EXPECTS LENIENCY ON DEBT.

Italy, in Negotiations Here, to Make Most of Post-War Difficulties.

ROME, Aug. 26. (AP).—While the reports received here of President Coolidge's statement regarding the Belgian debt settlement are still extremely meagre, enough of his general viewpoint has reached Italian officialdom to create an impression.

This first impression is favorable, in that authoritative Italians see in it an opportunity to seek even better terms than were accorded Belgium. In this sense they are glad of the President's opinion that the Belgian settlement does not set a precedent.

While on the general principle of the justness of the debt Italy will instruct Ambassador de Martino to assume a tractable attitude when he returns to the United States, the Italian Government, according to those in a position to know, will expect him to make the utmost of Italy's post-war difficulties.

He will emphasize her lack of natural resources and raw materials, her contribution in man power to the allied causes in the World War, and her overpopulation, with emigration to the United States restricted.

It is understood that he will be further instructed to make lucid comparisons between Italy's situation in some of these respects with those of France and Belgium.

The feeling here is that Italy has points in her favor which should more than offset any sentimental feeling that might prevail in favor of Belgium and France as the nations which bore the brunt of the German invasion.

FAITH IN WEIZMANN VOTED BY ZIONISTS

MAY PROLONG CONGRESS

But Vienna Police Discourage Plan for September Session Because of Cost of Protection.

VIENNA, Aug. 25.—Stormy scenes occurred last night at a mass meeting of the Zionist group called "Revisionists," held in connection with the world congress. Speeches were made demanding the inclusion of Transjordania in the British mandate, quick creation of a Jewish majority in Palestine through furthering mass immigration and the expropriation of all Palestine lands, with fixed compensation for the Arab owners.

The storm broke loose as Editor Grossmann of London vigorously demanded the organization of the Jewish army as the only guarantee of Zionist safety in Palestine. The anti-militarists started violent hooting, the militarist counter-hooting, and the police had to restore order. Thereupon, the leader of the military activists, Dr. Jabotinsky, founder of the Jewish Legion of the World War, spoke urging an energetic, aggressive policy against the Arabs. He also bitterly attacked Chairman Weizmann.

All day today has been taken up with committee meetings. Owing to the bulk of the leftover business, there is talk of prolonging the congress until Sept. 1, but the leaders have been politely told by the Vienna police that this is undesirable, as the expenses of the extraordinary measures taken to insure the safety of the congress constitute a huge strain upon the Vienna treasury.

It is still thought necessary to keep a large force of police reserves in readiness, although no disorder has occurred during the last ten days.

VIENNA, Aug. 26.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—Confidence in the executive was voted today by the Fourteenth Zionist Congress at a brief special session held for that purpose. The contention over the vote had lasted two days.

Of the 305 delegates registered, 136 voted confidence, 17 voted against it, while the others, belonging to the Orthodox Zionist organization and the labor groups, refrained from voting.

In the Budget Commission a hard fight was waged all day over the individual items of the proposed budget for the next two years, in spite of the fact that it seemed that a general agreement has been reached as to the necessity for further supporting the middle class colonization. A delegation of five was elected by the commission to confer with Dr. Weizmann with regard to a proposal which would eliminate the basis of disagreement. According to this proposal the Zionist budget is to be increased 20 per cent. so that the appropriations for middle class colonization would not affect the appropriations for labor colonization.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—Going to a vaudeville show became dangerous here this evening, when clashes between the police and militant members of the Variety Artists' Union, demonstrating against the engagement of many foreign acts, occurred outside two of the leading Berlin theatres.

Two-a-day manifestants insisted upon their right to distribute leaflets denouncing the managers and several heads were broken in the resultant dispute with police who were clearing the sidewalks at theatre entrances.

The vaudevilleans' union demands that at least 50 per cent. of German entertainers shall be employed in the variety houses. The managers reply that the native acts are inferior to foreign, to which artists retort that the low salaries paid them prevent them from buying expensive costumes and other material needed for competition with foreign performers.

American Girl in Good Condition for Next Attempt at Channel.

CAPE GRIS-NEZ, Aug. 26 (AP).—Gertrude Ederle swam for two hours at top speed this morning in preparation for her second Channel attempt, scheduled for the last day of this month or early in September.

The American swimmer is training with enthusiasm, greatly encouraged to be under the direction of "Old Bill" Burgess. She has much admiration for the man who was the second to swim the Channel and carries out his instructions in letter and spirit.

In consequence now she is in better physical condition than at any time since her arrival in Europe. She was hardly breathing above normal when she emerged from the water today after what amounted to her sprint of two hours.

Burgess thinks she can swim the Channel in two tides, leaving Gris-Nez at 5 A. M. and reaching Dover before 7 P. M. Weather conditions are improving and the sea is calmer.

TWO TRAPPERS FOUND DEAD

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 26 (AP).—"The roof leaks—good-bye." Thus ended a note found yesterday beside the bodies of Peter Ackerman and George Williams, trappers, who went more than a year ago into the wilds of Northern British Columbia in quest of fur-bearing animals.

They found them and obtained the furs and cached them. Then in a little hut they were overcome by sickness and the note of farewell was written to tell an only son of Williams, residing in Edmonton, where the furs, valued at $2,000, might be found.

The cabin in which the bodies were discovered was littered with furs which the trappers had failed to hide. They had been scattered all about the room by wild animals which had entered the hut through the open doorway.

FOX PROVIDES HUNT UNDER OPERA HOUSE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—The hunting season in France begins officially on Sept. 1, but Paris is making an early start this year owing to the abundance of beasts, more or less wild, which have managed to escape from captivity. Last week it was a leopard in the Bois de Boulogne which gave amateur and professional hunters several days' jungle sport, and, beginning tomorrow, another chase will take place in the famous Opera House itself for a fox which has been hiding somewhere in the depths of the building since yesterday evening.

The fox was one of two led down the boulevard on a leash by the owner, who wanted to sell them. While being displayed to the terrace crowds, one fox indiscreetly flashed his teeth at an American, who responded instantly by kicking the fox in the back. The fox made a violent jump, jerked loose from the leash and dashed across the Place de l'Opéra toward the Opera House itself.

Opera crowds opened a lane for the speeding animal. It scrambled up the steps, and deftly avoiding scores of attendants who tried to capture it the animal ran down a flight of stairs, then down another, and finally found its way into the cellar of the building.

All last night, while a performance was in progress, the fox remained in the cellar, none of the attendants being able to find it. All day today the staff of Opera employes also searched without success. As a final resort M. Rouget, director of the opera, communicated with a friend who is a zealous fox hunter and possesses a pack of excellent hunting hounds. He arranged for his friend to bring the hounds to the Opera House early tomorrow morning and organize a regular fox hunt. If horns be needed to bring the fox out of his lair, they will be supplied by the director from the opera orchestra. The sport begins at dawn.

An epilogue to the story of the leopard, which lurked for three days in the Boise de Boulogne on the outskirts of Paris recently, frightening away thousands of quiet promenaders accustomed to pleasant shady rambles daily, occurred this evening, when a guardian of the Luxembourg Gardens, discovered a woman clad only in a scanty chemise, perched on a branch in a tree.

"What are you doing up there and where are your clothes?" the guardian demanded, but the response was, "I am the leopard's wife."

Further proof of the woman's insanity was not required, and after a ladder had been fetched and the woman brought carefully to the ground, she was sent to a safer place.

HINDENBURG TO VISIT LUDENDORFF AS GUEST

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—President von Hindenburg will lunch with General Ludendorff at the latter's villa on the outskirts of Munich on Friday. This announcement, generally published here and not denied as yet in official quarters, was carried first in the Munich organ of Ludendorff's party, the ultra-reactionary Voelkische.

This news, as was the case with that of President Hindenburg's meeting with former Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, does not emanate from correspondents formally assigned to cover the President's movements, who, like Berlin officialdom, appear to be kept strangely in the dark about his activities.

When the Field Marshal visits the home of his erstwhile Quartermaster General on Friday it will be the first encounter of the two wartime associates since the ex-Generalissimo's election to the Presidency. Von Hindenburg was reported to have been much vexed at Ludendorff's Voelkische candidacy in the preliminary campaign, when he polled only 200,000 votes, and it was understood the General's withdrawal in his favor from the second election failed to placate him. If today's news from Munich is true, the reconciliation must have been arranged after Hindenburg assumed the Presidency.

The Berliner Tageblatt observes:

"The meeting between Hindenburg and Ludendorff, like that between the former and ex-Crown Prince Rupprecht, will be wholly private in character, and no official news about it will be communicated. Nevertheless, it cannot be overlooked that Hindenburg is no longer Commander-in-Chief of the Imperial Army, but President of the German Republic, and that Ludendorff is no longer Quartermaster General, but a politician of the Hitler putsch."

The Tageblatt adds that in Bavarian military circles it is understood that President Hindenburg will serve as mediator in the dispute between former Crown Prince Rupprecht and General Ludendorff arising out of that short-lived uprising.

The Vossische Zeitung says that at the President's Berlin office nothing is known of his present disposition, as he is attended only by his son, Major von Hindenburg.

KING BACK, STILL FOE OF LAUSANNE PACT

URGES LENIENCY ON DEBTS

Would Have America Show Sympathy and Mercy to Hard-Pressed Nations.

Among the prominent Americans who returned yesterday on the White Star liner Olympic was United States Senator William H. King, Democrat, of Utah, a member of the Finance, Immigration and Judiciary Committees, who had made an extensive tour through Europe as far as Constantinople to study the problems that have arisen in the Near East since the Lausanne Treaty became effective. His tour took him through the Balkans on his way to Turkey and he returned by way of Germany, France and England.

Senator King said he was particularly interested in Turkey because he had opposed the Lausanne Treaty. He said he had written the text of the national Democratic platform in opposition to the treaty and in which that party had pledged itself to the execution of the plans announced by the Allied Governments and the United States concerning Armenia and the creation of an independent State.

"In contravention of that plan," said the Senator, "the Allied nations and the United States negotiated plans, one of which, the Lausanne treaty, absolutely ignored the Armenians and their claims, condoned the acts of the Turks and ratified their cruelty in the destruction of the Armenians and the deportation of those who remained.

"That treaty is before the Senate for consideration at the next session of Congress. I went to Turkey and the Near East for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the United States should ratify that treaty, and whether my opposition was justified or whether the situation called for ratification of the treaty.

His Views Unchanged.

"I visited Turkey, went to Constantinople and into the interior of the country. I conferred with Turkish officials and met all classes of people, and without going into details and without having fully looked over the notes which I took, I can say that the reasons which heretofore have impelled me to oppose the Lausanne treaty still exist.

"My study of the economic conditions in Europe reveals that there has been considerable improvement in Germany, Russia and Poland over the conditions I found when I was there two years ago. While there are many ominous signs and there are conditions fruitful of trouble, there has been an unmistakable gain."

Commenting on the immigration situation, he said that there were millions in Europe who wished to come to America, and that it was necessary to enact constructive legislation in regard to their entrance.

"This does not commit me to the immigration bill as it now stands, however," he said. "I think the machinery should be perfected to have a selective immigration, which would mean an examination of the immigrants as far as possible on the other side, and to build up a staff of consular agents and officials who would make such investigation and inspection effective."

As a member of the Finance Committee, Senator King was asked what he thought of the Belgian debt settlement.

"We ought to treat Belgium with the utmost liberality," he said. "We are not a grasping creditor. I feel that the United States should be fairly treated, but on the other hand we should make terms as easy as possible, and take into account the economic conditions as they exist in Europe and which cannot be fully felt unless one goes there and observes them first hand.

Urges Mercy For Other Debtors.

"Belgium during the war occupied a position that entitled her to a little different consideration than the other debtors, but at the same time if the other debtors evince a desire to meet their obligations, then, in view of the economic situation in Europe, I think that our Government should approach the question with sympathy and mercy."

Senator King said he had been more impressed with the industry of Germany than any other country he visited. He said everywhere in Germany the people were working, and that if they continue the same sturdy course, Germany in ten years would be the most powerful as well as the wealthiest country on the Continent. He also observed while in the Near East that the Germans were penetrating there with their wares and that they were getting the bulk of the trade.

Senator King said he had no illusions as to Turkey. He found a small intellectual group indulging in theories of government, while the Government itself was held by a powerful oligarchy. The masses of the people, according to Senator King, are indifferent as to what the outside world does or thinks so long as it does not alter their mode of living or existence.

"The Turks," he said," are totally unable to orientate themselves with the Occident. While some of them are attempting reforms, with a spirit of militarism in the background, these reforms will be difficult to accomplish."

The Senator said he was leaving at once for Washington and later would go West.

ACCIDENT TIES UP LONG ISLAND ROAD

COMMUTERS JAM TROLLEYS

Brooklyn commuters raised the worst tie-up in years on the Long Island Railroad yesterday morning when a parlor car was derailed just outside the Flatbush Avenue Terminal and thrown squarely across the east-bound track of the main line.

The blockade thus established at 8:45 in the morning effectively stopped almost all traffic during the entire rush hour period and caused passengers to change at Jamaica for Manhattan trains or to jam elevated and surface lines. Although the derailed car was righted at 9:10, the trains were not entirely untangled until 10 o'clock.

The refrigerator car was one of a train of five that was on its way from the Flatbush station to the Vandeventer Avenue yards. Just beyond the station tunnel and near a switch the leading car struck another empty one standing on Track 2. It was thrown across the main division track and withstood the manoeuvres of a wrecking crew for nearly an hour and a half.

Although the west-bound track was used to carry traffic in both directions, all movement soon came to virtual halt. At the Jamaica station train dispatchers warned commuters that service was tied up and announced that they would be allowed to use Brooklyn tickets on the trains bound for the Pennsylvania station. While many took this roundabout way of reaching business in Brooklyn, others went to the Jamaica elevated stations and surface cars, which were already packed with the usual morning crowds.

Some passengers stayed on the trains, which were able to make a slow through passage toward the Flatbush station. Most of them, however, decided to get off at the East New York or Nostrand Avenue station on the way.

Trains far to the east of Jamaica were held up and the perplexed passengers, uninformed of the trouble, pecred into traffic at heeded passing automobilists for rides.

BOLIVIAN PRESIDENT BLOCKS SUCCESSION

Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Aug. 26.—Juan Bautista Saavedra added a new chapter in his stormy five-years in Bolivian politics today when he caused a motion to be introduced into the House of Deputies annulling the election of May 2, when Jose Gabino Villanueva was made President. Senor Villanueva was to have been inaugurated yesterday.

When the motion is passed, Senor Saavedra is expected to comply with the Bolivian Constitution and deliver over the Presidency to the newly elected President of the Senate, Felipe Guzman, until a new election is held. This election is supposed to take place within six months.

Senor Guzman has been a Deputy and a Senator and served as Minister of Instruction in President Saavedra's Cabinet.

Senor Villanueva and his friends were powerless to act. President Saavedra, who has been called the dictator of Bolivia since 1921, had assembled the nation's military forces in the capital, ostensibly for the inauguration ceremonies, but actually to impose his own will.

The motion introduced before the Chamber declares the May 2 elections null and void on the ground of fraud and and the ineligibility of Senor Villanueva.

The real reason was that Villanueva refused to be a rubber stamp for President Saavedra.

Senor Villanueva refused to accede to this at the last minute and insisted on forming a coalition Cabinet to comprise three members of his own party, the Liberal, and three Republicans.

Thus President Saavedra is expected to continue his iron rule which included the exile of refractory members of the opposition.

CIVIL SERVICE TO TEST JARDINE APPOINTEE

Commission Declares Others May Also Try for Bureau Position to Which Cooper Was Named.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The action of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine in naming Thomas P. Cooper of Kentucky as Chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in place of Dr. H. C. Taylor, was quickly followed today by an announcement from President William C. Deming of the Civil Service Commission that Mr. Cooper must face a civil service test. When officials of the Department of Agriculture were shown the Civil Service Commission's announcement they said that Mr. Cooper, who is now Dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky, would submit to the required examination.

"The press reports," said Mr. Deming, "seem to be based on the assumption that Mr. Cooper has been finally appointed to this office, and in view of this apparent misunderstanding, the Civil Service Commission states the facts in the case.

"The position in question is classified under the Civil Service law and rules, and it is, therefore, the duty of the Civil Service Commission to hold an open competitive examination for the position when a vacancy occurs, unless the department shall decide to fill the vacancy through reinstatement, transfer or promotion.

"Following the practice in such cases, the temporary appointment of Mr. Cooper has been approved by the commission pending the announcement of an open competitive examination, the establishment of a register and the certification of eligibles. The examination will be announced at once and Mr. Cooper and other qualified persons will be admitted to it upon application to the Civil Service Commission.

"An examination for a position of this kind does not require that competitors be assembled for written tests, but the ratings are based upon training, experience and general fitness, which ratings are determined by the applicant's own sworn statements and other evidence secured confidentially through the Civil Service Commission's inquiry."

LOSES SIX POLICE TICKETS.

Policeman Steps Runaway, but Has to Pay for His Own Games.

Capturing a runaway horse in a twelve-block chase at 138th Street and Park Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday, Patrolman Peter O'Rourke lost six tickets for the Police Field Day. Failing to find the tickets, O'Rourke has to pay for the six admissions to his own games.

Tomasia Diaglo, a truckman, of 2,500 Eighth Avenue took his horse to a stable at 137th Street and Lincoln Avenue, the Bronx, for a clipping. The horse quietly plodded into the stable and was submissive until the clipping machine was started. The horse immediately dashed out and through traffic in 137th Street.

O'Rourke, at 136th Street, commandeered the car of Isadore Newcorn, pawnbroker, of 141st Street and Third Avenue, the Bronx, and gave chase. At the Madison Avenue Bridge O'Rourke leaped from the running board to the horse's back and brought the horse to a stop. While making his report from a police box he missed the tickets.

PHILLIPS GOES TO COURT.

Max Phillips, collar manufacturer and polo player, who says there is a gigantic plot to ruin him, went to the Washington Heights Court yesterday morning to testify for Mrs. Margaret Campbell, charged with telling fortunes, but the case was adjourned until Sept. 3 because of the medium's illness. A subpoena was served on Phillips to appear then, and he demanded and received $1 witness fee from the policewoman who handed him the subpoena.

Phillips was accompanied by lawyers and private detectives. He refused to talk to reporters except to say that he would tell what it was all about at the proper time. Rose Mackenberg, who said she was "pastor of the high spiritualist Church of America," appeared in court, saying she intended to aid the prosecution of Mrs. Campbell.

Phillips was in Mrs. Campbell's apartment at 602 West 139th Street when she was arrested, and says the arrest was a "frame up" intended to discredit him.

the. They testified with the full authority of their associations. They did not denounce the Government bureaus in Washington which exercise jurisdiction over the public domain, but they did denounce the system which they said made for an autocracy such as "Ivan never dreamed of."

"The trouble," said Mr. Bixby, "is that the cattle man is getting pre-war prices and the consumer is paying the war time prices for what the cattle man produces."

Under existing conditions it was asserted that the cattle man or sheep man who grazes his flocks and herds on the public domain has absolutely no standing in the courts. One day he is on the range and the next, so asserted the national executives of the meat and wool growing associations, he gets an order to get off, and, as Mr. Hagenbarth puts it, "he gets off."

The members of the subcommittee present were Senators Stanfield of Oregon, Oddie of Nevada, Kendrick of Wyoming and Cameron of Arizona. Senators Ashurst of Arizona and Dill of Washington will join the committee at Helena, Mont., on Monday. Senator Kendrick, who at a cowpuncher rode into Wyoming from Texas forty years ago, asked most of the questions. It is Mr. Kendrick, perhaps, more than any other man in the Senate, to whom the live stock men are looking for such relief as the Government may be able, through legislation or otherwise, to give them.

Priority Rights Are Claimed.

Mr. Hagenbarth was the first witness. At the outset he said the live stock men demand that their rights on the national owned ranges shall be recognized, defined and protected and that such rights shall be based upon established priority and preference at the time the law now in force was passed, and that was twenty odd years ago. Legally he said the people of the country at large owned the public domain, but morally he insisted the live stock men whose fathers before them rode those ranges have rights that transcend those of newcomers and outsiders who settle upon or seek to use the grazing lands.

"The live stock industry" said Mr. Hagenbarth, "is a basic industry of this country, an industry on which all our people are largely dependent for food and raiment. We want the law rewritten, we want to use these ranges on an area and not a per head basis, as is now the case. As the situation now stands, the live stock man must get what he can today, for tomorrow he may lose his permit.

"There is no law defining the rights of live stock men in the national forests—I speak of the national forest problem: Mr. Bixby will deal with the public domain feature of the problem—and as things now stand we are going along under a bureaucracy, in many instances tending to autocracy. We have no standing in law, no day in court. We contend that the pioneers in this controversy, which involves the national owned ranges, have prior rights, the right of discovery if you want to put it that way. We don't ask the privilege of going into the forests and lording it over others who have rights there. But we do ask that such rights as we have be made permanent and definite."

Declares Fees Impose a Burden.

Mr. Hagenbarth asserted that twenty years ago at a meeting between the live stock men and Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, the latter then Chief Forester, the users of the ranges had agreed to the imposition of fees sufficient to bear the cost of administration. When they made that agreement with Mr. Pinchot "the cattlemen," he added, "put their heads in a noose." Today, he declared, the fees are three times the cost of administration, and many "theorists," he added, are proposing a still further increase.

The witness made it plain that he did not blame the Forest Service for the trials of the range users so much as he does the legislative branch for its failure to enact what he insisted are proper laws to govern in the situation.

"We do not propose," said Mr. Hagenbarth, "to permit the changing of the pioneer rule at our expense. There are those who have had their pie, and now they want us to give them half our pie, and we will not do it if we can help it."

Replying to questions by members of the committee, Mr. Hagenbarth said that he believed fees should be reduced to the actual cost of administration and that those fees should go into the treasuries of the States instead of, as is now the case, the Treasury at Washington.

Reverting to the fee problem, Mr. Hagenbarth referred to Governor Pinchot as "an idealist, who is sometimes practical and who is given to being perhaps a little ruthless."

The so-called "Ratchford report," now before the Secretary of Agriculture and which proposes a change in the fee system, in which fees charged on privately owned lands shall be taken into consideration, was characterized as a "monstrous thing" by the witness.

"There is," he exclaimed, "apparently no limit to this thing, and we want a limit put to it. The cattlemen are being swept out, being destroyed. The sheep men are in a somewhat better position. Yet the autocracy has had the supreme presumption to suggest a still further increase in the burdens of the poverty-stricken cattlemen of the West."

"If these fees are increased who will bear the cost?" Senator Oddie asked.

"In the end," replied Mr. Hagenbarth, "it will be borne by the consumer. It is the consumer who suffers most, next to the general citizenship of the States in which the ranges are located. The wrecking of the cattlemen is an economic disaster in these States. You can put the cattlemen out of business, but the public will continue to suffer while the cattleman is being forgotten. These fees, if any are charged, should go to the States to be applied to the lowering of taxes and at the same time play a part in cheapening the food and clothing of the people generally.

Says Many Operate at a Loss.

"As you Senators go into the other States and meet and hear the cattlemen and sheepmen you will find out that the picture painted to the country has been largely a watercolor, and not one made in pure oil. I say to you that the books of these men we represent will show a loss in nine out of ten cases. Yet the big sufferer is the people themselves. It costs three times as much to produce meat now as it did in the pre-war days and in the end the consumer must pay the bill."

No matter what happens on the ranges the cattlemen and sheepman have no show in court under the system now in force declared Mr. Hagenbarth.

"In this matter," he added, "we only ask the chance given to the most wretched criminal in the country. We do not feel that we should be accused, tried and executed by a forester or any other autocrat. The whole thing is outrageous. The Secretary of Agriculture, prompted by the Chief Forester or some other official, has the authority to deprive us of property by the mere dictum of 'get off' and we 'get.' It's an un-American way of doing things."

"In my judgment 25 per cent. are," Mr. Hagenbarth answered, "absolutely wiped out, and 90 per cent. of the others staggering along under a heavy load of debt."

If changed, the administration of the law should continue, in the opinion of Mr. Hagenbarth, in the forestry service. It is not the service but the system, he said, that is most at fault.

Bixby Opposes Park Extensions.

Mr. Bixby, testifying at the afternoon session, declared that the cattlemen as well as the sheepmen are opposed to the adding of another acre to the national parks, practically all of which, he pointed out, are in the public land States.

"We don't want any more park extensions in these States," he declared. "In California we have all the parks we can stand for. It seems every time somebody sees a nice tree he starts a cry for a new park. We have a million acres in national parks in California, and that's enough."

Mr. Bixby said the cattlemen do not want to be "turned loose in the national forests." All they want, he declared, is a legalized right to graze their herds in these reservations.

Dr. Greeley, the head of the Forestry service, and Commissioner Drury of the General Land Office were interested spectators at both of today's sessions. Dr. Greeley showed just the trace of a smile when Mr. Marshall suggested that in the field hearings to come some range users will probably be timid about testifying, owing to the fact, he said, that they will have to go back home where the forest supervisor is still supreme and who has the power, he added, to make the cattleman suffer for his action in appearing before the committee.

Dr. Greeley, it was said tonight, has given his subordinates in the field to understand that he wants no interference with the investigation and that no matter what a cattleman or sheepman utilizes there must be no reprisals on the part of the Federal authorities.

The committee will end its hearings in Salt Lake City tomorrow night and then proceed to Yellowstone Park for hearings there on Friday and Saturday. The Montana hearing will open at Helena on Monday.

DUO-ART
Reproducing Piano

DANCE music that lures you to lighter, freer motion — that takes you in imagination to the stage of the peppiest musical revue; that wings your fancy to languorous South Sea Isles!

Fox-trots—waltzes that are actually played for you by the genius who composed them—by those past masters at the keyboard who lift the much-discussed jazz into the realms of real musical art.

Barring the full orchestra itself, there is no dance music so perfectly rhythmic, so rich in tone-volume, so delightfully varied as the Duo-Art provides.

And always after listening to its wonderful dance music comes the longing for those music heights which can only be reached in the home through this one instrument.

You wish for a heroic tonal master work such as Josef Hofmann's interpretation of the Liszt 12th Hungarian Rhapsody. And the Duo-Art gives it to you.

You long to become better acquainted with the finesse of Paderewski's art—and the Duo-Art shows you the way. You crave the half-forgotten air of an old love song, a favorite of your youth—and the Duo-Art plays it with feeling.

Why not have one of these wonderful modern home instruments today? You need not delay—their cost is moderate, the monthly payments convenient and temporary, while the benefits and joys of the Duo-Art are lasting—as lasting as good music itself.

FLIGHT TO HAWAII TO START MONDAY

2,000 MILES IN 25 HOURS

Three Crews Will Get Smoke and Searchlight Signals From Ships and Radio Record of Bearings.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Secretary Wilbur was today advised by Captain Stanford E. Moses, commander for the proposed naval airplane flight from the California coast to the Hawaiian Islands, that the three planes have been ordered to take off from San Pablo Bay, near San Francisco, on Monday. The plan is for the planes to steer a mercator course direct to Kahului on the Island of Maui and thence to Honolulu.

The PN9-1, the flagplane, will have a yellow bow. In it will be Commander John Rodgers, Lieutenant B. J. Connell, S. R. Pope, aviation pilot; O. G. Stantz, chief radioman; William M. Bowlin, aviation machinist's mate.

The PN9-2 will have a yellow tail. Its personnel will be: Lieutenant Allen P. Snody, Lieutenant Arthur Gavin, N. H. Craven, aviation machinist's mate, 1st class; C. J. Sutter, chief machinist's mate; C. W. Allen, radio, first class.

The PB-1 will be painted gray. Its personnel will be: Lieut. Com. J. H. Strong, Lieutenant R. E. Davison, Lieutenant R. Botts, L. C. Sullivan, aviation pilot; Edward D. Thornton, chief radioman.

After taking off, the planes will head out of San Francisco Bay on their westward course, keeping within visible distance of each other. Two hours and 36 minutes later they are scheduled to pass over the first station ship, the William Jones, 200 miles southwest of San Francisco; 5 hours and 12 minutes after the take-off, they are to pass over the McCawley, 400 miles off the coast; after 7 hours and 48 minutes over the Corry, 600 miles out; after 10 hours and 24 minutes over the Meyer, 800 miles off shore; after 13 hours over the Doyen, 1,000 miles or approximately half way; after 15 hours and 16 minutes over the Langley, 830 miles from Honolulu; after 17 hours and 32 minutes over the Reno, 630 miles from Honolulu; after 19 hours and 48 minutes over the Farragut, 430 miles from Honolulu, after 22 hours and 4 minutes over the Aroostook, 230 miles from coast of Hawaii, after 29 hours and 26 minutes over the Tanager, 130 miles from Honolulu and forty-five minutes later the planes will arrive over Honolulu, the end of the longest seaplane flight ever made.

All plane guard ships are to signal for one hour prior to the expected passing of the planes and for one hour after the actual passing by making dense smoke during the day and by pointing searchlights at night in the direction of the planes, from overhead to 45 degrees above the horizon, and making the call letter of the ship frequently. After the last plane passes over, each guard ship is to follow on the "base" course of the planes at a high speed for two hours and then continue on the base course at a moderate speed until further orders are received.

Merchant vessels along the route have been asked to maintain a sharp lookout for the planes and also are requested not to make smoke and not to display searchlights and to restrict the use of radio to a minimum. They are, however, requested to report the planes if sighted and assist them if they land near by. The guard ships are to report the passing of the planes immediately by radio to Captain Moses at his San Francisco office.

Effort will be made by the guard ships to assist the planes by giving radio bearings. A great deal of work and thought has been devoted to this. The actual navigation, however, will be done from the bow of each plane by observation of celestial and terrestrial objects. The result of these observations will be plotted on charts to obtain fixes, drift, air speed, ground speed and other data.

Aerological data will be taken at the naval air station at Pearl Harbor, on board the Aroostook, the Langley and the Corry and at the base station at San Francisco. Considering this information from the various stations, the flight project commander is to decide when conditions are suitable for the flight.

BUYS LAND FOR AIR PORTS.

The Aerial League of America announced yesterday that it had acquired thirty-four square miles of land in Arizona and San Marcial, in the State of Sonora, Mexico, as the first step in the establishment of air transportation lines from New York to South America. The league has also acquired three large mines containing about 500,000,000 tons of coal, which will supply fuel to the air cities for the generation of power for the next 250 years.

With the establishment of air ports at San Marcial and in Arizona, there is now a complete chain of ports from New York to Los Angeles and there are also ports at Mexico City and Panama, making possible the operation of air transportation lines from New York to Panama. Airplanes leaving New York can reach Panama in two days, meeting steamers there, which, it is pointed out, will make the lines profitable as a commercial enterprise.

Rounding Up Runaway Husbands.

The Child Welfare League of America, according to an announcement yesterday, is actively engaged in helping to locate German men in the United States who have abandoned their children in Germany, and deserting husbands who have emigrated to America. Appeals for aid in cases where soldiers have deserted their wives and children are still being received, but the number of such appeals is gradually diminishing.

Says Southward Ho Tax Is Paid.

In yesterday's issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES it was said in a dispatch from Riverhead, L. I., that the property of the Southward Ho Country Club in Islip Township, Suffolk County, L. I., has been listed as liable to sale for nonpayment of taxes. William M. Allison, Treasurer of the club, wrote to THE TIMES yesterday that the 1924 taxes on the club property had been paid in full and that receipts covering payment were deposited in a bank in Bay Shore, L. I.

SCHOOL GRADUATES WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

State Selects Pupils in Various Counties for Aid in College Courses.

NEW YORK CITY HAS 310

Department of Education Picks Beneficiaries From Groups Making the Highest Marks.

ALBANY, Aug. 26.—The list of high school pupils entitled to university scholarships was made public today by the State Department of Education. There are issued annually to the pupils of each county of New York State five times as many scholarships as there are Assembly districts in the county, the appointees being those who attained the highest marks in their studies for college entrance diplomas.

New York City thus gets 310 appointments from the five counties in this city. Ten scholarships are awarded Nassau pupils, Suffolk County is entitled to ten, while twenty-five appointments are made in Westchester.

In case any one of the winners should decline the scholarship, it is immediately offered to the next eligible one on the county list. Only one county, Putnam, failed to have any candidates, while Greene County, entitled to five scholarships, failed to produce more than one.

The holder of a scholarship is entitled to $100 a year for four years of his college course while attending any college in the State of New York approved by the Regents for the purpose.

The list for Greater New York and the adjacent counties, Nassau, Suffolk and Westchester, including the schools from which the pupils graduated and their home address, follows:

MOVIE STAR TO BE NEPTUNE

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 26.—Ernest Torrance, the movie "villian," has consented to act as King Neptune, presiding over the Atlantic City pageant and national beauty tournament here this year, from Sept. 8 to 12, inclusive. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., 10 years old, also is expected.

The seventy-three inter-city beauties, chosen in each community from among thousands of contestants, will parade the Boardwalk. They are divided into five sections, representing the New York and New England sections, the Middle Atlantic section, the Southern, Mid-Western and Western sections, and will compete for the title of "Miss America," the most beautiful bathing girl in the country.

The entire affair will be started on Sept. 8, when King Neptune emerges from the sea with his court. He will be welcomed by the pageant participants and city officials. This scene will be staged at the inlet, where there will be, at the time, a water regatta, with a yachting review.

LAY PLANS TO RID WORLD OF LEPROSY

NEW CURE PUT FORWARD

British Expert Says Medicine Derived From Chaulmoogra Oil Has Proved Successful.

Representative physicians from several foreign countries met at luncheon yesterday at the National Arts Club to discuss plans for ridding the world of leprosy. The luncheon was given under the auspices of the American Mission to Lepers, of which Fleming H. Revell is treasurer, and William H. P. Anderson, General Secretary of the mission in London, was the guest of honor. Mr. Anderson told the specialists that great progress had been made in curing leprosy by the use of a new formula known as ethylesters of chaulmoogra oil, which had been successfully used in many countries.

Dr. James W. McKane, a veteran missionary physician from Siam, said that he was encouraged by the wide cooperation the work was receiving in that country, and suggested that the activity of physicians and missionary workers there in caring for leprosy might make it the next country in the world to be free of the disease. Dr. H. C. de Sousa-Arujo, a Brazilian specialist, who is on a world tour, reported favorably on a recent inspection of the United States Marine Hospital 66, and told his audience that South Americans are anxious to join the American Mission to Lepers.

Dr. George W. McCoy, Director of the Hygienic Laboratories at Washington, D. C., and for four years director of the research station at the leper colony at Molokai, in the Hawaiian Islands, also spoke. He said that there was a bright outlook for ridding the world of the scourge, and expressed the conviction that leprosy would be no more prevalent than yellow fever within a few years.

Dr. William K. McCandless of China said that the time when leprosy would no longer be a scourge was both feasible and sensible, and spoke of the rapid progress recently made in the treatment of the disease. The officers of the mission are holding a conference with Mr. Anderson to make a special program of nation-wide and world-wide cooperation to further the purpose of the organization, which is expressed in its slogan, "Ridding the World of Leprosy."

Vanished Jersey Man Returns.

Charles Heinrich, 56 years old, a well-to-do retired business man of 340 Thirty-first Street, Woodcliff, N. J., whose disappearance was reported Monday, returned to his home yesterday. Mr. Heinrich explained that while in Newark Monday he suffered a heart attack and was taken into the home of a family who looked after him until he felt able to go home.

CHAIN STORE RADIO LEADERS OF THE WORLD

A NEW DAY is dawning for radio

Out of the confusion and uncertainty is appearing the substantial basis of permanent value.

What harmony is to music ..
TURKISH is to a good cigarette

What is that winsome and mysterious thing called charm?

The music in a voice . . the lustre of a fine diamond . . the laughter of good humor . . the fidelity of friendship . . and the Turkish in a cigarette!

Charm is individuality, character and enchantment . . all rolled into one. And in tobacco, Nature bestows the maximum charm upon Turkish leaf.

Turkish is the coolest, mildest and most fragrant of all tobaccos. For Nature stores her choicest and gentlest aromas in the tiniest leaves—and a leaf of Turkish compares to domestic, in size and texture, as a carnation petal does to a palm leaf.

In nearly every cigarette, there is some Turkish. For Turkish is almost indispensable to palatability. But in MURAD you get all Turkish . . . . and therefore, all charm.

If your taste has been hardened by coarser cigarettes, try MURAD. You'll be amazed at the new thrill you'll get out of your smoking—the new revelation in cigarette satisfaction that is yours.

MURAD
The TURKISH Cigarette
"ALL TURKISH means . . . . . ALL Charm"

THEFT OF A TRUCK AND ALCOHOL FOILED

PADLOCKED CAFE RAIDED

Three Men and Liquor Seized in Place Which Was Ordered Locked Last Month by Court.

An attempt made by seven men to steal a truck loaded with barrels of alcohol valued at $50,000 resulted in the arrest of Oswald Di Martini, 21 years old, of 2,087 Washington Avenue, yesterday afternoon. Di Martini, the police say, was captured while he was driving the truck, the six other alleged accomplices having taken the real driver with them when they drove off in another car.

Harry Gass of 2,115 Jerome Avenue, the Bronx, was driving the truck at Park Avenue and 187th Street, the Bronx, and was followed by his brother, Arthur, in another car. Seven men in a closed automobile tried to force Harry to the curb and shouted to him to stop. When he failed to obey their command one shot was fired at him and he pulled in to the sidewalk. His brother at once drove over to Washington and East Fremont Avenues where he picked up Patrolmer Reardon and Matthews and told them of the hold-up.

In the meantime Harry was compelled to leave his seat, and his place was taken by Di Martini. The closed car with Harry inside was driven off by the six men and Di Martini had just started the truck when the two policemen arrived. One shot was fired at the truck and Di Martini surrendered. He was booked at the Bathgate Avenue Station on a charge of robbery. The police say he has a criminal record. Harry Gass was released at Washington Avenue and 180th Street.

A new low price level for bootleg whisky was reported yesterday in North Bergen, N. J., when Lieutenant George Cash of the North Bergen police force and a United States Marshal succeeded, they say, in purchasing four drinks at 20 cents each in the saloon of Stanley Schwartz, Hackensack Plank Road, North Bergen. After the sale, Schwartz was taken to the office of United States Commissioner Edward Stanton, where he was held on a charge of violating the Volstead act. A still and twelve gallons of whisky were confiscated on the premises.

Padlocked Cafe Raided.

Federal prohibition agents yesterday raided Larson's café, at Bay Forty-eighth Street and Harway Avenue, Brooklyn, which was long known as Stillwell's and was padlocked last March by order of Federal Judge Marcus B. Campbell. The three men arrested are alleged to have committed contempt of court in continuing the sale of liquor in a padlocked place.

Agents Charles Bench, Joseph Phillips and Samuel Kupferman said they found in the café a large quantity of whisky. They arrested Walter Larson Jr., Gustaf Schoener and Hans Swarir and left a summons for Walter Larson Sr., owner of the café. The prisoners were released in $1,000 bail each for arraignment later before a United States Commissioner.

Assistant United States Attorney Howard Osterhaut said he would bring the information regarding the raid before Judge Campbell.

Following this raid the same three agents entered a saloon at 8,862 Twenty-fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, where, they said, they purchased two drinks of whisky, and confiscated fifteen gallons of the same kind of liquor. They arrested William L. O'Brien, proprietor; George O'Brien and Joseph Howard.

Arrested at Farragut Inn.

Morris Kaufman, owner of Farragut Inn at Hastings-on-Hudson, and Samuel C. Wolff, his brother-in-law, were held for the Federal Grand Jury in $500 bail each yesterday by United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter. They were charged with having violated the Federal Prohibition law.

Michael F. Sassi, a prohibition agent who headed a raid on the inn, in which large quantities of whisky, wines and beer were alleged to have been found, told Commissioner Cotter that Wolff had said he was the proprietor and that after his arrest Kaufman appeared and said he himself owned the place. Wolff said yesterday he wanted to protect Kaufman and was told by the Commissioner he would have an opportunity to explain later.

Assistant United States Attorney Frederick C. Bellinger told Commissioner Cotter that "boasts of political influence on both sides of the fence" by the Farragut Inn members had not only failed to save it from being raided, but had actually directed attention to its activities.

Edward Ross of 11 Halsey Avenue, Brooklyn, was held by Magistrate McGarrigle in Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, in $10,000 bail on a charge of attempted extortion. Detectives said Ross and another man entered the drug store of Louis Milefsky at 874 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, said they were Federal agents and after examining the druggist's books informed him he had violated the prohibition law.

Milefsky said he started with them, thinking he was under arrest, when one of them offered to free him for $65. He telephoned the police and Ross was arrested after a chase. The other man escaped. Ross will be examined further Monday.

Following a week of investigation, the "flying squadron" of prohibition enforcement agents resumed operations in the open last night, when the Mikado Inn, at Harmon-on-Hudson, was raided, two men seized and alleged liquor, valued at $2,000, was confiscated. The prisoners—Koshia Moteo, proprietor, and Naka Koshi, a waiter—were locked up at Police Headquarters there, charged with liquor law violations.

William Stafford, head of the "flying squadron," with Agents Satti and Earle, visited the inn and posed as frequenters of the Saratoga race track. According to Stafford, the agents bought ten rounds of highballs, at $1.50 a drink, last Monday night. Three of the agents, accompanied by three women, all in evening attire, visited the inn and were served with more highballs, it is alleged.

Yesterday the agents obtained a search warrant and the arrests followed.

KILLED IN STILL EXPLOSION

Two Seriously Injured and Five Families Made Homeless.

ANSONIA, Conn., Aug. 26 (AP).—One man is dead, another dying and a third seriously burned as the results of the explosion of a 100-gallon still here tonight. Flames caused by the explosion practically destroyed a four-family dwelling house and set fire to the rear of a five family tenement. Nine families were driven out by the fire. The loss is estimated at $12,000.

The man killed is Dominick Loberine, 40 years old. He was blown through the door of a garage where the still was located. Michael Obanec, 32, received burns about the back, chest and legs and is not expected to recover.

Ferdinand Rozas, 30 years old, of New York, who attempted to beat out the flames on the other men's clothing, received burns about the hands and arms.

3 Killed as Tower Falls in Hungary.

SZABADKA, Hungary, Aug. 26 (AP).—Three persons were killed today when a storm blew down a church tower here. Six men who were boating are missing. Hundreds of bathers were compelled to return home in their swimming costumes after the storm had wrecked 500 bathing cabins on the waterfront.

DR. RAPPARD SAYS WORLD AMITY GAINS

WANTS COUNTRY SATISFIED

Declares Europe Can Wait for Us to Join, but Could Not Survive a Sudden Withdrawal.

Dr. William E. Rappard, Swiss member of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations, was guest of honor last night at a dinner at the Metropolitan Club by the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association. After being introduced by John W. Davis, Dr. Rappard discussed the League of Nations, with reference to the possibilities of America's participation in it, and also spoke on the operation of the Mandates Commission.

"The basic principle underlying the covenant says that international force as a servant of international right should be substituted for international amity," he said, "and that principle involves two processes—the first the establishment of the right and wrong in any dispute and the second the enforcement of the right. The latter function has not progressed; instead, it has regressed. Force is fading into the background as a mean of enforcing right, but we are much nearer true international cooperation than we have been at any time since the war.

Functions of the League.

"The League has two great functions. One is to prevent war and the other is to further international cooperation. Founded to prevent war, it has done much more toward furthering amity between nations and avoiding the friction that so often results in war, and this is a real step toward prevention. America, by her increasing interest in the World Court, gives indications of being more favorably disposed toward the League than she formerly was. An alliance between a rich man and a poor man is, of course, more advantageous to the poor man, and this is one of the great obstacles in the way of America's participation in the League. But there is coming about a gradual and sure improvement in economic conditions in Europe which will in time dispel this objection.

"I cannot conceive of the world made up of separate nations in the year 2,000, nor can I conceive of a league at that time without America in it," Dr. Rappard said. "I had much rather have America wait until its people are satisfied that the League will operate for their advantage as well as the advantage of all other nations, instead of having the nation enter the League without due consideration, only to sever its connection at a later date. The League can sustain America's absence for a certain length of time, not indefinitely, but it could not survive a merely temporary participation followed by a total withdrawal."

Speaking of the operation of the Mandates Commission, Dr. Rappard said, "The principle underlying the commission is that no territory under mandate is to be considered as a spoil of war, but is to be administered by one nation for all nations; the principle of national administration under international supervision. The best success of the League has been obtained by this commission, and the most permanent results have been reached by it. It is an efficient tool for two reasons; first, the mandatory powers have played the game admirably, and second, the officials of various countries, free from the supervision of their Governments, have co-operated to the fullest extent.

"Even such a detail as the fact that the commission is bilingual has had its effect in promoting harmony between delegates from different countries. Another rather peculiar thing about the commission is the fact that diplomats come to it saying that their countries have the highest standards of honor in the world, and when we come to a discussion of a particular problem these men find themselves obliged to act in accordance with the principles they have avowed, all of which makes for the solution of our problems on the highest ethical basis possible."

"Many men told me that America would never join the League, and several who were in favor of it in 1919 said that they did not favor it now. Certainly this attitude conflicts with the facts, for is it not true that the United States in the last four years has changed its mind about the League? Williamstown, of course, is not America. But is it an accident that there is such a place as Williamstown in America? No other country has a similiar gathering. And is it not significant that Williamstown is imitated in Washington, Chicago and other cities, with the idea of bringing together men who are qualified to speak on international relations? Do such conferences really express the policy of the Government to have nothing to do with the League?

"It seems to me that these conferences do indicate a trend, or at least a really active interest, of the part of Americans in international affairs. The League undoubtedly means economic and political security. The world will not survive another war, and the United States, I am sure, wants peace to prevail, and is unquestionably the greatest force to attain that end. The League, formed as a compromise between those who favored pure annexation and those who believed in impartial international administration, has discovered new reasons for its existence, and the fact that it is a going, spreading influence testifies to its success."

MOTHER GETS A JOB AND REJECTS CHARITY

Doesn't Need Contributions, She Writes in Thanking Those Who Gave Donations.

Mrs. Eva Seidelman of 240 Grand Street, Brooklyn, who told Magistrate Short last week that she had stolen a bottle of milk because her four small children were hungry and her husband had been out of work for six months, has obtained work and is now able to keep her home together. The charge against Mrs. Seidelman was dismissed when the complainant failed to appear in court.

When the story of the arrest of Mrs. Seidelman appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES its readers were stirred to sympathy and three contributions for her were received. There was one of $3 from Mrs. M. S. Schoolherr of 222 Central Park South, one of $3 in the name of Pilchar and an anonymous gift of $5.

The first of these was forwarded at once to Mrs. Seidelman, but it was returned with the notation: "Thanking you for your trouble and to your readers for their kindness and good-will. We enclose check because we don't need charity that I am working now."

The $3 contribution from Mrs. Schoolherr has been returned to her; the anonymous gifts have been put into the fund for the Hundred Neediest Cases.

285 HURT ON HIGHWAYS.

Westchester Accidents in July Mounted, Survey Shows.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The report of the Public Safety Bureau of the Westchester County Chamber of Commerce for July, made public today, revealed that 394 persons were injured badly enough to require hospital treatment during the month, of whom 285 were hurt in highway accidents. This is the largest number injured in any single month in the county.

Compared with the June record of 195 persons injured, of whom 143 were hurt in highway accidents, the record shows an alarming lack of caution, especially on the part of motorists, according to Colonel Carl F. Hartmann, Director of the bureau. There were 1,200 motor accidents in which no one was injured, according to the report.

British Unemployed Now 1,298,000.

HAILS RISING SPIRITUAL TIDE

Straton Says Move in South and West Will Sweep Country.

An outburst of religious enthusiasm for the "old fashioned gospel truths" is on its way, Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, said last night at a meeting of the church after his return from a tour of the South and West. He declared that he had been delighted by the evidences he found of deep attachment to Fundamentalism.

"There is a rising tide of spiritual earnestness preparing in the South and West which will sweep the country," he said. "It constitutes the forerunner of a marvelous spiritual awakening in America. God's time is ripe for the blessing of this country."

Dr. Straton said he intended to make a strong campaign against modernism, evolution and the failings of the present generation.

PICKS VANDERBILT REFEREE

Court Names Lawyer to Investigate Prior to Sale of Home.

Supreme Court Justice Levy appointed Isador J. Kresel, a lawyer of 40 Wall Street, referee yesterday to take proof regarding the estate of Cornelius Vanderbilt. The action followed a petition filed with the Supreme Court several day ago by Mrs. Alice G. Vanderbilt for permission to sell the old Vanderbilt home at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street for $7,100,000 in cash.

Mrs. Vanderbilt is merely a life tenant of the house and the approval of the court is necessary to safeguard the heirs to whom the property would pass at her death. The others interested in the estate have approved the petition made by Mrs. Vanderbilt.

BANKER HERE ON OLYMPIC.

G. M. McGarrah to Issue Statement Soon on German Finance.

Gates M. McGarrah, Chairman of the Mechanics and Metals Bank and American director of the Reichsbank, Berlin, returned yesterday on the Olympic from Germany, where he has spent considerable time since the Dawes plan was put into operation. The banker declined to comment on the financial or economic situation in Germany, but said he would issue a statement from his office in a few days.

Another passenger was Dr. George A. Vincent, President of the Rockefeller Foundation, who returned from his annual visit to the headquarters of the Foundation in Paris.

Miss Cornelia Copeland, sister of United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, was also a passenger.

The Olympic was delayed twelve hours through fog and strong westerly winds with high head seas. She had 1,506 passengers and 6,000 sacks of mail.

"Don't Sell America Short"

—But Morgan never meant one always should be "long"

SINCE the late J. Pierpont Morgan uttered his famous "Don't Sell America Short," some twenty years or more ago, American business has multiplied and re-multiplied in proving his prophecy sound.*

All industrial leaders agree that "Don't Sell America Short," is as good doctrine today as ever—and will be good doctrine—far beyond the present generation.

But its safe application, they point out, rests with the individual.

* * * *

"Pressure," suggests HINMAN in a recent article, "is probably the outstanding characteristic of American business methods today. But the question is, how much pressure will a given business stand? Founded on the enthusiasm of post war success, when it was almost as hard to lose money as to make it, will American pressure methods become a national peril?"

* * * *

There are times and conditions which leave no doubt that selling and advertising should be forced to their utmost—to gain a great market quickly, or, to take advantage of certain fortunate conditions whereby profits may be multiplied or leadership established.

On the other hand, under differing conditions, curtailment must be advocated, but based, however, on safety from competitive attack.

Peak sales, gained under unusual conditions, often are viewed as fair criterions of what are normal possibilities. Leaps and jumps may be mistakenly judged as natural and permanent rises.

As a result, sales and advertising may be "pressed" beyond the bounds of wisdom, and the perils of over-expansion, unwise and untimely expenditures invited.

Rightly balanced progress is safe progress. For American manufacturers, the sure and lasting progress, which Morgan truly prophesied, is that which comes from finding an equilibrium between sales and selling expense, between advertising results and advertising costs—thus fitting expansion plans to market possibilities.

* * * *

In such programs of economic sales and profit balance, the experienced advertising agent, we believe, plays an important part.

His creed is "Caution—Yet Aggression,"—"Pressure—But Based on Sound Analysis." Seeking both leadership and sustained profit for his clients, his every move is prompted in belief that the end must justify the means.

Thus pressure is urged when pressure is needed. And retrenchment advocated when safety so permits. For only in the correctly balanced application of those two factors can the goal of both leadership and profit be attained and maintained.

UNION DENIES PLOT TO IMPORT BRITONS

OUTLINES 1921 MISSION

Says Envoy Went Abroad to Extend Aid of Body to Laborers Expecting to Come Here.

Answering charges made by Edward J. McGivern, President of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers' International Association, that the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union tried to induce British workmen to come here illegally in 1923, Acting President George T. Thornton of the Bricklayers' Union issued a statement yesterday, in which he said:

"In 1923 there was a considerable influx of men to our trade from the British Isles, owing to unemployment there and a great demand for building trade mechanics here.

"The Operative Plasterers were beginning their invasion of our territory at that time. We had information that Peter Cook, Vice President of that organization, was going to England and Scotland and we had an intimation as to his purpose. We felt that it was his purpose to induce plasterers coming here to join the Operative Plasterers, which was engaged in hostilities against us. For political reasons Michael J. Colleran of New York was sent instead of Cook, but Cook followed Colleran and did make the tour as he had planned.

"We felt that plasterers over there would be confused about the two organizations and would accept the idea that our organization, commonly referred to as the Bricklayers' Union, consisted only bricklayers, whereas it comprising bricklayers, stone masons, plasterers, cement masons, tile setters, marble setters and terrazo workers.

"We desired Peter Shaughnessy, who was then abroad as our representative, to caution plasterers who might be planning to come here that our organization was an organization of plasterers as well as bricklayers, and that we would welcome them as members without an initiation fee. As members the machinery of our organization for locating employment would be at their service, as it always is.

"Mr. McGivern has still to explain how he received a cablegram not addressed to him. Mr. Shaughnessy says he did not receive the cablegram. Mr. McGivern says he sent it to Mr. Madden ought to be able to tell how he got it and whether he got it in a proper manner.

"That a copy of the cable has not been found in our office is probably due to the fact that we have not recovered from the confusion caused by moving our headquarters from Indianapolis to Washington, D. C.

"I think it should be clear that our cablegram was a proper act of courtesy and under the circumstances was necessary to straighten out misunderstanding among plasterers abroad and was not in any sense a violation of the United States immigration laws by our Union or our representative, Peter Shaughnessy, as charged by Mr. McGivern.

"Furthermore, we never sent any cable or any other communication to Germany, or to the agents or representatives of any organization in that country or any other country."

Bursted Main Floods Boston Streets

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—The bursting of a 12-inch high pressure water main in front of the Old State House, today, converted State Street into a rushing torrent as far as the water front and flooded numerous side streets, especially Devonshire and Broad, for half an hour. Basements were flooded and two of the subway lines which cross at right angles beneath the Old State House were filled with several inches of water that ran over the curb and down the stairs. Sidewalk elevations were ripped up and thousands of wooden paving blocks dislodged and carried forward. The damage was such that sections of State and Devonshire Streets were roped off against all traffic even after the water had been turned off.

FEAR BOYS DROWNED IN HOSPITAL ESCAPE

Two boys who were inmates of the New York Children's City Hospital for mental defectives on Randall's Island escaped from that institution early yesterday by swimming across the Harlem River, but as no trace of them was discovered the police fear they may have drowned.

They were Joseph Grano, 14 years old, of 128 Wade Place, Brooklyn, and Thomas Wilson, 13 years old, who had no home. They were committed to the hospital on the request of the Public Guardians' Society.

Each of the boys was undersized and underweight. Their absence was discovered at the breakfast hour when roll call of the other 400 boys in the institution was made.

One of the other boys reported he had seen them start for the river a few minutes previously. Wilson, he said, were only his nightshirt.

Guards were sent across the river in boats and the mainland police were notified immediately. Detectives from the East 126th Street Station searched the river front, and an alarm was sent to the Missing Persons Bureau at Police Headquarters.

The Harlem at this point—126th Street—is about a quarter of a mile wide. The current is swift, and it was not believed the youths could have crossed it, although another way to the institution reported by any there climb up the opposite bank.

Dr. Charles McGoffin, Superintendent of the hospital, said the boys probably had learned they were to have been transferred to the main hospital at Central Islip, N. Y., and, dreading the removal, had attempted to escape.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

Miss Gould's New Theatre.

THE MERRY WIDOW, with Mae Murray, John Gilbert, Roy d'Arcy, Josephine Crowell, George Fawcett, Tully Marshall, Cont. Conti, Sidney Bracy, Don Ryan, Hugh Mack, Ida Moore, Lucille Van Leer, Charles Margelis, Harvey Karels, Edna Tichenor, Gertrude Bennett, Zella Zarrano, Jacqueline Gadsdon, Estelle Clark, d'Arcy Corrigan, Clara Wallick, Frances Primm, Zack Williams, Eugene Pouget and others. Adapted from the musical comedy of the same name. Directed by Erich von Stroheim. At the Embassy.

It was just before 8 o'clock last night when the finishing touches had been put on the new Embassy motion-picture theatre, of which Miss Gloria Gould is managing director. Nevertheless, fifteen minutes later, the audience, composed of society people, film magnates, novelists and stage and screen favorites, began to arrive. Miss Gould stood in the foyer receiving congratulations from many of the persons who were there to witness Erich von Stroheim's production of "The Merry Widow," the photoplay which inaugurated the new theatre's career.

It is a chummy little theatre, with comfortable seats, artistically lighted and decorated. It seats about 400 and is the latest toy of Marcus Loew. It was a sweltering night and therefore no time to judge of the efficiency of the ventilating system. Along the rows of seats one saw sweltering men and women waving their hats, fans, programs and mopping their faces with handkerchiefs. The price of tickets for the opening was $5.50, but most of the spectators were guests of the management. Outside two great arc lights threw a glare upon the little building; not that it was needed, but obviously to draw a crowd, so that many of the passersby would be aware that something not quite usual was going on at Forty-sixth Street and Broadway. There was, therefore, quite a struggle when the throng poured out of the building and had to fight its way through the crowd that had gathered before the doors. This is a weakness motion picture producers have; their motto seems to be "Look—and go and tell the world."

Mr. von Stroheim's last pictorial effort was "Greed," which was based on Frank Norris's story, "McTeague," prior to that he was chiefly remembered for "Foolish Wives," a film on which Carl Laemmle is said to have spent $1,000,000. In this current mileage of celluloid Mr. von Stroheim at times evinces a tendency to what might be termed an Emile Zola-Elinor Glyn complex. He is strong for violent love, but delights in having a little convenient mud somewhere in the vicinity. He has also a weakness for Prussian heads, well shaved, and for men who use monocles when inquisitive about the appearance of a lady with light feet. There are close-ups of ankles, of booted feet, and of Mae Murray with a tear-stained countenance.

This picture is one of strong passions, and it is in many respects ably directed. There are points where it would have been better for Mr. von Stroheim to have an iron hand over him. You see the arrival of Monteblanc's royalty, and the next scene shows you a few pigs. This is a true Stroheim touch. He wishes to give you continual contrasts, and should a splendidly uniformed Prince in white, red and gold fall, it is not on a dry pavement but in some convenient pool of the blackest mire. If the hero, the younger Prince, falls by the wayside after much wine, dancing and song, he is discovered a huddled heap on the bridle path, still very much inebriated. These two Princes were accustomed to stealing kisses from every girl they encountered, and much is their amazement when the royal osculation meets with a rebuff.

The Widow is, of course, impersonated by Mae Murray, who demonstrates true acting ability in this effort. Hitherto she was like a top, and one seldom caught much more than a flash of her face. Here she stands still; she wears her costumes with a full realization of their splendor. She is a poor dancing girl, with cubistic lips, when she is introduced. The two Princes think that she is wonderful, even in her ugly, plaid skirt, and they sit her between them at a table. There is then the time-worn display of conversational feet, and the comedy of the two men touching each other's boots, believing them for an instant to be Sally's tiny slippers.

No such picture would be complete without one or two scenes of life in Paris, and in this instance we stay for a while in Maxim's, where, according to this man with the Zola-Glyn complex, Princes come in their full regalia—cloaks, decorations, topboots, and collars three and a half inches high.

There is a beautiful duel scene—not that the conflict is especially wonderful, but the location on which the duel is held is admirable, almost like an etching. One thinks, after viewing it, that it is just the place for a pistol fight. There are fine, leafless trees flanking a carpet-like meadow, and overhanging the scene is a mist that might belong to the dawn. The Princes arrive, for these brothers are to fight. Our hero, played by John Gilbert, listens to the instructions, and when the count comes he aims his pistol in the air. He turns his breast to his brother's pistol and that scoundrel takes full advantage of it and proves that he can shoot moderately well—straight enough to wound badly and cause a lot of worry to the heroine.

Both Mr. Gilbert and Roy d'Arcy as the two Princes, acquit themselves with distinction, especially Mr. d'Arcy, who is seen in the rôle of the Crown Prince. He perhaps makes it too patent that he is not accustomed to wearing a monocle, through his constant fingering of this bit of glass. But he has a leer, a wicked-looking open mouth filled with perfect teeth, and a nasty stoop to his shoulders. His is really a fine stretch of acting, a little exaggerated in spots, but nevertheless something to make one think about, and which brings back memories of Guy de Maupassant's "Mademoiselle Fifi."

Before closing this criticism we must mention the skillful performance rendered by Tully Marshall, who comes into his own in the part of the old roué who sought the hand of the fair Sally, and then made her a wealthy widow.

This is not a production to which one ought to take those who have finer sensibilities. It is meant for a riotous love story, and as such it is cleverly pictured. And the closing scenes made in color are beautiful, as one perceives the colored uniforms, the glittering gems, the pearls and the ermine in the gold crown.

And we might add that "The Merry Widow" waits has lost none of its charm.

The Successful Imposter.

IN THE NAME OF LOVE, with Greta Nissen, Ricardo Cortez, Wallace Beery, Raymond Hatton, Lillian Leighton, Edythe Chapman and Richard Arlen, based on Bulwer Lytton's play, "The Lady of Lyons," directed by Howard Higgin; "Sea Bernie and His Rialto Merry-Makers"; "With Pencil, Brush and Chisel," showing an artist at work; "Watch Out," a comedy with Bobby Vernon. At the Rialto.

A wild, wild picture that travels under the title of "In the Name of Love," and which boasts of having been based on Bulwer Lytton's "The Lady of Lyons," is the chief attraction at the Rialto this week. It is a curious mixture of highly improbable action, crude comedy and an unsympathetic heroine and hero.

Greta Nissen, the Norwegian actress, impersonates Marie Dufrayne, a hopeless young snob who dashes through the winding streets of a small French village in her expensive car. Miss Nissen is an appealing and clever actress, with a striking personality. One also perceives Ricardo Cortez, in the rôle of Raoul Melnotte. Mr. Cortez has evidently won his film spurs through his dreamy-eyed stare and not through his expensive smile, which is good natured and all that sort of thing, but a little more capacious than one imagines a hero's smile ought to be. But that's not all, as Wallace Beery figures in the part of a comedy villain, wearing in some scenes a glossy silk hat when in his shirt sleeves. He sprawls over an arm chair, and chews the end of a cigar, to emphasize that he is a parvenu who bought a title.

Lillian Leighton is cast as the Mother Dufrane. She is a comedienne who might do fairly well in certain interludes of most startling custard pie subjects but in this story she is quite out of place. If one wanted to say anything really serious about this picture one would declare that her performance, as directed by Howard Higgin, is silly.

Here we have Raoul and Marie in the same spot in France after a long, long absence. Marie, as a little girl, wrote on a golden heart "Mon Prince," and ever since that time Raoul has been thinking of making Marie his bride. When he arrives in the small town with his mother he learns that Marie is much disliked, and, of course, just when he is discussing the girl with a villager, Marie bowls along in her glistening roadster and splashes mud over Raoul.

Marie has rivals for her hand. There is the awful Glavis (Mr. Beery) and the sycophantic but imaginative Marquis de Beaumont. She hears them discussing her and that ends their hopes. They want to humiliate her and quickly prevail upon Raoul to pose as the Prince de Como, who, according to the newspaper, is somewhere in the vicinity. Raoul had been sending flowers, principally orchids, to Marie when she was laboring in a garage. Discovery of his temporary occupation put an end to the interest Marie had hitherto manifested in his low-voiced protestations of affection over the telephone.

Raoul then meets the girl he had known in the olden days, not as Raoul, but as the Prince de Como. Through his coconspirators he is able to buy a full wardrobe of Italian uniforms bedecked with decorations, and he forthwith casts a glamour in the Dufrayne home. He is eventually married to Marie in a uniform which reminds one of a French curassier.

The most amusing scene in this picture is a glimpse of the real Prince de Como, who is fate and elderly. He is obviously one of the last men who would consent to be married in a broadcloth uniform and a brass helmet.

While Miss Nissen cannot make an unconvincing character convincing, she does show that she is a talented young person before the camera. Her performance is always interesting, and there are constant changes in her appearance which are quite beguiling.

The scenario writer and the director had a chance to make an interesting photoplay of this narrative, but they have failed miserably.

ARLEN HERE FOR PLAY.

Michael Arlen, author and playwright, arrived yesterday on the Olympic to witness the premier of "The Green Hat," adapted from one of his books, which has already been produced in London. He will remain in New York to see the production of his play "These Charming People" and will also go to Hollywood to supervise the filming of his play "Cross Roads of the World," in which Pola Negri is to be starred.

Mr. Arlen said that he also intended to do a cinema play for Winchell Smith but declined to give the title. He said that he had not written any new books since he was in New York last and had spent his spare time adapting his short story "Ace of Cads" for the stage.

FILMS LURE SOCIETY LEADER

Wealthy Mexican Matron Plans to Enter Movies in Hollywood.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26 (AP).—Society has been stirred by the announcement that Senora Dolores Asunsolo Martinez del Rio, one of the wealthiest society matrons in Mexico City, will enter the movies at Hollywood. The announcement was made at a farewell banquet which General Eduardo Iturbide, a bank President, gave in her honor last night.

Senora Martinez del Rio's husband has given his consent, and she is soon to leave for California.

American movies are popular in Mexico, having devotees as enthusiastic as any in the United States, but this is the first time that the lure of the screen has captivated one of society's leaders.

Film Actress to Wed Auto Man.

Miss Helen T. C. Haddock of 315 Washington Street, Astoria, an actress with the Famous Players Film Company, announced yesterday that she will be married to Herbert A. Sudhoff of 24 West Seventy-fourth Street, Manhattan, on Sept. 8. The ceremony will be performed in St. Patrick's Cathedral by the Rev. Father Quinn. Miss Haddock represented New Haven, her home town, in several beauty contests in the last few years. Mr. Sudhoff is an officer in the Studebaker Motor Car Corporation of New York.

Grand Opera at the Century.

Grand opera will be given at the Century Theatre for four weeks beginning Monday, Sept. 21, by the San Carlo Grand Opera Company, under the management of Fortune Gallo. Popular prices will be charged, ranging from 83 to 50 cents. The subscription list is now open.

MOVIES TO SWELL ROLL OF LABOR FEDERATION

Picture to Be Used in Membership Drive Will Trace History of Organization in Nation.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 26.—A moving picture campaign to increase membership in the American Federation of Labor will be conducted throughout the country, beginning the middle of September, according to William Green, President of the Federation, who left this city today for Washington.

The scenario for the picture is being written now by a well-known author, Mr. Green said, and it will be revised during the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, to be held on the Steeplechase Pier here the first week in October. The Executive Council will establish headquarters at the Ambassador Hotel.

"There are more than 5,000,000 members of the Federation in the United States," said Mr. Green, "several thousand having been added since last year. However, there are fewer unions in the Central South than anywhere else, and a general organization drive is advisable. The moving picture campaign will undoubtedly result in the addition of many thousands of new members within a few months."

The picture, said Mr. Green, will tell the story of organized labor from its beginning in this country. Prints will be made and given to lecturers who will conduct open meetings free to the public.

Mr. Green declared that the proposal to lower the wages of the textile workers in the New England States was "deeply unjust." He pointed out that no industry was protected better by tariff than the textile, and that there was no reason for reducing wages, particularly since living costs still maintained a high level.

The American Federation of Labor will not intervene in the anthracite coal situation, Mr. Green asserted, the United Mine Workers having complete authority to act and the dispute being one for them to settle with the operators. He expressed a hope, however, that the matter would be settled amicably, avoiding a strike.

REINHARDT CAN'T COME TO AMERICA THIS YEAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 26.—Max Reinhardt is not going to America this year, according to statements by those close to the world-famous Austrian producer. Accordingly, the negotiations between Reinhardt and Morris Gest at Salzburg led to no results. It is even doubtful whether Reinhardt will go to America next year, as he is apt to be kept busy by engagements in Vienna and Berlin.

It is rumored in Salzburg theatre circles that efforts are being made in New York to win over Reinhardt as a film producer. He is said to have received an exceptional offer from a newly formed film corporation, which may repurchase film and refilm it under Reinhardt's direction.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Book of Charm" will open at the Comedy Theatre on Sept. 5 instead of next Tuesday night.

The musical version of "If I Were King" will be entitled "The Vagabond King." It will open at the Casino Theatre on Tuesday night, Sept. 15.

An English translation of Romain Rolland's "Wolves" will be acted at the Hedgerow Theatre in Philadelphia tonight. The play was originally acted here in Yiddish, and was subsequently announced for Broadway, but never produced.

Frank Thomas has been engaged for "Gunpowder."

A musical version of "Not So Long Ago" will be produced soon by the Shuberts, with Joseph Santley and Ivy Sawyer in the leading roles. Edward Kunneke has written the score and Clifford Grey the lyrics.

"An Ace in the Hole," by Tom Dugan and William Prescott, is announced for production by Rufus LeMaire.

Another company of "Is Zat So?" the third, will begin a tour in Baltimore on Sept. 21.

"The Red Knight," a play by Edmond McKenna, will be produced in San Francisco on Sept. 20.

SIEGFRIED

"'Siegfried' is a serious and enviable accomplishment. The narrative itself creates a steady interest, and at times it is absolutely fascinating."
—Mordaunt Hall, The Times.

"Any attempt to indicate in mere words the extraordinary experience which awaits visitors at the Century Theatre during the next four weeks becomes suddenly pale and feeble in the midst of the visions of splendor which now arise magically in our mind at the very mention of the name of 'Siegfried.'"

—Warren Nolan, Eve. Telegram.

—The Moviegoer, The Sun.

"Another wonderful production by UFA, the company that gave us 'The Last Laugh.' By all means see it."—Rose Pelswick, Evening Journal.

"The picture is awe-inspiring and must have cost millions and taken years to make. We cheerfully recommend it."—Harriet Underhill, Herald-Tribune.

"'Siegfried' stands alone among films. The score from the Wagnerian operas was arranged by Hugo Riesenfeld in masterly fashion. Children should be taken to see 'Siegfried' for educational purposes. Everyone should see 'Siegfried.'" —Delight Evans, Morning Telegraph.

"The picturization of the Nibelungen and Norse Saga is a worthy accomplishment. UFA has made a film that stands distinctive and in a class by itself, and in addition, makes an interesting and entertaining screen play. Paul Richter as 'Siegfried' is as handsome as a Greek god."—Louella O. Parsons, American.

"'Siegfried' is the most impressive, most dignified picture we have ever seen. It is a shiny cloak of medieval splendor. It is the Norse sagas you read about in childhood come to life. It is a richly imaginative piece of work that cannot be overpraised. This is one time all doubt can be washed from the overworked saying, 'Go to see it.' It's well worth it. A beautiful experience—truly."
—Mildred Spain, Daily News.

"'Siegfried' is magnificent. It is a great drama, palpitating romance and dynamic action. Wonderful set and exquisite photographic effects. The most magnificent production we have seen in many a long, long day."

"'Siegfried' we predict is destined for a long run. Certainly the picture is a triumph and answers definitely in the affirmative the oft-discussed question as to whether the cinema art may effectively be employed to recreate the impressive grandeur of classic opera. It isn't too much to say that 'Siegfried' is unquestionably the most nearly perfect production of a great classic that the screen can give us."—Regina Cannon, Evening Graphic.

Thank You

I HAVE never been so thrilled as I was last night at the reception accorded the opening of my Embassy Theatre. I am now convinced that my idea of an intimate playhouse is a successful one. My selection of "The Merry Widow" was justified by the unprecedented enthusiasm which greeted this remarkable Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for your sympathetic co-operation. My only regret is that our walls were not elastic for this premiere so that more people could have been there. But our program is running twice daily now at 2:45 and 8:45, and since all seats are reserved I can assure everyone a comfortable and enjoyable time.

SEVEN DAYS

It is Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood's famous farce made into an hilarious photoplay by Al Christie.

It has as many laughs as July has mosquitoes, and is as savory as a porterhouse steak to a starving stevedore.

It is the sort of motion picture that makes hope hop high; that titillates the tantalized, and arouses the gloomy into hearty guffaws.

It has as mirth-provoking a story as ever marched gayly and uproariously into the celluloid.

GIANTS WIN FIRST, THEN LOSE IN 13TH

LUQUE AT HIS TOP FORM

HOW THEY STAND.

As a result of breaking even with the Reds yesterday, while the Pirates were defeating the Braves, the Giants lost half a game, and are now five and a half games behind, as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
New York	70	55	.560

If the Pirates win half of their remaining thirty-six games, the Giants must win twenty-one of their twenty-nine games to take the pennant, as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Pittsburgh	90	64	.584

If the Pirates maintain their present pace and win twenty-two of their thirty-six games, the Giants will then have to take all but four of their twenty-nine contests to finish in front, as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.

By HARRY CROSS.

The Giants and Cincinnati divided a generous baseball menu fifty-fifty up at the Polo Grounds yesterday, New York winning the first with Irish Meusel's home run, 6 to 5, while the Redlegs took the second in thirteen innings, 2 to 1. The 15,000 fans who sat in at the proceedings saw a couple of games which were saturated with thrills and nervous disorders.

It will be many a long day before there will be a better ball game to watch than the long thirteen-inning affair during which Adolfo Luque and Jack Scott had a pitching duel which made the folks forget that they had to get home to dinner. The Cuban has rarely done a better job than this and behind him the Rhinelanders contributed wonderful support.

With the score tied at 1 to 1, Scott weakened in the thirteenth. Honey Walker opened with a single through second which Frisch was lucky to knock down. Heilke sent him along with a sacrifice and Critz fanned. Caveney earned a wreath of bay leaves for himself by punching a single to centre which brought Walker dashing over the plate with the winning run.

Red Defense Blocks Giants.

When the Giants went up to take their last chance at the bat, they ran up against a defense which was as solid as Gibraltar. Southworth hammered a long drive almost to the clubhouse in centre-field. It bore all the labels of a home run. Eddie Roush turned and galloped toward the centrefield gates as if he was hurrying to grab an Eighth Avenue car. He leaped cloudward and speared the drive with his gloved hand.

And that wasn't all. After Frisch died at first, Irish Meusel smashed a terrific drive into left field. It looked as if the ball were going to be parked in the lower stand. Elmer Smith, playing in left, went up as if he was on a springboard and hauled the ball down with one hand just as it was about to kiss the concrete wall. They don't make any better catches than these two anywhere, any place, any time.

The opening game found Eppa Rixey on the mound against Zeke Barnes. Neither of them lasted the game out. Rixey was derricked in the sixth for a pinch hitter and Bleimiller took his place. Jakie May was pitching in the ninth when Meusel produced his circuit slap which broke up the matinee.

Manager Jack Hendricks tried desperately to take the opening pastime. He used up all the talent of eighteen players in his eagerness to climb closer to second place. It was a give-and-take scrap and anybody's game up to the point when Meusel's bat went on a spree.

Lead Shifts Back and Forth.

The Redlegs got away to a two-run start in the first inning of that initial contest, but in the sixth the Giants went after Rixey hard and went to the fore with three runs. They got one in the sixth and another in the seventh and regarded themselves as sitting pretty with the game in the bag.

The Rhinelanders had something to say about that in the eighth. They pounded Barnes out of the box and piled up three runs to tie the score. Fred Fitzsimmons stopped the rally after Luque's departure.

Luque displayed moments of great pitching in the eleventh and twelfth innings of the closing game. Hartley opened the twelfth with a single to centre and Slick took second as Jack Scott fanned. Southworth singled to left, and Luque, Bubbles, Hargrave and Roush held a conference and decided to pass Frisch and load the corners.

Three men aboard with only one out in the twelfth is not the most comfortable predicament in the world for a pitcher, but it did not appear to worry the Cuban. He turned on full steam ahead and Meusel streaked the ball to Pinelli. Ping chucked to Critz and forced Frisch and Huhey teased the ball to Heilke and doubled up Meusel. Then 14,000 of the 15,000 spectators took off their hats and brushed away the beads of perspiration from their noble brows. Wow!

Another Thrill in Twelfth.

And now, just glare at the twelfth. Terry sent a mean little roller to Pinelli and beat it out. Pinelli making a wild heave over Heilke's roof, which sent Terry to second.

Kelly laid down a bunt and Luque kicked the ball all over the lot, Terry going to third. The Cubanola made up for that error immediately. He fanned Jack Bentley and Eddie Farrell without ceremony, and Hartley was up.

Again the Red legs went into conference and voted unanimously to walk Hartley and fill the bases. They have plenty of nerve, these Rhinelanders. Jack Scott did his level best to aid his own cause and he swung hard enough to send the ball over into the Bronx but the best he got out of it was a roller to Luque, the Cuban tossing him out at first. Another wow.

The Reds went into the run business in the first inning of the opening fray. Zitzmann was handed a pass by Barnes and Pinelli pushed him along with a sacrifice. Roush doubled to left, scoring Zitz. Walker's safe slap to centre sent Roush home, Walker going to second on Southworth's fumble. Heilke ambled and Critz hit into a double play to close the chapter.

The Giants could do little with Rixey until the fifth. In that session, after Kelly flied out, Terry beat out a hit to short. Lindstrom's single sent Memphis Bill to third. When Jackson forced Lindstrom, Terry counted. Pancho Snyder then delivered a telling blow—a homer into the right field stand, upstairs and Jackson rollicked home in front of him.

New York kept right at it in the sixth. Southworth singled to right, and Frisch ballooned to the same direction. South stole second and scored on Meusel's double to left. Kelly and Terry were easy outs, but the Giants were in front. They added one more in the next inning. Lindstrom singled, and went to third on Jackson's one-base rap to right. When Snyder hit into a double play Lindstrom tallied.

Reds Tie Up the Count.

The Reds tied the score in the eighth. After Zitzmann fanned, Pinelli singled to left and landed at third on Meusel's fumble. Roush's single to second scored Pinelli. Honey Walker singled to left, and Heilke's single to left centre scored Roush. That was the end of Barnes, and Fred Fitzsimmons came to the rescue. As Frisch was tossing out Critz, Walker came over with the tying run. Fitz brought the rally to an end when Caveney sliced to Kelly in right.

ROBINS BEAT CARDS, GAIN FOURTH PLACE

FOURNIER'S HIT ENDS TIE

By RICHARDS VIDMER.

Gunner Guy Cantrell with his cannonball delivery sank the good ship Jolly Rogers into the second division and hoisted the Robins into fourth place at Ebbets Field yesterday. Gunner Guy pitched his first full game for the Flatbush flock and showed the men from Missouri so much smoke they thought they were in Pittsburgh.

Jack Fournier acted as gunner's mate in the bombardment, and although he failed to hit his fourth home run in three days—a mark he was shooting at with his heavy artillery—he just missed by the margin of a two-by-four plank. With the score tied in the last of the sixth and Buck Wheat bobbing around on first, Jack caught one of Flint Rhem's best selected North Carolina curves on the nose and drove it high, wide and handsome toward the sidewalks of Bedford Avenue.

The ball hit the top of the right field fence and bounded back in the field, but it served to bring Wheat home with the winning run and get Fournier around to third. Cox drove Fournier home with a single, and that left the Robins leading by 4 to 2. They remained in that position to the end.

Keeps Hits Well Scattered.

Gunner Guy graduated from the ranks of "the game" by his performances and probably will start several more games for the Robins before the shades of October descend on the merry whirl. He allowed just eight hits and kept them well distributed along the way. Only twice were the Cards able to collect more than one in an inning.

Flint Rhem also did some neat hurling for a while, but he weakened in the fifth when the Robins took the lead, and he faltered again in the sixth when the three musketeers, Wheat, Fournier and Cox, went out and won the game after the Cards had tied the score in their half in each of those innings the Robins made three hits. Otherwise they were held to a lone single, making a total of seven safe blows in all.

The Cards took the lead in the first, when a pass to Blades, Smith's single and an infield out gave them a run to ride on. They had quite a nice little trip until the fifth, when Johnston's single, De Berry's single that bounded over Thevenow's head and scooted between Smith's legs, allowing Johnston to score and De Berry to reach third, and Ford's single gave the Robins two runs and the lead.

The Cards came back in the sixth and tied it up on Blade's single, Smith's sacrifice and Hornsby's safety to right, but it didn't stay tied long. Fournier sent to that with his hefty hoist in the last half of the frame.

Robins' Infield Shines.

Gunner Guy was a little too free with his passes, but the Brooklyn infield was steady as the Rock of Gibraltar and turned in some smooth fielding to pull him out of several holes by his shoelaces. Four fast and furious plays turned back the Cards on the bases and flashing catches by Buck Wheat in the outfield cut off a couple of base hits that might have been damaging.

With Dazzy Vance ready to pitch today there's no good reason for the Robins to hope for less than a clean sweep of the series.

Pickups and Putouts

Freddy Lindstrom was injured again yesterday and will be out of the game for a few days. His right hand was spiked in the fourth inning of the second game at the Polo Grounds when Critz slid into third base.

The injury caused McGraw to make another change in his line-up. Frisch went to third and Eddie Farrell played short.

These Giants have a different line-up in every game they play. In the first game Kelly played in Young's place in right field, and in the second game Jack Bentley covered the right terrace, but didn't have much to do. He didn't have to catch a fly until the ninth inning.

The struggle for second place will be continued by the Giants and Reds this afternoon. Kent Greenfield will toss for New York, and Jake May probably will serve them up for Hendricks.

There haven't been two better games at the Polo Grounds this season than the pair yesterday. The Giants are a much better looking ball club against the Reds than they were when the Pirates were in town.

While Scott was tapped more generously than Luque, Farmer Jack pitched beautiful ball when the Reds threatened on the bases. But the Cuban had the better of it all the way.

By failing to get more than an even break yesterday while Pittsburgh was defeating Boston, the Giants slipped down half a game further away from the league-leading Pirates.

Detroit Links Cobb With Ford in Voting $1,000 to Celebrate Ty's 20th Anniversary

DETROIT, Aug. 26 (AP).—The City Council has voted $1,000 to provide a fitting testimonial to Tyrus Raymond Cobb, manager of the Detroit Americans. Cobb will celebrate his twentieth anniversary as a member of the club Saturday. Appropriate exercises are planned at Navin Field in the afternoon and a banquet is scheduled for Saturday night.

In asking for the appropriation, Mayor J. W. Smith said: "Two names in all Detroit's history are associated with the supreme degree of achievement in their respective fields. They are those of Henry Ford and Tyrus Cobb."

Ty Cobb joined the Detroit club in Aug. 29, 1905, and though he since has become one of the greatest and most valuable players in baseball history, he cost the Detroit club only $700. Ty, who was born on Dec. 17, 1886, began his baseball career in 1904 with the Augusta club of the Sally League, but showed no pronounced talent for baseball and hit for only .237 in thirty-seven games. He was sent to Anniston in the South Eastern League, but was returned to Augusta and then shipped to the Tigers.

In his first season with Detroit, 1905, he batted .240 in forty-one games, but it was not until 1906 that he showed the first flashes of his singular ability as a batsman, fielder and base runner. Tarlos in his major league career he has batted above .400. He hit for .420 in 1911, for .410 in 1912, and for .401 in 1922. Cobb's best year at stealing bases was in 1915, when he pilfered ninety-six. Cobb succeeded Hughey Jennings, now of the Giants, as manager of the Detroit club in December, 1920.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Johnny Rawlings was the star in Pittsburgh's 2 to 0 victory over the Boston Braves here today. The rest of the game was a pitching duel between Lee Meadows and Bobby Smith, who has graduated from infielder to pitcher. Smith allowed six hits and his Pirate rival nine, but the latter scattered his so that they were of no use to the Boston tribe.

Rawlings poled out a long homer for the second run in the ninth. Besides that, he made them all take notice on the field, accepting seven chances, five of them assists, successfully.

In the first, Eddie Moore worked Smith for a pass. Then Rawlings beat out a hit. Rasen Cuyler laid down a bunt and Smith failed to force Moore. With three men on base Barnhart then sent a long sacrifice fly for the run.

Until Rawlings got his home run in the ninth the Braves had several chances to tie the count, but on each occasion Meadows worked so well in the pinches that the Braves' hopes were shattered.

ATHLETICS BEATEN BY INDIANS, 8 TO 1

Lose Second Straight in Series as Harriss and Rommel Fail—Uhle Yields Only 5 Hits.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26 (AP).—Cleveland made it two straight over Philadelphia today, winning 8 to 1. Uhle held the Athletics to five hits and outpitched Harriss and Rommel, both of whom were knocked out of the box. Uhle started the attack with a triple.

The Mackmen fielded very loosely in the sixth inning, when the Indians batted around, scoring five runs. Philadelphia's only run was scored on a double by Cochrane and two infield hits. Uhle struck out six. He received brilliant support.

FABER HYPNOTIZES YANKS IN PINCHES

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 26.—Urban Faber, the patriarch of moist ball pitchers, waved his ancient arm aloft today and turned the Yankees back without a run. This, however, was no new experience for the Yanks. They have been whitewashed in nicer ball parks than the Comiskey stadium and by better pitchers than Faber. The Yanks have been blanked by experts.

Somebody slipped the baseballs into the ice box this morning and the result was one of those rare curios of the national industry—a 1 to 0 game. The White Sox gave Urban a run in the second inning, and he breezed along the rest of the distance against Herb Pennock. In the last seven innings the Yanks made only two hits and only four men got to first.

Still, Faber was several parasangs away from a masterpiece. At a conservative estimate the Yanks should have scored something more than a dozen runs in the first two innings. They filled the bases with nobody out in the opening round and couldn't score. The first two men singled in the second and the third was safe on an error and still the Yanks couldn't score.

Fail to Hit When Needed.

Five men left on bases in two innings explains a lot. It wasn't wholly poor base running or muddled thinking. It was simply inability to hit when a hit would have meant the ball game. Blame it on Mr. Faber. He drew a line in the dust near the plate and said, "This far but no farther." The Yanks never got below the dead line.

WAMPEE WINS PLATTSBURG

Carries Wilson Colors to an Easy Triumph—Lizard Takes Long Lake Chase.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Blockhead, bay son of Black Toney and Masks and Faces, carried the green-trimmed white silks of the Idle Hour Farm Stable to victory this afternoon in the twenty-third running of the Adirondack Handicap for two-year-olds, over the six-furlong course. In well under 122 pounds, and cleverly ridden by Alfred Johnson, Blockhead won in a driving finish with the Greentree Stable's Navigator, having a length advantage at the winning post. Blockhead was saddled by H. J. Thompson and went to the post the 6-to-5 favorite. He earned $3,825 for his owner and ran the distance in 1:13 3-5 over a fast track.

One of the largest mid-week crowds of the meeting turned out in the face of threatening storm clouds, which gathered an hour before post time for the first race. The rain held off and the sun shone at intervals during the afternoon. Players of form were rewarded, when five favorites came down in front, an unusual happening at this meeting.

Blockhead gained his first success of the meeting when he showed the way to seven other smart colts in the Adirondack. He might not have beaten the Greentree Stable's Navigator if Johnson had not taken a big chance with his mount when he was in close quarters on the turn. Johnson won the rail, and it looked as if he would be crowded back out of the contention. Johnson, however, jammed his way through and saved enough ground on the turn to straighten out in the lead.

Marche Militaire Shows Speed.

W. S. Kilmer's Sun Seeker broke into the lead from the outside when the barrier lifted, giving way to the Sagamore Stable's Chocolate Soldier. Blockhead was off well from an inside position and was right with the leaders around the turn. He took the lead when he got clear and held Navigator safely in the stretch drive. The Greentree Stable colt ran a good race under his top weight of 124 pounds, conceding 12 pounds to the winner.

A. C. Bostwick's Marche Militaire was the last of the field to get going, made up a lot of ground and was three lengths back to take third money from the Log Cabin Stud's Blackamoor. The latter was forced back to last place early in the race and had little chance, although he closed fast. The fractional times were 0:23; 0:47 2-5; 1:12 3-5.

Wampee carried the old-gold silks of President Wilson of the Saratoga Association to his second victory of the meeting, beating Mrs. R. I. Miller's Roland and Mrs. J. Bauer's The Roll Call in the Plattsburg Handicap. He was the second choice, at 8 to 5, The Roll Call being the 7-to-5 favorite, with Roland at 3 to 1.

Bar Gold Moves Up Fast.

The Long Lake Steeplechase Handicap was an easy victory for J. E. Widener's five-year-old gelding Lizard, it being his third straight. The French-bred son of Isarz II.—Lisette went to the front with the fall of the flag and Byers held him there throughout. At the end he won under double wraps from the Somerset Stable's Bar Gold by five lengths. Papyrus's traveling companion might have made it more interesting for the winner if Bethel had not allowed him to drop so far back in the early stages. He moved up fast after the first mile and a half and took the place by ten lengths from Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Tassel. The winner was the 6-to-5 favorite and ran the two miles in 4:17, the fastest time of the meeting for the distance.

J. E. Davis received some consolation for the disqualification of Reparation yesterday when his three-year-old gelding Storm King came home in front of a field of ten which ran the six furlongs of the claiming event for three-year-olds and upward. He was under top weight of 123 pounds and was forced to run the fastest six furlongs of the meeting—1:11 4-5—to beat A. C. Bostwick's Dream Maker by five lengths.

Emissary Home First.

Frankie Catrone rode a good race to bring W. A. Rosen's Emissary home a winner in the claiming event restricted to the three-year-olds over the mile route. The brown son of Ambassador IV. won well in hand, having a length and a half to spare.

THEODORE GUY WINS IN 2:08 PACE UPSET

JEAN GRATTAN SURPRISES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26 (AP).—Exciting finishes and upsets marked the getaway Grand Circuit card at North Randall today. Outsiders won the 2:08 pace and Spark Plug Special, which, with the two-year-old special trot, featured the well-balanced five-card event.

The 2:08 pace went to Theodore Guy, which won the first and third heats after fierce stretch brushes, but he could not get up in time to take the second from Phil O'Neil. The latter set the pace most of the way in each of the mile and an eighth heats, but the gait in the third stopped him. A $10 result ticket on Theodore Guy paid $95.

Hollyrood Susan took the colt race, being the only straight-heat winner of the day. She won easily. Wire Worthy, the favorite, was a victim of bad racing luck, going into a break in the first heat and being off to a poor start in the second. Josephine Volo, one of the outstanding fillies, was second in each heat.

The longest shot of the day was Jean Grattan, winner of the Spark Plug Special. A $10 result ticket rewarded her backers with $132.50. She won the first heat with Jakie O'Connor, the favorite taking the second and Sempre the third. Each heat was raced within a fraction of the record.

Donald A. took the first two heats of the 2:18 trot from Kentucky Todd Jr. It was the latter's first defeat in four starts at the meeting. Donald A. could not get up in the third heat, finishing second in a drive.

The final race of the meeting, the 2:14 pace, went to Silas J. Patchen, which finished ahead of Bonnie Watts, the favorite, in the last two heats.

Post and Paddock

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The equine exodus from Saratoga is already well under way. One division of the Rancocas outfit has departed and the Greentree horses will go out tomorrow. Of the hundreds of yearlings sold during the month scarcely fifty remain in the barns.

Emissary scored the third victory in two days for his sire, Ambassador IV. Priscilla Ruley and Peanuts were yesterday's winners for this sire.

That the course is just coming into its best condition as the meeting wanes was shown today, when Storm King ran the fastest of six furlongs and Lizard the best two miles since the horses came to the Spa.

Sam Hildreth, the Rancocas Stable's noted trainer, evidently intends to make his home in Saratoga. He has purchased the McQueen cottage, at Union and Nelson Avenues, for $41,000.

When Blockhead's number went up as the winner of the stake the band struck up "My Old Kentucky Home" in honor of E. R. Bradley, who has had all sorts of poor racing luck here for several years.

A. R. Glassner claimed Emissary, winner of the third race, from W. A. Rosen for $4,500.

Rothschild's 1,797,000 Francs Lead List in Yearling Sales

DEAUVILLE, France, Aug. 26 (AP).—Maurice de Rothschild, who has sold fourteen yearlings for a total of 1,797,000 francs, led the list of sellers in the Deauville August sales of thoroughbred horses. Guillermo Ham of Argentina, who sold fifteen yearlings for a total of 1,601,000 francs, was second. A. K. Macomber, American, who now owns the model breeding farm at Poissy formerly belonging to the late William K. Vanderbilt, was ninth with sales totaling a little less than 400,000 francs.

SKEETERS BEATEN IN 9TH BY SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Hallahan, young Syracuse left-hander, fanned a dozen Skeeters today and practically won his own game in the ninth with a triple, Myers running for him, scoring the deciding run. The score was 5 to 4.

The victory gave the Stars a record of five out of six on this series, each team winning and losing twelve on the year.

N. Y. PRINTERS BEAT CINCINNATI, 22 TO 8

Score Six Runs in Sixth and Seven in Seventh—Hegarty Gets 3 Hits, 4 Tallies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 26.—The New York union printers continued their heavy slugging in the printers' national baseball championship series here today and deluged the Cincinnati team, 22 to 8, advancing into the third round of the tournament.

The Gothamites scored in every frame except the fourth. Hard hitting accounted for six runs in the sixth inning and seven went across the plate in the seventh. Cincinnati errors aided in the scoring.

Cincinnati could do little with the pitching of Lang, who worked easily after his mates staked him to a big early lead. The ten hits he allowed were well distributed. Errors by New York also figured largely in the Cincinnati scoring.

The Cincinnati pitchers were subjected to a terrific mauling by the New Yorkers, who gathered a total of twenty-one safeties. Lang, Allgeir and Hayes smacked out long triples and Allgeir and Gorham each collected four safeties. George Hegarty got three hits and scored four runs.

New York was matched with Washington for tomorrow's game after the drawings were made here tonight. Boston, the other survivor, is to meet the winner of the Washington and New York game for the championship. The District of Columbia printers are defending the title they won last year at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., Aug. 26.—To the California, North and South and the Western open titles previously harvested, Macdonald Smith, professional at the Lakeville Country Club in Great Neck, today added the Long Island open championship. The Carnoustie Scots's total for the four rounds over the number one and number three courses of the Salisbury Country Club was 281, precisely the same total as the one he turned in at Youngstown, Ohio, less than a week ago to annex the Western open crown. His rounds were 70, 70, 68 and 73, eleven strokes under par for the seventy-two holes.

So blistering was Smith's pace that only one other in the field of more than 180 competitors was able to keep within range of vision. That one was Gene Sarazen of Fresh Meadow, the holder of the Metropolitan open championship, and even his view was somewhat obscured by the distance between them. Little Gene finished his four rounds exactly ten shots back of the Scot, his total being 291.

Sarazen started the last two rounds five strokes in arrears and he lost another five when he took a 73 this morning. In the last round he held Smith on even terms.

Klein Ties for Fifth.

Had it not been for the presence of the Fresh Meadow professional the margin of the winner would have been sixteen strokes, for the third mn, Jack Dowling of Engineers and James West of Rockaway Hunting, finished just that far behind, their totals being 297. W. Lee Klein, the brilliant Garden City Country Club assistant professional who has twice held the Long Island title and who was one of the three fancied to win the 1925 event, just managed to get into fifth place with a total of 299. He had to share the berth with two others who had similar totals, George Heron of Meadow Brook and Nick De Mane of Soundview.

The defending champion, James C. Malden of Nassau, finished far down in the list, his total for the four rounds being 301. Young Jack Mackie Jr. of Inwood, the New York State and Long Island junior champion, finished first among the amateurs, his total score being 308.

Seldom has any tournament been such a romp for the winner as this one was for Smith. Not once was he out of the lead and from the end of the first round until the finish of the last there never looked to be any other winner. His closing round of 73 was hardly up to the mark, but he was plainly tired during his session and the fact that he was leading by such a wide margin took some of the keenness out of his stroke making.

Mac practically clinched his victory when he registered that 68 in the third round. There were a few others who had brilliant totals during this stanza, but unfortunately they were men who were too far out of the running to make much difference so far as Smith was concerned. The 70 that E. W. Lucas and Jack Pirie had and the 69 that James Hines turned in were brilliant performances that helped their cause without injuring Smith's.

Klein Battles Sarazen.

With only one round to go, Smith had a total of 208 and the next in line was Lucas, who had vaulted over several heads as a result of his 70. Sarazen was third and Klein fourth, their totals being 218 and 220 respectively. Following these came Hines, Stewart Boyle and Al Ciucci, each a stroke apart with totals that began at 221.

For the last round the only fight that attracted any attention was the one between Sarazen and Klein. The latter faded out of the picture when he took a 44 for the first nine holes on the number 3 course, while Gene, striking religiously to par, held his place in the rear of Smith.

Both Dowling and West, who tied for third place, started their last two rounds with great deficits to make up. The first of these two diminutives came through with a 73 and a 72 while the second had a 74 and a 73. The best round in the afternoon was one made by Heron, who played with Smith. Heron returned a 71, after reaching the turn in 32. Both Dowling and Hines, who did well in the third round, slipped badly at the finish, the one getting an 83 to go with his 70 and the other an 80 to put on top of his 69.

Starting his third round over the number 3 course which is conceded to be the more difficult of the two on which the championship was decided, Smith had a birdie on the first hole. He reached the 453-yard green with a drive and an iron and holed out in two putts for a 4.

Gets Three Birdies in Row.

After a par 4 at the second he laid a spade-mashie shot within seven feet of the third hole and ran down the putt for another birdie. Another birdie 3 followed at the fourth, but he came to grief on the fifth, where he was trapped, the experience costing him a stroke. A par, a birdie and two more pars put him out in 34, three under the carded requirements.

Playing the 205-yard No. 10 hole, which had been his jinx, he used a driving iron and hooked a pit on the left, so that a 5 resulted. A 3 on the 390-yard twelfth was his only mishap on the remainder of the round. After getting birdies at the thirteenth and fourteenth he missed a five-foot putt on the fifteenth for what would have been his third consecutive birdie. He played short of the sixteenth deliberately, but slipped up dead for a bired 4, finished the hole with a par at the seventeenth and a birdie at the home hole, where he ran down a six-foot putt.

On his last round, Smith played the first nine holes in 33, one under par. His only mistakes came on the sixth, where he smothered his drive, and the seventh, where he took three putts from the edge of the green. These could hardly be classed as mistakes, as he got his par figures at both holes, but they were enough to prevent his being out in 33, as he might well have been.

He had a few adventures coming home, especially at the tenth and eleventh holes. On the tenth he was trapped and took a 6, and on the eleventh his spoon shot landed in back of a bunker and his second in the rough. He spent a 5 on the seventeenth, and while he failed to get the green at the last hole, a fine chip made his par 3 possible.

Sarazen played his third round on the No. 3 course and was two strokes over par at the end of the first nine. The two holes that he slipped on were the third, which cost him a 4, and the long sixth, where he took a 6 when he failed to reach the green with his third shot. After playing the first three incoming holes in par, Gene ran up a string of three strikes, but wasted one of them when he failed to get his 3 at the home hole. In the afternoon round he might have cut several strokes from his total except for the fact that his putter was not working as well as it should.

KNOWLES-PEACOCK TRIUMPH AT GOLF

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Ellis Knowles and G. N. Peacock of Apawamis won the best-ball foursome at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club here today with a best-ball of 70, five strokes under par. In this event, which acts as a curtain-raiser for the annual Westchester Biltmore invitation tournament, Knowles provided the thrill by making the round in 72.

The winners started out with a birdie 3 on the short par 4 first hole, but could not do better on any of the next four. On the sixth, Knowles got down a putt for a birdie 4. Only two birdies were scored on the second nine, one on the par 5 twelfth and another on the home hole, giving them a 35, two under par.

Takes Low Gross Prize in Westchester One-Day Tourney.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The Westchester County Golf Association one-day invitation golf tourney held here today at the Fenimore Country Club attracted more than 100 entrants. The low gross prize went to F. L. Ehrich of the Mount Vernon C. C. with an 84 and the low net to W. A. Jensen of Gedney Farms with a 66—23—73. Second low gross honors were divided between J. B. Carpenter of Grassy Sprain and Frank Levi of Quaker Ridge, who tied at 90. Mariscolo, also of Grassy Sprain, captured second low net prize with a 108—29—79.

Ehrich negotiated the first nine holes in 38. However, his playing fell off considerably on the way in and he took 46 for the last nine holes.

Borg Gets World Swim Marks.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 26 (AP).—Arne Borg on Monday swam 800 meters in 6 minutes 18 3-5 seconds and yesterday made 600 yards in 10 minutes 57.8 seconds. It is claimed that both these figures constitute World records.

PATTERSON-HAWKES WIN IN U. S. DOUBLES

JOHNSTON-GRIFFIN ADVANCE

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 26.—Three American teams and Gerald Patterson and John B. Hawkes of Australia stand as the survivors in the national tennis doubles championship tonight, after four of the longest matches ever played in the round before the semi-finals of this tournament. In the upper half Vincent Richards of New York and R. Norris Williams 2d of Philadelphia are bracketed with Robert and Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, defending champions, and in the lower division William Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco remain in the running with the Australian Davis Cup combination. These two teams will meet tomorrow at 3 o'clock and the upper semi-finalists will play at the same hour on Friday.

All four of the surviving teams went through an ordeal lasting from one hour to three hours. The first match began at 1 o'clock and it was not until 7 that the last one was finished, although it was started at 2. Three of the four went to the limit of five sets, while the fourth required four sets for a decision.

Patterson and Hawkes faced the most trying situation of all. George Lott and Lucian Williams of Chicago took the first two sets from the Australians, putting up an exhibition that took their opponents off their feet. The work of the young Western youths was little short of magnificent. Attacking with furious strokes from the net and baseline, they carried the fight to their opponents in such impetuous fashion that the Davis Cup pair was thrown into confusion and lost all control.

Change to Spiked Shoes.

It was not until after they had changed to spiked shoes during the period of intermission that Patterson and Hawkes found themselves. With this advantage over their tiring opponents, who continued to wear crepe-soled sneakers on the slippery turf, they held the situation under control to the end, putting the Chicagoans to rout with their cannonading from the net in the final set. The score was 0—8, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3.

The Kinsey brothers gained their semi-final bracket from Lewis White and Louis Thalheimer. With the score in sets 2—0 against them, the young Texans, who defeated LaCoste and Borotra on Tuesday, took the next two sets, attacking in daring fashion from the net, but they were unable to sustain their rally and the champions, placing their shots with a cleverness that could not be resisted, took the final set with plenty to spare. The score was, 7—5, 6—4, 6—2, 6—3.

William Tilden once again knew the experience of being put out of a national championship tournament before the semi-final round. The Philadelphian and his young protégé, Sandy Wiener, lost to Johnston and Griffin, but not until they had made a surprisingly strong fight and had held the lead to the final set. After two hours of play Johnston and Griffin made a strong finish and eliminated the champion and his partner, 7—9, 6—1, 5—7, 6—4, 6—1.

Richards and Williams accounted for the last foreign team in the tournament, defeating Manuel Alonso and Eduardo Flaquer of the Spanish Davis Cup team at 6—1, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Play in the national mixed doubles championship got under way this afternoon. Among the teams to advance were Miss Katherine McKane and Hawkes, Miss Evelyn Colyer and Jacques Brugnon, and Miss Edith Sigourney and Frits Mercur. The last named pair defeated Mrs. May Sutton Bundy and Jose Alonso, 6—3, 5—7, 6—4. Miss Colyer and Brugnon eliminated Miss Polly Palfrey and Max Decugis, 6—2, 6—3.

Pate and Hardy Stars.

The semi-final brackets were completed in the national veterans' doubles championships. In the upper half are Walter Pate and Samuel Hardy of New York, the defending champions, and John T. Bailey of Oklahoma and Claude Butler of Mexico. The lower brackets are occupied by C. T. Rockwell and G. F. Wales and A. Wallis Myers of England and Julian S. Myrick of New York. The latter pair put out M. H. Malcom and Sidney L. Beals after a long struggle, 6—4, 2—6, 8—6.

C. R. and Karl S. Pfaffman of Boston and D. P. E. and Arnold W. Jones of Providence reached the semi-finals of the father and son national doubles championship.

Lott played the greatest tennis he has shown in the East this season against Patterson and Hawkes. The Chicago youth did not seem to know how to make an error. His ground strokes sped like bullets through the opposing territory and at the net he was a terror, bringing down overhead shots with crushing smashes and volleying at such sharp angles as to give the Australians no chance to get to the ball.

A break was made through Patterson in the thirteenth game after 12 had gone on service and Lott won on his service for the first set. In the second chapter the Chicagoans broke through Patterson in the fifth game and held their advantage to the end, with Lott playing like a streak in the final games. Patterson and Hawkes held advantages in several games but erratic stroking overhead lost them these games.

The Americans slackened pace and lost the third set at 6—3. Patterson's backhand stood up well and the Australian pair made far fewer errors. After the rest period the Antipodeans came back to attack strongly from the net. Although Lott and Williams got only two games in the fourth set they made a much better fight than the score indicates, losing four hard-fought games that went to deuce several times.

Americans Fight Hard.

The Americans fought bravely to stem the tide in the final chapter but Patterson and Hawkes were killing everything at the net and made very few errors. Lott made the most sensational shot of the match in this set when he threw his racquet in front of his face to volley back one of Patterson's murderous drives.

Griffin's failure to play up to form and Wiener's admirable work made the struggle between the Californians and Tilden and his protégé more of an even battle than was looked for. Not until the final set did Griffin put up the best tennis of which he is capable. Up to that time his errors at the net handicapped his side badly. Wiener at times failed to cover up his side of the court and fell down on his returns of service, but in general the Germantown youth played a surprisingly good game, holding off the opposing pair in volley exchanges and finding his openings with streaking forehand drives that brought cheers from the spectators.

Johnston was consistently good. His smashing returns of Tilden's service, his constant hammering of the corners with his forehanders and his matchless volleying stood out above the brilliant playing of Tilden.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

First Round—Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams 2d defeated Manuel Alonso and Eduardo Flaquer, 6—1, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3; Robert and Howard Kinsay defeated Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer, 7—5, 10—8, 4—6, 6—3; William Johnston and Clarence T. Griffin defeated William T. Tilden 2d and Sandy Wiener, 7—9, 6—1, 7—5, 6—1; Gerald L. Patterson and John B. Hawkes defeated Lucian Williams and George Lott Jr., 6—8, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3.

FATHER AND SON DOUBLES.

First Round—A. W. and W. W. Wald defeated H. W. and Ben Warner, 6—3, 6—4; J. D. E. and Arnold W. Jones defeated W. H. and J. M. Kirkbridge, 6—1, 6—1; Donald M. Hill and son defeated J. T. and V. M. Pate, 6—0, 6—0.

Second Round—G. R. and Karl S. Pfaffman defeated R. Benson Sr. and Jr., 6—1, 6—8, 6—3. Jones and Jones won from A. T. Gore and son by default.

MISS FRY CAPTURES A THREE-SET MATCH

English Girl Hard Pressed by Mrs. Corbiere at Longwood—Miss Jacobs Loses.

Special to The New York Times.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 26.—Miss Joan Fry of England, runner-up at Wimbledon this year, was carried to three sets today by Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Boston in the second round of the world's tennis tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club. Playing with steadiness and putting up a tight defense, the local woman gained a lead in each of the three sets, and after winning the second fought Miss Fry for fourteen games before yielding in the third. The score was 6—4, 7—5, 6—4.

This was the first appearance of Miss Fry in the tournament, and her strokes were not under their usual control. She frequently overdrove the baseline with her vigorous forehanders and unorthodox backhand. Mrs. Corbiere handled her opponent's speed in commendable fashion, and by keeping the ball in play won the majority of her points on the English girl's errors.

Mrs. Molla Mallory of New York, Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California, Miss E. H. Harvey of England and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup all made their first appearance in the tournament this morning, and each of them advanced to the third round. Mrs. Mallory, who drew a bye and was placed at the top of the upper half of the draw, disposed of Mrs. Charles G. Hubbard of this city, 6—0, 6—1.

Miss Ryan, who is at the bottom of the upper half and is favored to meet Mrs. Mallory in the semi-finals, was equally merciless in her two matches. To Miss Jacqueline Green she allowed only one game, and in the second round she disposed of Miss Katherine Gardner another of the most capable players of Longwood, 6—2, 6—1.

Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., national girls' champion, was put out in the second round by Miss Charlotte Hosmer of California. For two sets the rivals from the Pacific Coast played beautiful tennis, with little to choose between them in their driving or volleying. The girls' champion tired in the last set, and Miss Hosmer took the set with the loss of only one game and the match at 6—4, 4—6, 6—1.

First Round—Mrs. Walter Trumbull won from Mrs. May Sutton Bundy by default; Miss Ryan defeated Mrs. Alexander Butler, 6—1, 6—3; Miss Katherine Garner won from Miss Marion Williams by default; Miss Elisabeth Ryan defeated Miss Jacqueline Green, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup defeated Mrs. Maud Berger Wallach, 7—5, 6—3.

Second Round—Mrs. Molla Mallory defeated Mrs. Charles G. Hubbard, 6—0, 6—1; Miss E. H. Harvey defeated Mrs. Trumbull, 6—3, 6—4; Miss Martha Bayard defeated Miss Isabelle Thompson, 6—4, 6—1; Miss Ryan defeated Miss Gardner, 6—2, 6—4; Mrs. Jessup defeated Miss Isabelle Mumford, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. Frank H. Godfrey defeated Miss Elisabeth Bright, 6—7, 6—1, 6—4; Miss Charlotte Hosmer defeated Miss Helen Jacobs, 6—4, 4—6, 6—1; Miss Joan Fry defeated Mrs. J. D. Corbierre, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4.

LEWIS WINS TENNIS FINAL.

Beats Griggs at Saranac Lake After a Five-Set Match.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 26.—W. B. Lewis of New York won the Adirondack singles tennis final here this morning, after a five-set struggle with Harris Griggs of Waterbury, Conn. After winning the first set rather easily at 6—4, the victor dropped a hard deuce set at 10-12 and then was rattled enough to drop the next one at love. The New Yorker braced to take the last two sets at 6—3 and 6—4, showing greater endurance and lasting power than his opponent, who had reached the height of his speed in the middle of the match.

McCAULIFF KEEPS TITLE.

Beats Lavalle in Southern New Hampshire Junior Tennis Final.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 26 (AP).—Eugene H. McCauliff of Yonkers, N. Y., Southern New Hampshire junior singles tennis champion, retained his crown today by defeating Edward Lavalle of Worcester, Mass., by a score of 6—3, 2—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Vesper, '00 Olympic Victors, Celebrate on the Schuylkill

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—Members of the Vesper Boat Club's eight-oared crew which won the Olympic championship in Paris in 1900, today celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the event by rowing over the official Schuylkill course, after which they received a testimonial banquet from 200 members of the club. The crew, stroked by John O. D. Exley, left the Vesper club early this evening, the other members of the original eight being seated as follows: Bow, Roscoe C. Lockwood; 2, Eddie Marsh; 3, Ed. Hedley; 4, William Carr; 5, John F. Geiger; 6, James B. Juvenal; 7, Harry De Baecke and cowswain, Lew Abell. They won seven straight races in 1900 before going to Paris where they beat the champion crews of France, Belgium, Germany and Holland.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Another long-distance race of the Gold Cup regatta program was decided yesterday when the express cruiser Jeanne II, owned by Wayne M. Barker of Philadelphia, came speeding into Manhasset Bay, the winner of the James Craig Ocean Trophy after the long run of 250 statute miles from the starting line at Essington, near Philadelphia, to the Gold Cup course, where she gave her time to the committee boat. Jeanne II. left the Delaware River anchorage at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the scratch boat in the field of seven starters, and arrived on the Gold Cup course at 12:06, her running time being 19 hours 54 minutes 5 seconds. The second boat was the cruiser Elizabeth II, owned by the Russell brothers, which covered the course in 21 hours 4 minutes 30 seconds, corrected figures.

Elizabeth II was the first boat to leave Essington, making a start at 6:40 yesterday morning. She was followed by the Craig brothers' Salome at 7:30, George MacFeeter's Elenor at 8:02, Robert Roebling's Ballantrae at 8:13, Calmet at 9:25, John F. Pollard's Quaker Lady at 10:06 and Jeanne II at 4 P. M. Quaker Lady was the first to cross the finish line in Manhasset Bay, reaching the committee boat a few seconds after 11. Elizabeth following about 2 minutes later. The third to finish was Salome, at 1:07, but Ballantrae took the honors on time allowance, her corrected figures being 22 hours 29 minutes 53 seconds.

Report a Good Run.

All of the boats that finished reported good speeding conditions on the ocean course with very little sea running. The Elenor had not reported to the committee boat when the members came ashore last night. The James Craig Trophy is a classic prize among the motor boat ocean racing men and is a perpetual challenge trophy. The race is open to cruising boats of not less than thirty feet length and not more than sixty feet length, racing on time allowance as figured by the American Power Boat Association.

The long distance race staged by the Tri-State Yacht Club and the James Craig Trophy race are the opening events of the big speed boat regatta to be held on Manhasset Bay, which will get under full headway on Saturday with the race for the Gold Cup. The official entry list of the Gold Cup event and also of the Dodge Memorial Trophy, which is to be decided on Sunday, we given out last night at Gold Cup Headquarters and show that there are twelve boats officially entered in the Gold Cup and the same number in the Dodge Memorial.

It was announced, however, in Detroit last night that Gar Wood's only entry in the gold cup race had been withdrawn, according to The Associated Press. His boat, Baby America II, has been incapacitated by propeller trouble.

The entries, which follow, are identical in both races, except that Solar Plexus, owned by Horace E. Dodge, is an entry in the Gold Cup but not in the Dodge Memorial, while Miss Syndicate, owned by the Dodge Dealers' Association, will be a starter in the Dodge Memorial but not in the Gold Cup.

The Gold Cup Entries.

Miss Columbia, Columbia Yacht Club, Miss Columbia Syndicate.

Miss Mary, Buffalo Launch Club, E. L. Grimm.

Baby Shadow, Miami Beach, O. G. Fisher.

Miss Tampa, Davis Islands Yacht Club, D. P. Davis.

Curtiss-Wilgold II, Buffalo Launch Club, R. V. Williams.

Continuing the long-distance races which are the preliminaries to the main events of Saturday and Sunday will be the handicap express cruiser championship of America, which is to be started today at the Sachem's Head Yacht Club, Sachem's Head, Conn., and which will be finished at Manhasset Bay tomorrow. The Sachem's Head race will be run in two heats, the first of which takes the entrants from the starting line to and around a buoy off the mouth of the Connecticut River and return to the starting line. Tomorrow the express cruiser squadron will start on the second leg of the course, which will take them from Sachem's Head to the finish line at Manhasset Bay, the total distance of the two legs being 105 statute miles.

Harpoon Now Holds Title.

The express cruiser championship is open to boats of from thirty to sixty feet waterline length, having a speed of sixteen to twenty-two knots. The race is on time allowance as figured by the American Power Boat Association. The cruiser championship trophy is now held by the Harpoon of the Middletown Yacht Club.

Tomorrow also the handicap cruiser championship from Manhasset Bay to and around Stratford Shoal Light, on Long Island Sound, off Port Jefferson and return will be decided. The distances of this race is forty-eight nautical miles and the starting time will be 9 A. M. This race is for boats not classified as express cruisers and from thirty to forty-five feet waterline length and is decided on time allowance.

The first of the two big days of the speedboat regatta will be Saturday, when the race for the Gold Cup is decided and also the Baby Gar Invitation race, a contest for the Miami Beach one-design runabouts. And the free-for-all displacement race will be staged. The Gold Cup event, the blue ribbon race of speedboat racing, is to be run in three thirty-mile heats, the first of which will be started at 2 P. M. The course is open to boats of the runabout type over twenty-five feet long on the waterline and with motors not exceeding 625 cubic inches piston displacement.

The course over which the Gold Cup, the Dodge Memorial and other shorter races will be run is a mile and a half straightaway or three miles for a complete round. In the case of the Gold Cup the drivers must complete this course ten times. Many of the skilled racing drivers in this country will take part in the race, and with the many turns involved the spectators should get plenty of thrills. The best time in last year's Gold Cup was something over forty-seven statute miles an hour made by Miss Columbia, but this year the boats are expected to make at least fifty miles an hour.

On Sunday the most extensive program of the regatta is to be held, the feature event being the first race in New York waters for the Dodge Memorial Trophy, recently instituted by Horace E. Dodge as a perpetual challenge trophy in memory of his father. The trophy is a silver prize in the form of an old Spanish carved galleon designed by Henry Culver, a marine architect, who is an authority on the ships of the old times.

The program of events to be decided on Saturday and Sunday, with the starting time of each race, follows:

PEQUOT AND BAYSHORE IN YACHT TITLE FINAL

Crews of These Clubs Survive in Midget Series and Will Race Today.

The Bayshore crew, composed of Ralph Lynn, captain; E. Emory and R. W. Grace, eliminated the Indian Harbor Yacht Club representatives, H. Hannan, W. Allen and Kathryn Nichols, in the first race of the day by defeating them over the triangular course by 1 minute 46 seconds.

After eliminating Cedarhurst from the series the crew of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club, made up of J. H. Weeks, captain; G. de Zerman and D. G. Weeks, were eliminated themselves by the team of the Pequot Yacht Club, composed of A. S. Clark, captain; W. Stetson and R. Williams.

The Pequot crew gained the final bracket by winning two out of three races from the Seawanhaka members, taking the first and third encounters but losing the second.

FIGURING OUT HYLAN.

The Mayor's outcries and beating of the air these last few days have left a multitude even of his friends wondering what on earth he can be driving at. From the fact that his course seems monumentally foolish, some are arguing that it must be preternaturally crafty. This is on the supposition that he has really given up the Mayoralty fight and is aiming at something else. Of this ultimate objective, not yet avowed, there are various accounts. One is that he hopes to defeat and wreck the present management of the Democratic Party in this city and State, and upon its ruins erect a sort of Hearst-Hylan throne. Others looking through the millstone perceive a deep-laid plot to make Mayor HYLAN the leader of a new radical party throughout the United States. Thus upon the stepping-stone of his dead self in the Mayoralty contest he would rise into the national limelight.

All these theories to account for Mayor HYLAN'S conduct seem too ingenious by half. A more natural explanation lies nearer at hand. The Mayor has had enough within the past week to exasperate him into the release of his angry passions. Most irritating to his dying-in-the-last-ditch nature must be the suspicious utterances of his nominal supporters in Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond. Oh, yes, they are all for HYLAN, but they wish it distinctly understood that if Senator WALKER wins in the Democratic primary their enthusiasm for him will be absolutely unbounded. They challenge Manhattan and the Bronx to display as much loyalty and to roll up as many votes for WALKER as they will. Call you this supporting your friends? Even Boss McCOOEY of Brooklyn, returning from a few peaceful days of golf to face the row caused by the latest explosion by the Mayor, took the first occasion to repudiate Mr. HYLAN'S personal attacks upon Governor SMITH and Senator WALKER, and to intimate that he was ready to take his coat off for the latter as soon as he was nominated. It is evident that the Mayor has given no one more furiously to think than Mr. McCOOEY. If he has to undergo much more vexation from the City Hall, it is possible that he may come to an open break with it. Some are confidently predicting that he will. At best, Brooklyn's support of the Mayor's ambitions looks every day more and more like a broken reed.

The speech which Governor SMITH is to make in Brooklyn tonight was anticipated by the release yesterday of his remarks in private to the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall at the time it was decided not to renominate Mayor HYLAN. Of him the Governor spoke with marked restraint. Yet what he had to say of him, speaking not as Governor but as a citizen of Greater New York, amounted to a severe condemnation of the Hylan Administration. It had been marked by too much confusion and vacillation, by too many abusive words and too little positive action. It had merely fumbled with many of the great and pressing problems confronting the city. The Governor made it clear that he had no personal animus against Mr. HYLAN, but felt that the metropolis urgently needed the services of a different Chief Executive. Nor will the observant fail to note that Governor SMITH passed on to declare that the Democratic Party of New York could not submit to dictation by an "outsider." Who this gentleman is who from without aspires to control Democratic nominations and elections, the Governor left no one in doubt. Mentioning no names, he identified methods and policies so plainly that everybody could see that he was referring to the Hearst issue.

It has unmistakably got into the municipal campaign. When one State Senator after another from Greater New York, one Assemblyman after another, one local Democratic leader after another, rises to say that he finds much to admire in Mayor HYLAN but sees nothing except to dread in Mr. HEARST, the actual state of things cannot be obscured. Behind the Mayor stands a sinister political figure. Of his devising is the scheme, if there is one, to use Mayor HYLAN in order to disrupt and defeat the Democratic Party in this city. Moreover, the plain intent is to push the work of destruction against the leadership of Governor SMITH. This is an issue which is every day becoming more plain and menacing before the eyes of the people of this city, and which will bulk much larger in the Democratic primary and in the November election than anybody could have foreseen. Those who find Mayor HYLAN'S behavior so puzzling should seek for the key to it out in California. Before the intentions of Mr. HYLAN can be figured out, one must have figured out those of his only begetter.

THE TREASURY WATCHDOG.

When Congress, in an onset of budgetary virtue, endowed the Controller General of the United States with extraordinary auditing powers and virtual immunity against removal from office, it little suspected what troubles it was storing up for itself. The Controller General holds office for fifteen years and can be ousted only by a joint resolution of Congress. Whatever may have been the degree of Congressional sincerity in setting up a Treasury watchdog with something like absolute powers, there is no doubting the serious view of his functions entertained by the present Controller General, J. R. McCARL. Appointed by President HARDING in 1921, it took him about two years to hit his stride. By April, 1923, he was in conflict with various members of the Cabinet, and did not shrink from asserting his superior authority in passing on departmental disbursements. Opinions of the Attorney General do not disturb him. Decisions by the Court of Claims he has lately characterized as merely "persuasive"; persuasive, but not convincing. It is an interesting subject of speculation whether Mr. McCARL would give heed to the authority of the Supreme Court of the United States, or whether it might not be necessary to call out the army and navy of the United States to make him see reason. From the state of mind in certain departments at Washington it is apparent that the army and navy would like nothing better than a brief session with the Controller General.

Big sums do not dazzle Mr. McCARL and minute items are never too insignificant for him. He has waged a long battle over a $1.50 luncheon claim brought forward by a Government employe at Washington, the Controller General's contention being that an errand of five miles across the Potomac does not constitute "travel" in the meaning of the law which allows incidental expenditures of that nature. He has drastically censored stewards' tips distributed by American diplomatic attachés in their transatlantic voyagings. Last October he also queried the very sizable bill of $18,016,976 submitted to the Shipping Board by a Seattle firm. Incidentally, this is the same Mr. McCARL who ruled last Fall that married women in Government employ cannot draw pay on vouchers to which they affix their maiden names. Obviously, he is a man who thinks he knows how things should be done and is not afraid to state his views in as few words as possible.

Now the Congressional auditing chicken has come home to roost. Exasperated by Mr. McCARL'S "czaristic" methods, but as helpless as any mujik of the late Czar, Washington's discontented are planning a drive in Congress to curtail the authority of the Controller General. That comes near to practicing cruelty. Congress is to be asked to lay its restraining hand on a guardian of the public moneys whose idea seems to be that the way to save the public money is to save. Congress is being asked to go on record in favor of a mild and courteous watchdog of the purse, and not a bulldog. But can Congress comply in an age of Coolidge economy and on the eve of a Congressional election?

TREATING A BOYCOTT GENTLY.

Nothing is to be gained by minimizing the boycott of British traders and goods by the Chinese in Hongkong and Canton. That it can be made effective over a long period is unlikely. The nation that begins a boycott often finds that it is biting off its nose to spite its face. In the present instance the danger lies in the effect of a temporary success upon the Chinese and upon the British and other foreigners. As Mr. MILLARD has had occasion to point out in his series of articles for THE TIMES, most of the older residents in China are devotees of the "hard-boiled" method. They believe in having a big stick and swinging it freely. In no other way, so they say, can the white man's prestige be maintained. But many calling for "drastic" action are thinking in terms of twenty-five years ago, when the use of force was practicable, whereas today not even the British public, accustomed to think in terms of Empire and conscious of having its troops policing the distant corners of the earth, looks favorably on anything that seems like armed intervention in China.

This is perhaps the reason why the British Government, frankly disturbed about the anti-British trend of the Chinese demonstrations, has decided not to heed the appeals of the old residents in Hongkong and elsewhere to meet the Cantonese boycott by something forcible. In the eyes of the old-timers this means a loss of caste, and may be interpreted by the Cantonese as an indication of weakness. But under the circumstances it would seem that the judgment of Downing Street shows a better perspective than that of the residents in China. Although the trade losses have already been severe and promise to increase, the problem is one which vitally concerns the British Empire and has an indirect influence on the commercial and political relations of other nations with China. There is nothing to be gained by precipitate action—especially if this involve a military demonstration, which may not be carried through.

How to re-establish friendly relations is not so easy as some critics assume. Immediate wholesale concessions to local Chinese demands are more readily preached than practiced. The first step, obviously, is to follow up the resolutions and treaties of the Washington Conference, and meet with the Chinese to discuss the various questions at issue. This will not solve the Cantonese difficulty, as South China has persistently ignored the promises made by the Peking officials. But it should at least afford a breathing space during which some way can be devised for removing the causes of discontent in the South. Great Britain, having the largest volume of trade, is most concerned about boycotts and other acts which hamper commerce. The other nations which will meet with the Chinese and the British should be able to help readjust the relations of China and the Powers without reverting to swashbuckling policies.

A REMARKABLE WILL.

The manner in which the late VICTOR F. LAWSON made testamentary disposal of his estate is characteristic of the man in habit as he lived. After making generous provisions for his surviving relatives, friends, newspaper associates and dependents, he left the bulk of his property to be used for charitable and religious purposes. This was in consonance with his own beliefs and practices for many years. His active interest in Chicago, exhibited in so many ways during his lifetime, is testified to again in his bequest of $100,000 to the Art Institute of Chicago, one of the same sum to the Chicago Orchestral Association, besides gifts to other institutions in that city.

What Mr. LAWSON would do with The Daily News has been a subject of much speculation in the newspaper world, as well as of great interest to many public-spirited citizens of Chicago, anxious that the course and conduct of that newspaper should not be altered. It now appears that this valuable property has been left in trust to the Merchants Loan and Trust Company of Chicago, with full power of management and the right to dispose of The Daily News by sale. For the present there is every assurance that the paper will be left in the hands of the existing management, trained in Mr. LAWSON'S methods and familiar with his standards and policies. Ultimately, it is to be supposed, The Daily News will pass into the hands of a separate owner. But there is no doubt that it will long remain as a monument to Mr. LAWSON'S ability and ideals. These lie implicit in many a clause of his remarkable will.

ATTACHING EXPERTS TO THE PAYROLL.

Mr. EDWARD H. WILSON, Chairman of the Research Committee of the Kings County Republican Advisory Committee, seeks to be cruel to a good man struggling with adversity when he recalls that in 1917 Candidate HYLAN, finding in the budget an item of $73,000 for special counsel and experts, a considerable reduction from the sum spent for the same purpose in preceding Administrations, saw a majestic campaign issue and thundered against the "million-dollar patronage bonanza." He vowed that if he were elected he would "detach the experts "from the payroll and fill the outgo-"ing trains with them." He has fulfilled his vow in his usual manner. In his Seven Years of Progress the cost of special counsel and experts has gone up from $287,000 to $635,000. In 1916 the Corporation Counsel's office cost $831,000. The appropriation for 1925 is $1,605,000. Great sums have been thrown away lavishly in fighting cases in court against the "interests." The Corporation Counsel's office, with all its swollen list of experts and special counsel, seems to have a positive gift for losing all such litigation.

Judgments in favor of the city had decreased in 1923 by 43 per cent. over the amounts recovered in 1916. Judgments against the city in 1923 cost three times more than it had to pay in 1916. This is true Hylanese progress. Yet it must be a satisfaction to all friends of the Hylan "people" to remember that some eminent admirers of his discoverer and patron were among the specialists retained; and to what better use could the taxpayers' money be devoted than to an even disastrous war against the "interests"?

These Kings County Republicans ought to be ashamed of themselves. What are they doing, or trying to do, but illustrate the progressive character of Mr. HYLAN'S Administrations? Their malice defeats itself. The record that they bring up is but additional testimony to Mayor HYLAN'S economy in keeping his promises and to his efficiency as a spender of money on public futilities.

A BUSY LONG LIFE.

Certified centenarians are uncommon in the United States. Census centenarians are numerous enough. The count of 1920 found 4,267 in the country, of whom 2,706 were women and 1,561 men. There is reason to believe that the enumerators were often credulous. Vital statistics did not help them much, for there was often no registry of births to turn to for confirmation of claims of longevity. Aside from the fact that the census takers were too much pressed for time to hunt up proof, it was human to accept the story of a lady or a gentleman declining toward the sunset of life that the goal of one hundred had been passed. "In certain "cases, apparently more frequent "among women than among men, the "age," says the Census of 1920, "is intentionally misstated." And again: "The returns undoubtedly exaggerate the number of centenarians." Who would have cared to make an affidavit to support the claim of PETE NAVAHO, who died on the Navaho Reservation in 1924 at the age of 116?

No doubt could be entertained of the 102 full years of CORNELIUS COLE, once United States Senator from California, who passed away in 1924. Born at Lodi, N. Y., Sept. 17, 1822, he was documented through a long and useful life: Admitted to the bar in 1848, a Forty-niner and gold digger; District Attorney of Sacramento County, 1859-62; a member of the Thirty-eighth Congress, 1863-65; a friend of ABRAHAM LINCOLN and teller of stories about the Emancipator; and, finally, United States Senator until GRANT'S second term. Mr. COLE visited New York and Washington when he rounded into his century, the picture of a young old man, with only this bit of advice to those aspiring to grow as old: "Keep out of the easy-chair."

His precept comes to mind in contemplating the career of JOHN A. STEWART of Morristown, N. J., financier and farmer, who celebrated the 103d anniversary of his birth yesterday. He is another duly certified and universally recognized centenarian. He first saw the light in this city, his father a native of Lewis in the Hebrides, his mother a New Yorker. In 1840 he took a degree at Columbia College. Civil engineer, actuary of the United States Life Insurance Company, he organized the United States Trust Company in 1853, and was its President from 1865 to 1902. He was the survivor of the original Board of Trustees, which included PETER COOPER, JOHN JACOB ASTOR, JOSEPH LAWRENCE, JOHN J. PHELPS, JOHN J. CISCO, WILLIAM E. DODGE, ROYAL PHELPS and WILLIAM H. MACY. Mr. STEWART remembers hearing ANDREW JACKSON deliver as President of the United States an address at the City Hall. LINCOLN called on him for counsel during the Civil War and appointed him Assistant Treasurer of the United States in 1864. He was one of the funders of the national debt in the perplexing years following the war. He led in bringing about stability in 1894, when the country's gold reserve was near depletion. In Mr. CLEVELAND'S book "Presidential Problems" will be found this reference to Mr. STEWART: "He rendered most useful and patri-"otic service in making this and the "previous offer of bonds successful."

Since 1868 Mr. STEWART has been associated with the administration of Princeton University. From the resignation of WOODROW WILSON until the installation of JOHN GRIER HIBBEN he served as Acting President. A busy man always and an active one, for he made regular visits to Wall Street to attend to his duties as Chairman of the Board of the United States Trust Company until after his ninety-ninth birthday, he has never spent much time in the easy-chair. Now in his 104th year Mr. STEWART seems to be as hale as centenarian ever was. His favorite diversion is a daily automobile ride. No man can reach 100 years without being called upon for a rule of life. "Moderation in everything," he has said. "Eating too "much is just as bad as drinking too "much. I do not live differently from "other people, but I eat and drink "carefully."

CHARLES F. CHANDLER.

If one were to seek a chemical formula for this great teacher who has just died, the affectionate one could not be improved upon which his students used in pledging their devotion to him at the end of his forty-six years of service as a teacher in Columbia—"the compound acid-free," called "C. F. C." These initials were the symbols to them of a mingling of qualities rare among teachers; for the man to whom they belonged had an ability to stir the minds with whom he came in contact into instant interest in his subject. When we see the long list of chemists who have studied under him and who reacted to his stimulus, the conclusion is inevitable that there was a catalytic force, a genius there, beyond analysis or symbolic expression.

The boy who became interested in the soil and minerals which the whalers coming into New Bedford used often to carry as ballast was father to the man who became, as he has often been called, the "father of chemistry" in America. Certainly no one has done more pioneering work in this field as a teacher. Originally his researches, whose results not only gave instruction to his students but practical advice to the public which he served in various capacities, were purely analytical. He analyzed Croton water for the city, he analyzed liquors for the Excise Board here and in Vermont; at the invitation of the Federal Government he investigated hog products and the preservation of timber, the manufacture of glucose, the denaturing of alcohol and the waterproofing of bank-notes. As President of the Board of Health, he introduced tests for kerosene and standards for milk purity, and banished offensive trades. He was the city's great Analytical Defender, trying to keep out everything that defiled or worked physical abomination or made a lie as to its ingredients.

Professor CHANDLER lived and worked and taught on into the period of synthetic chemistry and spent his later years in advising those who are seeking to increase production by chemical processes. He will, however, be remembered chiefly as the teacher of 20,000 young men now scattered throughout the world. His chief contribution to science has been made and will continue to be made through the work of the pupils whom his teaching inspired. The museum which he established, and which is being carried on under his name, will for a generation, at least, be gathering the direct fruits of his life in the discoveries and inventions of those whom he himself instructed.

Besides all this scientific service, he took a generous, brave part in the civic life of the city and State. He was President for many years of the State Charities Aid Association, and was serving actively in that capacity when the policy of State care for the insane was finally adopted after a long campaign. He was also interested in better tenements, in municipal lodging houses, the training of nurses and many other movements. He was, all in all, one of New York's great and most useful citizens, and withal one of the most genial and likable of men. He was ever a benign force working for a better order and a more wholesome existence—"a compound acid-free." He was born "benigno numine."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

From Its First Year.

A lady who, though of advanced years and in uncertain health, confesses to a lively interest in THE NEW YORK TIMES, has had the kindness, which we much appreciate, to send to this office a faded copy of the issue of that newspaper for Nov. 11, 1851. It was No. 47 of the first volume of THE TIMES, which was founded in the year mentioned. From "A Word About Ourselves," printed at the head of the editorial page, it appears that the circulation was then above 15,000. On this fact the comment was that "THE TIMES is not yet seven weeks old; yet it has reached a circulation never before commanded by any new paper at the end of three years."

The issue in question was of four pages closely printed, yet there was a modest reference to "the immense amount and variety of the reading matter it contains." In that day of small things, journalistically, this claim could not have caused the reader to smile as it would at present.

As an illustration of the fact that topics of public interest and political discussion have a way of recurring, even after seventy-four years, we note that an editorial refers to the unhappy and even desperate condition of the American farmer in view of his restricted market abroad. The reference was to an English publication which spoke of the British market having at that time "superabundant supplies." THE TIMES article proceeded to remark in a tone which must sound quite up to date out West: "What hope is there for the American farmer in view of the fact that the only mart the free trader leaves him for his garnered crop has been oversupplied for years; and notwithstanding short production at home, finds near neighbors who are able to provide food at the same rate as the domestic grower?"

Our Films in Oriental Eyes.

The recent warning of Lord LEE that American "movies" are debasing the American people in the eyes of Europeans and demoralising the white race has found a curious echo from the Spice Islands in the East Indies. Writing of his casual wanderings through Celebes, Timor and Java, H. M. TOMLINSON in "Tidemarks" tells of seeing American and European movies given before Malay audiences showing examples of fraud, infidelity, treachery, silliness and robbery under arms, interspersed with the well-known comedy pictures whose humor is primitive, to say the least.

What the Orientals think of us, he pointedly remarks, now that at last they have learned the "inside" truth about the much-vaunted white civilization from these frank confessions by the leading cinema artists, they have not disclosed. But he hazards the opinion that such scenes are doing more to substitute contempt for respect of the white men than all the propaganda of Moscow put together. As he puts it, our best representative artists (European as well as American, be it remembered) are showing the East that its revolt against the West, should it ever occur, would be merely a duty owed to decency, a sort of righteous war to end insanity.

These are the views of a speculative philosopher who, having had contact with some of the Eastern civilizations, is no longer as certain as he was that superiority lies altogether with the peoples of Europe and America. Certainly this estimate of how we must appear in the eyes of the so-called "inferior" races is flattering neither to our moving-picture producers nor to our own audiences that tolerate or demand stories which tend to overemphasize what is worst and stupidest in our present-day life.

To Make Labor a Delight.

It must be twenty years or more ago that SOMERSET MAUGHAM picked hops in the fields of Kent and at the same time gained the experience which is the basis for one of the finest passages in his book "Of Human Bondage." Yet there is little change in an even longer lapse of years in the methods of harvesting that crop. Reports come from London that 50,000 men, women and children had left their homes in London's East End and, traveling in special trains and motor coaches, had started for the hop fields. Now, as in the old days, whole families take part in the work.

The hop-growers would lose a large part of their crop if they did not have the assistance of these hordes of pickers, and in Kent they have steadily improved the accommodation for the immigrants. The picking season used to last four or five weeks, but nowadays it is all over in a fortnight. The brewers want bright, fresh hops, and aphides and the weather spoil the fruit if it is left on the vines for more than a few days after ripening.

It would be interesting to know the attitude of veteran "hoppers" toward the innovations provided this season by State charity and religion with the intention of making the work as attractive as possible. In MAUGHAM'S day the charitably minded were not concerned with supplying cinemas, concerts and modern plumbing for the cockney workers, who then as now regarded a fortnight of hard work in the hop fields as a glorious holiday. Grandmothers and grandfathers who are making their fiftieth annual pilgrimage to the great harvest probably prefer their memories of quiet strolls in the pungent lanes to the modern entertainment of flicker and jazz.

Paying an Election Bet.

From Fairmont, W. Va., it is reported that a young lawyer of Morgantown is walking to Tammany Hall to pay an election bet. Mr. R. A. LOAR, the happy loser, has only to dodge motor cars in order to have the time of his life. It is one GENE ARNETT, the winner of the bet, who should be commiserated. He has to stand and wait at Frederick, Md., to see the joyous Democrat swing by, browned by the sun, breathing all outdoors and feasting on the scenery, with not a care in the world. He is not forbidden to cast a fly now and then or to loaf soulfully in the shade, lighting a corncob.

Mr. LOAR is advancing on New York barefoot, in gray knickers, a light shirt and a straw hat, the costume in which he was ordained to do penance. His itinerary leads him over mountains and across historic rivers, and he may sleep in a hay loft if he will. Traveling with a donkey in the Cevennes a la STEVENSON was dull business compared with this adventure.

Many election bets are foolish, such as wheeling the winner in a barrow and picking up peanuts on bare knees, but the Arnett-Loar wager was an insurance of health for the loser, a Bohemian saunter in the undress of boyhood through scenes to be treasured in memory. Everywhere Mr. LOAR should have a smiling welcome and all the hospitality the law allows. Mr. ARNETT may only grin feebly. He cuts no figure at all in the comedy. Tammany will lack appreciation of what is sure-footed Democracy if it does not receive Mr. LOAR with open arms.

Waterman, Lyons and Bennett.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Lyons, who aspires to be Mayor of New York, objects to Mr. Waterman because he advocated the League of Nations. Perhaps the keen mind of Mr. Lyons can explain the connection between the League of Nations and the requirements for Mayor of New York City. The average intelligent voter cannot understand what bearing a man's attitude toward the League of Nations has on his qualifications for Mayor. It requires a professional politician to explain that obscure problem.

Mr. Lyons also objects to the fact that Mr. Waterman is not a politician, but a business man. He seems incapable of grasping the fact that New Yorkers are unspeakably weary of politicians, whose administration of the city's affairs is usually a stupendous failure; that they would welcome a successful business man, whose allegiance would be to the City of New York rather than to his party and the dispensing of patronage.

And who is this man Bennett, who pops up every four years as a candidate for Mayor? What is the record of either of these men? What have they achieved that entitles them to the consideration of the electorate of the city? They are both mediocre men; not widely known, except among politicians, and voters have no valid reason for supporting either of them; no guarantee of their fitness for the job of Mayor, of their ability to make good as efficient, economical administrators.

Mr. Waterman's greatest asset is the fact that he is not a politician, but a successful, capable business man.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Swat the mosquito, of course—because it bites. But never forget to swat the fly, likewise—because one fly may do you far more real harm than fifty mosquitos.

The fly looks innocent enough, with its glossy, iridescent wings; but its habits are bad. It feeds on repulsive things. It may carry easily on its hairy legs and body, as well as in its mouth, germs of typhoid and other very serious diseases, including tuberculosis.

Early in the fly season a single fly harbors comparatively few bacteria; but, later, they can be the bearers of tens of thousands. In the body of a single fly 6,000,000 germs have been found!

Therefore—and decidedly—swat the fly!

A LONG ISLAND DUCK POND IN AUGUST.

Where sand and pebbles glint through living green,
Dividing banks all roseate with mallows
That peep into a mirror as they lean;
Where heavy hangs the purple elderberry
Half hidden by tall reeds that sway and bend;
And where the dragonfly becomes a ferry
Bringing gold pollen to its journey's end:

There, strewn about like animated petals
Of snowy apple-blossoms from a tree,
Or like a cloud of thistledown that settles
After some daring breeze has set it free,
A thousand ducklings of an ivory feather

THE PROBLEM OF POPULATION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Professor East earned a rebuke from Dr. Gerfield by his harsh statement of his views in reply to Count Cippico. These views apparently consist of Dr. East's personal idea of the applicability of the Malthusian laws, his ire being aroused largely by Count Cippico's statement that Malthus's laws are not tenable. Both gentlemen seemed to bring a good deal of national feeling to the conference, and the result has not, in my opinion, been very edifying. There has been no free discussion of the chief fundamental involved, and in place of it only Professor East's continued iterations of the inexorability of the Malthusian conceptions.

The pother about Malthus has been going on ever since he formulated his laws. It must be remembered that he laid these laws down as an economist concerned with bolstering the doctrines of Adam Smith. In the generation that ensued between Smith and Malthus it became very obvious that the teachings of the former in regard to the importance of previous accumulations of capital for national advancement in wealth were incorrect. Smith had held that such accumulations were a necessary preliminary to any great extension of industry, his idea being that the wages of labor were paid out of the capital fund thus established. He maintained, further, that wages were determined by the ratio between this accumulated capital and the number of workers, wages rising or falling in accordance with the relative increase or decrease or either or both. From Smith to Malthus, however, the capital wealth of Britain very obviously advanced far more than the whole population, without occasioning the advance in wages that Smith professed would follow, so that this attempt of Adam Smith's to deduce the cause and relative amount of wages was plainly insufficient.

Malthus stepped into the breach with his laws of population, which have affected sociological thinking more, perhaps, than any other principle save that of the effect of the division of labor which Smith himself laid down. By applying the law of diminishing returns to agriculture and the law of supply and demand to wages Malthus thought to overcome this weak point in the splendid body of doctrines propounded by the author of the "Inquiry Into the Nature and the Causes of the Wealth of Nations."

In considering the views of Malthus himself it may be stated that he formulated his main thesis correctly. This, briefly, is to the effect that on a given landed area a people can work x days in producing their subsistence. In the course of time their population will double and they can then put in 2x days of labor. But with the same development of agriculture and the same tools their produce will not equal twice the former quantity, but somewhat less. Necessarily as time goes on the relative increase in produce becomes less and less, until it is no longer practicable to put more people to work on the given area.

This principle is, as Professor East says, inexorable, but Malthus, like all his followers, including Professor East, then proceeded to draw conclusions not quite in accord with it. In utter forgetfulness of his own caution that the principle is applicable only in an otherwise static society, i. e., in one that is not advancing in agricultural technique and in toolmaking, Malthus stated that the increase of population is forced into industry, where they compete against each other, thus keeping wages at the minimum subsistence level. When applied in this careless fashion, the doctrine had further implications, which, though gloomy enough in all truth, were very satisfactory to the ruling caste of the day, not only in salving their own consciences but also in countering the growing unrest. Malthus utilized it to explain and condone such unsavory things as wars, famines and pestilences, these "Horsemen of the Apocalypse" being thus given almost a respectable position in answer to the rising questions of the time.

Malthus's remedy, "moral restraint," was the natural clergyman's counterpart of Dr. East's present day advocacy of birth control. Indeed, if Malthus's sub-contentions are granted, then there remains no further remedy save the vicious practice of infanticide.

One of the most important attempts to refute Malthus was that of our own H. C. Carey, who attacked the thesis quite successfully from the historical viewpoint. It remained, however, for Dr. Franz Oppenheimer, now of the Universität Frankfort-am-Main, to show the logical inconsistency of Malthus's deductions. This he did in his "Das Bevölkerungsgesetz des T. R. Malthus," published in 1901, and it may be added that Professor Oppenheimer not only showed Malthusianism to be altogether untenable but he has also been able to correct at last the fallacies in Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations." Henry George also had a few trenchant things to say about Malthus in "Progress and Poverty," his views being so well known that they do not, perhaps, need repetition.

From the purely economic point of view Malthus has been shown to be utterly wrong in his explanation of the course of wages. And the statistical demonstrations involved, when joined with Professor Oppenheimer's demonstration of his logical insufficiency, have taken all the props from under the populational ideas fostered by his teachings.

First, it will readily be admitted by any person familiar with the subject that the world as a whole still has room for immensely more people than now inhabit it. Furthermore, economists have been able to show conclusively that no country now supports the maximum population of which it is capable, even with the present development of tools and agriculture. When in addition to this it is considered that the growth of population is occasioning an ever closer integration of society, that new and better means of producing subsistence are constantly being developed, it becomes apparent that any force that the first Malthusian principle may have must be relegated to the far distant future. It is said that even with present methods of agriculture the world under intensive cultivation could support 200,000,000,000 people.

It must also be considered that our habits of thought lead us to regard present methods as always the last word, but in view of the notable advance in agriculture in the last hundred years this assumption is not justified. In fact, from a purely scientific point of view, sun energy as received by the earth is the only measure that can logically be set as a limit, and one European investigator, utilizing this method, reached unbelievable figures.

Leaving aside the purely theoretic contention last mentioned, one is nevertheless forced to the conclusion that Malthusianism has never yet been operative and that the chances of its becoming so within the next few centuries are nil. For all practical purposes, therefore, it must be left out of account, for we really cannot, with our present abilities and methods, cope with a problem that may possibly come up in a thousand years or in two thousand years.

So far as the particular doctrines of Professor East are concerned, it would appear that for America, at least, there is no real problem. He favors the views expressed by Dr. Pearl to the effect that our population will stabilize at about two hundred million, approximately in the year 2100, and since he says explicitly that America has agricultural possibilities of supporting a population of four to five hundred million, this would seem to rule out any populational problem in the United States and leave room only for an economic one.

Senator Cippico, on the other hand, seems to be aware of some of the more modern conclusions mentioned above, as is evident from his broad statement shortly after the opening of the proceedings that the laws of Malthus are no longer considered valid. Probably he is less familiar with the reasoning whereby these conclusions were reached, as otherwise he would necessarily have a different orientation toward the populational problems of his own Italy.

In this connection it is interesting to point out that a highly fruitful source of investigation and speculation was opened up by the discovery of a law by von der Goltz, many years ago, which goes far to explain emigration and covers it very well numerically. This law has actual present-day potency, for it is not based on vague and tenuous future possibilities. It is to the effect that emigration takes place in direct ratio with the size of land holdings, increasing as these increase and diminishing as they grow smaller.

Herein is to be found the real reason for the fact, pointed out by Professor East, that our Italian immigration comes almost exclusively from below Rome. The system of land tenure is demonstrably at the bottom of it, and therein Senator Cippico could probably accomplish more, if he were so minded, than by preaching whatever politics the Government of Italy happens to find convenient. And, incidentally, disinterested scholars may find a further fruitful source of investigation in the suggestion of some leading European sociologists that it is precisely the system of land tenure that produces the psychology of the relatively unintelligent Southern Italians to whom Professor East takes such violent exceptions.

Finally, I should like to point out a further erroneous tenet, held by Professor East, in common with most scholars in this big-scale land, where big-scale things are adulated. This is the proposition, put forth both by Professor East and Professor Gay on Aug. 8, that small agricultural holdings are uneconomical, and urging the organization of farms on big business lines. Various writers have refuted the imaginary superiority of large-scale farming in casual chronicles of observations in such widely different places as communities in the interior of China and others in England. The islands of Guernsey and Jersey are excellent examples of the relative superiority of small-scale cultivation.

It remained, however, for Keup and Mühner to prove conclusively by exhaustive practical tests that small-scale farming gives not only a higher gross return, but also a higher net return, from a given area. What is meant by this is that small-scale cultivation gives not only a higher actual production from an area, but that the exportable surplus produced is also higher. The details of their findings may be found in their "Die Volkswirtschaftliche Bedeutung von Gross u. Kleinbetrieb in der Landwirtschaft," published at Berlin in 1913.

Congestion and Taxes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Byron R. Newton's prediction in today's TIMES of a tremendous tragedy as the inevitable result of "Our Solidifying Masses," is possible only because man of intelligence, like Mr. Newton, deliberately close eyes and ears to the remedy because they think it is too simple and too easy.

If we will apply common sense to taxation, abolish all taxes on production and improvements, free capital and labor from the crushing burdens of our present silly taxes and in place of robbing labor and capital alike by taxing their earnings, we take for public uses only the land values which the public itself creates, "the dangers which now menace us will turn to agencies of elevation"; population will grow where it is now too sparse and will spread where it is now too dense.

The pressure of want, which drives men to our cities, will be lessened, and through the destruction of land speculation natural opportunities will be opened for the profitable employment of labor at home.

If Mr. Newton will send me his address, I will be glad to send him a copy of books of which six millions have been sold, which will explain all this in detail.

Amateur Men of Science.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is possible to answer definitely the question asked by George Gordon Battle in today's TIMES. When I made a study of the subject in 1910 there were, among the leading thousand students of science of the United States, 26 who did not earn their living by scientific work. The number had in 1920 decreased to 12.

Of our thousand leading scientific men in 1920, 650 were with universities and colleges, 111 with the Federal Government, 101 with research institutions and 98 with industrial laboratories.

There are a number of naturalists and other amateurs who are doing useful work, but they are not leaders in science. For example, John H. Sage, who died this month, was a banker who had published on the birds of Connecticut and was for twenty years secretary of the American Ornithological Union.

The situation, as Mr. Battle says, is different in England, but changing social and economic conditions on

Monsignor Tanrath of St. Louis Performs Ceremony at the Bride's Maine Home.

GUESTS DANCE ON THE LAWN

Bride, in White Satin With Rare Old Lace, Attended by Bridegroom's Sister.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 26.—Miss Mary Christy Tiffany of St. Louis was married to John T. Pratt Jr., of New York City in the great living room of the George S. Tiffany house at Islesboro this noon.

The Very Rev. Mgr. Tanrath of the Cathedral of St. Louis officiated, assisted by the Rev. Timothy J. O'Mahoney of the Church of St. Francis of Assisi, Belfast.

Miss Tiffany wore a white satin gown trimmed with rare old lace, an heirloom, which also garnished her bridal veil. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor was Miss Virginia Pratt, sister of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were Miss Sallie Pratt, also a sister of the bridegroom; Miss Ruth Pruyn, Miss Nancy Potter, Miss Caroline Clark, Miss Harriet Boyden, all of New York; Mrs. Malcolm Greenough 3d, and Miss Helen Moseley of Boston.

The best man was Malcolm Greenough 3d, a classmate of the bridegroom at Harvard, who came from Europe, where he was spending his honeymoon. The ushers were Arthur Hobson, Richard Storey, Alfred Codman, Robert Hallowell Jr., of Boston; Henry Bohland and James Bangs of Philadelphia, John Hooker of San Francisco, James Tailor and Irving Pratt of New York, and the brothers of the bride, George S. Tiffany Jr. and Philip Tiffany of St. Louis.

Immediately after the ceremony there was an informal reception and dancing in a big tent on the lawn.

Among the guests coming from St. Louis were two uncles of the bride, Philip Scanlan and Dexter Tiffany, Mrs. Chateau and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lewis. Then there were Acting Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis and Mrs. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Davis of St. Louis, who are summering at Islesboro, the Acting Secretary of War coming in an airplane from Boston.

Snyder—Watt.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Kathleen Watt of Honolulu to Earle S. Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Snyder of Atlantic Highlands, took place Tuesday afternoon at the home of former Mayor and Mrs. Snyder. The Rev. Ralph W. Carr performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception. John Watt gave his daughter in marriage. Mrs. Archibald W. Neill, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Howard G. Memory was best man. Following their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Snyder will make their home in Atlantic Highlands.

Lantaberry—Strohman.

Miss Effie May Strohman, daughter of Mrs. S. S. Wheeler of Binghamton, N. Y., was married to Frederick C. A. H. Lantaberry at noon yesterday in the Astor dining room of the Waldorf-Astoria. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. R. Burke. Miss Helen Higgins was the bride's only attendant and John T. Wood was best man. Mr. Lantaberry is the managing director of the William Jessop & Sons, Ltd., steel works at Sheffield, England. After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Lantaberry left for a short honeymoon trip. They will sail for England Sept. 5, and will reside in Sheffield.

OESTREICHER WEDDING SET FOR SEPTEMBER 2

Brooklyn Girl to Be Bride of Daniel Content—Other Marriage Plans Announced.

Plans have been completed for the marriage of Miss Helen F. Oestreicher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Oestreicher of 214 Rutland Road, Brooklyn, to Daniel Content of Brooklyn, a son of David Content. The marriage will take place on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 2 at 4 o'clock, in the Church of the Transfiguration. The ceremony will be followed by a reception and dinner at the Park Lane.

Miss Norma Adams will be the bride's maid of honor and her only attendant. Jack C. Oestreicher, brother of the bride, will be best man. The day after the wedding the couple plan to sail on the Lapland to spend their honeymoon in Paris and Italy, where Mr. Content, who is an illustrator, will study.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. May of the Park Lane have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katherine Eleanor May, to Leslie Adrian Hyam of London, England, son of Mr. and Mrs. Montague Hyam of 489 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn. Mr. Hyam is a graduate of Cambridge University, class of 1922, and Miss May is a senior at Smith College. The wedding will take place in June.

The marriage of Miss Elise Wendell Schreiber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto A. Schreiber of 390 Park Avenue, to J. William Moore Robbins of this city, son of the late Edward Everett Robbins of Greensburg, Pa., and Mrs. Robbins of 260 Park Avenue, will take place at Pinecroft, the country home of the bride's parents at Watch Hill, R. I., on Sept. 2. Their engagement was announced last March. Miss Schreiber is a graduate of Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn. Mr. Robbins attended Yale.

Miss Elizabeth Ten Eyck Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Brooks of this city and Casenovia, N. Y., and Oliver H. Coolidge 2d of Boston will be married on Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the country home of the bride's parents in Casenovia. Their engagement was announced last April. Miss Brooks is a member of the Junior League and made her début three years ago. Mr. Coolidge is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge Jr. of Boston. He is a graduate of Groton School and of Harvard.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Whittingham of Short Hills, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Virginia Whittingham, to Lawrence Soule Apsey of Cambridge, Mass. Mr. Apsey, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Apsey, is a graduate of Harvard and is at present studying at the Harvard Law School.

Miss Katherine H. Maxwell to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Lascelles Chester Maxwell of Cromarty, Rye, N. Y., and Paris have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katherine Hoge Maxwell, to Livingston Dickinson of Chicago and Nantucket, Mass. Miss Maxwell is a graduate of the Finch School in New York and has been abroad for the past year. Mr. Dickinson has been touring in Europe since completing his studies at Yale. The wedding will take place in Paris during the Autumn.

An Acknowledgment.

Bridegroom Was a Captain in the Royal Field Artillery in the World War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Miss Katherine Peabody Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Samuel Rice, and Robert Wallace Mollison were married this afternoon in the garden of the Brambles, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Rice, at Wellington-on-the-Potomac. The ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock by Rev. Theodore Hubbard Evans, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church at Waynesboro, Va.

Miss Elsie Prantiss Briggs of Brookline, Mass., a classmate of the bride at Smith College, was her only attendant. Eustace Smith, Jr., of Toronto, was best man. The ushers were J. Brewster Rice, brother of the bride; Glenn McHugh, Dr. Royd R. Sayers, James A. Stone, Mathew Van Sicien and J. Bernard Wyckoff.

A reception and supper followed the ceremony and later Mr. and Mrs. Mollison left for a wedding trip. They will be at home after October 1 at Moorestown, N. J.

The bridegroom is the son of James Mollison, former Director of Agriculture for the Government of India and now of Ascott's, East Grinstead, England. He was a captain in the Royal Field Artillery during the World War.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were Nelson S. Spencer, Mrs. Richard Dana Upham and Miss Carolyn Rice of New York; Miss Katherine Johnson of Newark, N. J., and Miss Gertrude Wolff and Miss Dorothy Wolff of Baltimore, classmates of the bride at Smith College.

MISS EDITH REID WEDS DR. JOSEPH K. DIXON

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA., Aug. 26.—A late Summer wedding of interest took place at noon today in the Wayland Memorial Baptist Church, when Miss Edith Sloane Reid of Melrose Park, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Reid, became the bride of Dr. Joseph Kossuth Dixon of Germantown, son of the late Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Adam Dixon.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Howard Alfred Bulson, pastor of the church. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Clarence Jackson Reid. Miss Mabel P. Reid, a sister, attended the bride as maid of honor. Captain Constant R. Cloquet of Antwerp, a cousin of Cardinal Mercier and aid to King Albert during the war, was the best man. Distinguished guests from New York and Philadelphia were present.

Dr. Dixon, a graduate of William Jewel College and Rochester Seminary, is an explorer, traveler, lecturer and author, and is recognized as an authority on American aboriginal life, manners and customs.

The bride, who was engaged in social service for six years, enlisted in the Ordnance Department of the Navy during the World War. She has since been engaged in educational work.

GERALDINE FARRAR A COMIC OPERA STAR

BIG PRODUCTION PLANNED

Singer Will Be Under Management of A. E. Aarons Associated With A. L. Erlanger.

Geraldine Farrar will be seen at a New York theatre during the coming season as the star of a new comic opera under the management of Alfred E. Aarons, in association with A. L. Erlanger. Contracts were signed yesterday, it is announced.

This new venture will constitute Miss Farrar's first appearance on the legitimate stage in a musical play. Since the severance of her connection with the Metropolitan Opera House several seasons ago she has appeared at concerts and in performances of familiar operas, generally under her own management.

"The new comic opera," a statement by Mr. Aarons says, "is now being written for Miss Farrar by an author and a composer of international repute. This will be Miss Farrar's first appearance in modern comic opera and she will appear at the head of the greatest singing organization that has ever appeared on the light opera stage.

"She will be surrounded by a large ensemble of choristers recruited from grand opera and also from operatic schools in all parts of the country. An orchestra of imposing proportions will interpret the score.

"A definite date for the premiere will be announced later. It will be during the present season."

'CHEER-EE-O' TO HAVE MANY NEW FEATURES

Prologue and Specialty Numbers Are Latest Additions to Southampton Revue Program.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Several new features for "Cheer-ee-o," the amateur musical revue to be given Saturday for the benefit of the Southampton Hospital, have been announced. These include a prologue by Master James Shewan Jr., and a Pierrot-Pierrette number by Miss Eleanor Hutton and Edmund O'Brien. Specialty numbers, including duets and dance acts, will be interspersed throughout the production. "A Romance of a Débutante" will be enacted by Ralph and John Sturges, Henry H. Rogers Jr. and Miss Genevieve Fox, who will be a débutante during the coming Winter season. Florence Weicker will do a clog dance and a Highland fling. A sword dance will be performed by Jack and Russell Burke. The "Indian Love Call" will be sung by Albert Jagger and Miss Peggy Stevenson, and another duet, "Remembering," will be sung by Dorothy and Madeleine Waterman.

Rehearsals for the revue continued today in the new Parish Hall on Hill Street. Special attention was devoted to the chorus numbers and dances in which the children of the Summer colony will appear. The dancers in the "Raggedy Ann" number, who rehearsed in the morning, showed that they could go through their difficult steps with precision and enthusiasm. Other numbers in the production are also rapidly rounding into shape.

The committee which has been supervising the dance rehearsals consists of Mrs. Lyttleton Fox, Chairman; Mrs. James P. Lee, Mrs. S. O. Vander Poel, Mrs. W. A. Barstow and Miss Margaret Wheelwright. Those who are assisting Stage Manager Loomis H. Taylor include Mrs. Heyward Cutting, Miss Roseanna Rodebush and Donald Mixsell.

Don Marquis Farce Opens Sept. 7.

"Mister Pie-Eye," a farce by Don Marquis, will open at the National Theatre on Monday night, Sept. 7. "The Bride Retires," now at the National, will be transferred to the Maxine Elliott, and "Spring Fever" will be moved to the Ambassador.

CHICAGO RECEIVES BANCROFT'S BODY

CITY IS IN MOURNING

Funeral Will Be Held Today, With Burial in Family Plot at Galesburg, Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The body of Edgar A. Bancroft, in a flag-draped casket and under guard of soldiers, was received in Chicago today at the end of the long journey from Japan, where he died a month ago soon after going there as Ambassador. A group of close friends of Mr. Bancroft, who had lived most of his life in Chicago, met the funeral train at the Chicago & Northwestern Station, and a battalion of infantrymen from Fort Sheridan, with the regimental band and an escort of police, accompanied the coffin, borne on an artillery caisson, to the Fourth Presbyterian Church.

For today the exercises are directed by the State Department. Tomorrow, when the funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock, there will be no display of military honors. A short, simple ceremony is planned to be held at the church, giving Mr. Bancroft's friends and relatives the foreground, and then the body is to remain in the church until Friday, when it is to be taken to Galesburg for burial.

The Japanese people, who sent Mr. Bancroft's body home aboard a cruiser of their navy, were represented at the railway station by T. Tamaura, Consul, and U. Shigematsu, Vice Consul in Chicago.

An observation car attached to the Overland Limited carried the coffin and its escort. The party was made up of Consul General Caldwell, Lieut. Col. C. Burnett, U. S. A.; Lieut. Commander Herbert R. Hein, naval attaché at Tokio; Frederic Bancroft, a brother, and Horace K. Teney, friend of the late Ambassador.

Four non-commissioned officers of the army stood rigidly at posts beside the coffin and eight sergeants of the Second Infantry bore it from the car and through the station to an artillery caisson. A few associates in Mr. Bancroft's law firm and close friends were present to follow the casket to its place in the procession formed to go to the church.

From the law firm of Scott, Bancroft, Martin & MacLeish were John E. MacLeish, Horace Martin, Elbridge Pierce, who is a nephew of the late Ambassador, and Lester Falk. Among Mr. Bancroft's friends were John G. Shedd, John V. Farwell, Alfred L. Baker, Andrew Bruce and Dr. James G. K. McClure, President of McCormick Theological Seminary, who is to conduct the funeral service tomorrow.

A battalion of the Second Infantry, quartered at Fort Sheridan, and the regimental band led the procession, for which traffic was cleared by motorcycle policemen. As the casket was carried from the station the band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and on the march Chopin's funeral march. Major W. S. Drysdale commanded the escort. Fifty patrolmen from the Desplaines Street police station marched behind the soldiers.

The train halted as the cortège moved east in Jackson Boulevard and then north in Michigan Boulevard on its way to the church. Many flags on buildings were at half-staff. Crowds of pedestrians, the men with hats raised, stood silent as the band, the soldiers and the rumbling caisson passed.

In the church the coffin was placed within a semi-circular hedge of evergreens, whose fragrance filled the large auditorium. At each side of the coffin was placed a large urn on a pedestal. Both contained great clusters of white lilies, red roses and blue snapdragons.

Mayor Dever, who had been given the train time incorrectly, went to the station late. He hurried from there to the church. In the meantime he issued a proclamation which announced that:

"The City Hall, as a mark of respect, will be appropriately draped on Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 26 and 27, and its flags will be displayed at half-staff. Others are urged to do likewise. The traffic police are instructed to halt all traffic for one minute at the hour of 3 o'clock in the afternoon Thursday, the day of the funeral, as a silent tribute to our departed fellow-citizen."

High Government officials will honor Mr. Bancroft at his funeral. The honorary pallbearers, almost all personal friends of the late United States diplomat, will include Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Tsuno Matsudaira, Ambassador to the United States from Japan; J. Butler Wright, representing the State Department at Washington, and Mayor Dever and many other men high in private and public life.

On Friday morning the body will be taken in a special car to Galesburg, Ill., there to be buried beside the graves of Mr. Bancroft's wife and his father and mother. The Ambassador was born in Galesburg and practiced law there as a young man.

MODERN 'HAMLET' PLEASES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Interest in the production of "Hamlet" in modern costume continues, the Kingsway Theatre tonight being filled to capacity and the probability being that the play will have a good run. The opinion of THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent who attended tonight's performance is that too much has been made of the question of modern costume.

There is a good deal of costume in the tea gown and the first grave-digger in evening dresses, officers in uniform, a priest in cassock and bands, give a costume air to some scenes. Also when the king dons a purple dressing-gown and the queen appears in a rose-pink tea gown and the first gravedigger in the battered clothes of his class, it is costume, even if not Shakespearean costume.

Hamlet as long as he clings to his suit of decent black in the first half of the piece is really not very different from the conventional Hamlet in black doublet and tights, but his appearance in the second half in plus fours frankly detracts from the piece. He then becomes only a very wordy youth who is quite unimpressive. Horatio is worse. In ordinary tweeds he is quite without distinction.

As for Ophelia, her great mad scene absolutely ruined by pathos by her simple black dress. It was a girl of the present day who was crazed with grief, a girl whom any one in the audience might know.

Taking the production as a whole, it seemed to prove that the importance of costume has been much exaggerated.

Ethel Barrymore Back After Rest.

Ethel Barrymore returned yesterday on the Olympic from a three weeks' visit to England for a rest. When asked if she planned to play in London she said that her immediate future had never been so indefinite as it was now. "I might go to London and again I might not," she said, adding that she had had her hair bobbed and shingled in London in order not to be too conspicuous in the restaurants and theatres.

MISS ANDERSON SINGS.

Third Audition Winner Makes Debut at Philharmonic Concert.

Marian Anderson, the third audition winner, selected from 300 competitors, made her début at the Stadium last night with the Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of Willem van Hoogstraten. Miss Anderson made an excellent impression. She is endowed by nature with a voice of unusual compass, color and dramatic capacity. The lower tones have a warm contralto character, but the voice has the range and the resources of the mezzo-soprano.

In passages of sustained melody the singer showed feeling for melodic lines, while in the aria "O mio Fernando" she gave evidence of instructive dramatic impulse. Miss Anderson also sang negro spirituals.

The orchestral compositions consisted of Richard Strauss's March for Grand Orchestra and two dances of Debussy in the unique orchestration of Maurice Ravel, both heard for the first time at the Stadium, and Brahms's First Symphony. Tonight Mr. von Hoogstraten will direct a Beethoven-Wagner program.

'POLLY' HERE IN SEPTEMBER

Will Be the Opening Attraction at Cherry Lane Playhouse.

The Cherry Lane Playhouse, it has been announced, will begin its season late in September with a production of "Polly." John Gay's sequel to "The Beggar's Opera." "Polly" enjoyed a successful run at the Savoy Theatre in London a few years ago. The play will go into rehearsal next week.

The Cherry Lane Players also announce an American impressionistic play, as well as two other plays from Europe.

GEN. HOETZENDORFF DIES IN HIS 73D YEAR

HAD A BRILLIANT CAREER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 26.—Field Marshal Count Francis Conrad von Hoetzendorff, who was Chief of the Imperial Austrian General Staff, died yesterday of anemia at the Württemberg health resort, Gentheim. He was 73 years old.

Count von Hoetzendorff was a leader of the Austrian pre-war Military Party and was noted for his strong anti-Italian leanings. He was regarded as one of the most gifted of the Austrian military leaders in the World War, but had to retire owing to friction with the German General Staff. Four volumes of his memoirs have been published lately. He was working on a fifth volume, which was unfinished at his death, but which will be concluded by an authoritative editor.

Field Marshal Franz Conrad von Hoetzendorff was generally conceded to have been one of the chief instigators of the World War, and in the third volume of his memoirs he frankly confessed that as the pre-war chief of the General Staff he had labored to provoke war with Servia in 1906, 1908, 1912 and 1913. Then, following the assassination of the Austrian Archduke Ferdinand in Sarajevo, von Hoetzendorff, as he told in his book, "The Road to Catastrophe," went before his Emperor and urged him to sign the declaration of war.

The Austrian soldier was a lifelong enemy of Italy, and as early as 1907 urged Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria to make a sudden attack on the country to the south. An additional proof of his hostility was often disclosed in his attitude to the Italian-speaking provinces of Austria. When filling various commands in these sections, he invariably distinguished himself by his severity to the inhabitants and bent every effort to crush any spirit of Italian nationalism. In view of his sentiments in this regard, therefore, he caused considerable surprise and speculation when in 1916 he selected for his second wife an Italian, Linz Aguiari, one of the most avowed Italian nationalists in the Austrian provinces.

Count von Hoetzendorff was born in Penzing, a suburb of Vienna, on Nov. 11, 1852. Early in his youth he was prepared for a military career—a career destined to become so brilliant that he was soon to be recognized as one of the leading military figures in the Dual Kingdom.

In the first months of the war he commanded the Austrian forces on the Russian front. Because of Russia's succession of victories in the early months of the struggle, he lost a prestige which was not regained until, through the strategy he had planned, Galicia was cleared of the Russian forces by the Austro-German troops in 1915. In this campaign he was credited with the recapture of Lemberg and won promotion. In addition, the exploit was also recognized personally by the German Emperor, who decorated the Austrian General with the Order Pour le Merite.

Upon Italy's entrance in the war von Hoetzendorff was made a Field Marshal of Austria's forces on the Italian front. He served here until July, 1918. Then, because of his repeated failures, he was replaced by Field Marshal von Koevess.

GIRL AND TWO MEN HELD IN BOND THEFT

BONDS FOUND IN ROOMS

Police Also Say There Was a Detective's Shield Like That Used to Dupe Messenger.

A handsomely dressed young woman and two men who were arrested before dawn yesterday in an apartment at 2,532 Broadway in connection with the theft of $23,700 in securities on Aug. 17 last from a messenger for a brokerage firm in the financial district were held without bail for examination tomorrow by Magistrate William A. Farrell in the Tombs Court.

When taken into custody by Detectives McGann, Kalbfleisch, Upham and Fay of the Old Slip Station the prisoners described themselves as Winifred Stewart, 22 years old, an artists' model; Albert C. McDonald, 29 years old, a salesman, and Irving Adler, 30 years old, a treasurer, who told the police he was a son of Jacob Adler, the well-known Jewish actor.

The complainant against them was Harold Clasen, messenger for the Stock Exchange firm of Hellner, King & Goldman, 67 Exchange Place. He told the detectives that on the day of the theft he was assigned to deliver $68,000 in securities to various firms in the Wall Street district, and had delivered all but $23,700 of them when a stranger met him in an office building and asked the direction to the office of a well-known brokerage firm.

Taken to Federal Building.

Clasen had just finished directing the man when two other men walked up to him, showed gold shields and said they were Federal detectives. One of them demanded to know why Clasen, who carried the securities in a satchel, was associating with a "notorious criminal."

The messenger protested that he didn't know the man, but the "detectives" forced him to accompany them with the "criminal" to the Federal Building, at Park Row and Broadway, half a mile away. He and the stranger were led to the entrance of a reception room adjoining the office of Federal Prosecutor Buckner on the second floor. The "prisoner" was pushed through the door by one "detective" while the other took the satchel containing the securities from Clasen and told him to wait in the corridor until he and the others came out.

After a lapse of fifteen minutes Clasen became suspicious, and on going inside discovered that the trio were thieves, who had evidently passed out of the room through another door. Descriptions of the men furnished to the detectives led to the arrests yesterday. The detectives said that the apartment had been rented to a "Mr. and Mrs. Adler."

A search of the apartment, the detectives said, revealed securities alleged to have been part of those taken from Clasen. They consisted of a certificate of 100 shares of Servel Corporation stock; a $1,000 Bethlehem Steel Corporation bond, a $1,000 French Government bond and $3,000 in German Government bonds.

Say They Found Detective's Shield.

The police alleged that they also found in the apartment $11400 in money, a gold shield purporting to have been issued by a private detective agency, a pistol, a blackjack, a pair of handcuffs and a complete opium layout. The prisoners pleaded not guilty and denied any connection with the theft.

The securities still missing include a $1,000 6 per cent. Argentine bond, a $2,000 4 per cent. New York, Ontario & Western bond, $7,000 in German Government bonds, $2,000 in French Government bonds, another certificate of 100 shares of Servel Corporation common stock and a $1,000 Utica Gas and Electric 5 per cent. bond.

JOHN A. STEWART, 103, CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Oldest Columbia Alumnus Recalls Playing in Meadows Where Now Is Wall Street.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Aug. 26.—John A. Stewart, the oldest living alumnus of Columbia University, who graduated with the class of 1841, celebrated his 103d birthday at his Summer home in Convent this afternoon. He is the oldest living trustee of Princeton University.

Mr. Stewart was born in a small wooden house at Fulton and Front Streets, New York, on Aug. 26, 1822, one year after Napoleon Bonaparte died on the island of St. Helena. He remembers playing as a boy in the meadows where is now the financial district of New York. After his graduation from Columbia he worked as a civil engineer on the Erie Railroad, which was then being built. In 1853 he organized the United States Trust Company, serving as its Secretary and later, from 1865 to 1902, as its President. He is the only survivor of the original forty trustees, which included Peter Cooper, John Jacob Astor, Jacob Lawrence, John J. Phelps, John J. Cisco, William Dodge and William H. Macy.

During the Civil War Mr. Stewart was a financial adviser to President Lincoln and remembers having dinner with him two nights before he was assassinated. After the resignation of Woodrow Wilson as President of Princeton University Mr. Stewart acted as President pro tem. for two years. He has served as Assistant Treasurer of the United States, was Clerk of the New York City Board of Education and for eight years was an actuary for the United States Life Insurance Company.

PASSENGERS IN WRECK REWARD ENGINEER

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 26.—William Price, engineer of the "Commuters' Express" of the Reading Railroad bound for Camden from Ocean City, was rewarded this morning by grateful passengers who felt his presence of mind had saved their lives.

As the train was traveling at 50 miles an hour between Stratford and Somerdale, a driving rod of the engine snapped, derailing the tender and disconnecting the airbrakes. The tender tore up a long stretch of rails and ties and two switches, derailing twelve cars which bumped on the rails in imminent danger of overturning. Price, applying the handbrake instantly, stopped the train before it had traveled 1,000 feet.

None of the passengers was hurt, and all, relieved and grateful, contributed coins and currency to the engineer. He got nearly $300.

STAGE DANCES SHOWN AT TEACHERS' MEETING

Exhibitions of eccentric and stage dancing were the principal features of the third day of the convention of the Society of American Teachers of Dancing yesterday at the Waldorf. A Spanish character dance by Edna Baum of Chicago, an Indian dance by Helen J. Wheeler of Cleveland, and eccentric dances by Pearl Wallace of St. Petersburg, Fla., were given for the teachers.

The morning session was enlivened by the protests of some of the older members of the society against the immodesty of the abbreviated costumes worn by some of the teachers in the dancing sessions. The protests were overruled, however, and the costumes were retained at the afternoon session.

Louis H. Chalif of New York was re-elected President; Adolph Newburger of New York, was chosen Vice President; and Henry Doring of Troy was re-elected Treasurer. The next meeting will be held in this city next Summer.

A solemn warning against the Charleston was issued yesterday by the Hoboken police. Commissioner of Public Safety Bernard N. McFeely, through his brother Edward J. McFeely, the Chief of Police of Hoboken, gave out a statement saying that policemen there have been warned to bar the Charleston from all dance halls in old buildings.

"The Charleston, to my mind, is very dangerous where the building is of an old type," wrote the Commissioner. "This dance is executed by the participants jumping up and down on the floor and, as one can readily see, an old floor cannot stand this abuse."

The order followed information brought to Police Headquarters Tuesday night by a patrolman who said that the floor at a dance hall on Grand Street, Hoboken, "vibrated in a dangerous manner," during a Charleston dance.

LINER IS REFLOATED AFTER DAY ON SHOALS

BOSTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Dollar Line steamship President Garfield, which went aground on Half Moon Shoal off Nantucket in a fog early today, was floated at 4:10 this afternoon. The liner proceeded at once on her way to New York.

The 11,000-ton steamer, which had on board Captain Robert Dollar, President of the line; some seventy passengers and a crew of ninety-five, floated at high tide without the aid of the Coast Guard cutters and the lighthouse tender which were rushed to aid the big vessel.

A radio message to the Dollar Line offices here from the captain said: "Floated without assistance. Proceeding New York."

The liner sailed from Boston last night. It is used for round-the-world cruises and was being navigated by a coast pilot when she grounded. Eighteen New York newspaper men were aboard as guests of the company.

The Government vessels that reached the President Garfield in response to its radio early today were the Coast Guard cutter Acushnet and the lighthouse tender Anemone. The Coast Guard cutter Gresham of Boston also left to aid.

ASKS TRUSTEE IN OLD SUIT

Former Congressman Harry Hanbury, plaintiff in a suit for $880,134 against the Metropolitan Securities Company, which has been in the courts since 1906, asked Supreme Court Justice Carswell in Brooklyn yesterday to name a trustee to succeed to the trust estate formerly held by Frank D. Creamer, deceased, and held at present by Hanbury. The motion for the substitution was made to forestall any legal objection to Hanbury's position as plaintiff in the forthcoming trial.

A verdict was awarded to Hanbury at the trial before Justice Carswell last February, which was upset a month later by the same Justice on the ground that the plaintiff did not have sufficient title to the claims as assignee. The original suit was brought to recover $600,000 on a contract made in 1901 in connection with the development of street car lines in the Bronx by the People's Traction Company.

SMITH AND ROOT PICK SITE

Both Also Approve Plan to Rehabilitate Saratoga Battlefield.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP).—Governor Smith and Elihu Root, who came here to select a site in the Capitol for a bust of former President Chester A. Arthur, announced today support of a plan for rehabilitation of the Saratoga battlefield group, Saratoga, Bennington and Oriskany.

Mr. Root declared it "a critical need for action before the 150th anniversary of the battle," and said that "something definite should be done as soon as possible." Governor Smith promised action, declaring he would "vigorously urge the State Council of Parks to recommend and carry out a program."

Rotarians of Eastern New York and the Mohawk Valley Historical Association are supporting the project.

Price and Motor Are the Only Things Not Altered.

DETROIT, Aug. 26 (AP).—The most pronounced changes in the Ford automobile since the Ford Motor Company began production of the model T, the standard Ford chassis, was announced today. There is no change in price.

Both open and closed cars have an all-steel body on a lowered chassis with changed body style in nearly all models. Color has replaced the black finish on closed cars, fenders are lower and larger and brakes have been redesigned.

Longer lines with a redesigned cowl and a higher radiator are especially noticeable. The gasoline tank is under the cowl in most models; seats and steering wheel are lower and the cars are roomier. The motor remains unchanged.

MATRICIDE IS SENTENCED.

Dorothy Ellingson Gets From One to Ten Years.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26 (AP).—Dorothy Ellingson, 17, who was found guilty of manslaughter Saturday by a jury, which tried her on a charge of murder for shooting her mother, Anna Ellingson, was sentenced today to from one to ten years in the State prison.

The girl listened attentively while sentence was pronounced, but displayed no emotion. She smiled as she arose to accompany the matron to the county jail. The sentence carried no recommendation for leniency. Under the law she will be eligible for parole after one year.

PAGE PREDICTED END OF OUR ISOLATION

SAW BRITAIN RISE ANEW

"Clashes of Interests" Would Come, He Wrote, With Nation Strengthened by Victory.

ADVOCATED A FIRM HAND

Early realization by Walter H. Page, war-time Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, that the great war would end America's "isolation"; that it would call for firmness in dealing with "clashes of interests" with a victorious Great Britain and render useless our theretofore "perfunctory diplomatic work," is shown in the Ambassador's confidential letters to President Woodrow Wilson, which appear in the September issue of The World's Work.

The letters indicate that Mr. Page's mind grasped the possibilities of the war before the United States entered into it, and in a letter dated Aug. 2, 1914, he referred feelingly to the wisdom of the no-alliance policy of this country. In that communication he wrote:

"My thoughts run quickly to what we may do. On my own initiative I asked Sir Edward Grey nearly a week ago if he could use the good offices of the United States for peace. Sir Edward is very appreciative of our mood and willingness. But they don't want peace on the Continent—the ruling military classes do not. But they will want it presently and then our opportunity will come—your opportunity to play an important and historical part. Ours is the only great Government in the world that is not in some way entangled. (How wise our no-alliance policy is!)

"Our shipping and foreign commerce will gain immensely; our chance to help settle the quarrel will surely come—there was nothing that we could have done to prevent it; and our intimate and frank and confidential relations with this country are such that we will, I am sure, be called upon as soon as they are willing to call on anybody to point the way back to reason.

"Events here alone seem to me likely to make your Administration historic. Let's watch closely for chances to serve.

Said Germans Planned Conquest.

A letter written by Mr. Page Sept. 22 of the same year indicates he had sensed the part the United States would play diplomatically. Mr. Page wrote in part:

"The more fully the whole, recent diplomatic story of the war and of the events that preceded it comes out, the clearer it becomes here that the German military party had deliberately planned the practical conquest of the world; that it had won the German people (or a large part of them) to believe in this as a necessity; and that the military party firmly believed they could do it; and that, believing in this program as a necessity, they came to believe that any method whereby they could do this justified itself.

"The militarist people gave the whole people an extraordinary case of bighead. I find the evidence of these extraordinary facts incontrovertible. The English are not going to discuss peace except in Berlin. In other words, they will reject any terms that Germany will offer except on the basis of defeat. They are going to rid themselves and the rest of Europe of the menace they have lived under for thirty years—a hostile, military autocracy.

"All the resources of the empire and all the men that they can get will be spent if they are needed to prevent another 'assault upon the continuity of civilization.' For those reasons Mr. Straus's peace activity was looked upon here as part of the German campaign to affect public opinion in the United States and as nothing else—as a move in the game of publicity to seem to put the responsibility for continuing the war on England, in spite of the fact that Germany had made no definite proposal whatever."

After writing at some length in this letter about the preparation in England for an "indefinite struggle" and setting forth that Sir John French and Sir John Jellicoe were expected by the English to "play the parts of Wellington and Nelson," Mr. Page wrote as follows:

"And you may be sure the story will be well told, and therefore it will become history; and sung well, and therefore it will become literature. And the story will be the story of English freedom again saved and again broadened, of the empire become bigger and very much more firmly knit; of India become really loyal and far better treated; of Ireland stripped of its grievance; of new African colonies to exploit, and (more important yet) the common mass of England claiming and getting more privileges and more power and a wider opportunity.

Saw Monroe Doctrine Saved.

"These things are almost visible now. And for us, in addition to an increase in our trade and financial power, we shall have the Monroe Doctrine still safe, as we should not have it if Germany won.

"The diplomatic work betwixt Great Britain and our country is, as you know, not difficult; they play the game squarely; they are wholly courteous and sincere, and even more than ever they value our friendship and sympathy. But I see Sir Edward Grey three or four times a week; he gives me his confidence, and we have only to keep strictly neutral. That is not hard to do here.

"England will not only gain territory and power and trade and even greater dominion at sea, she will also toughen her breed and make literature of the experience. The Germans deserve the fate that awaits them for their sheer stupidity in not understanding this.

"The liberalization of Europe will follow. But, her strong enemy overcome, Great Britain will not, I greatly incline, lose her friendship, and when clashes of interests come, we shall need firmness. She doesn't become arrogant with success; she simply becomes more positive and more energetic. There never came so good a time to put our foreign service, at home and abroad, on a firm, liberal and uniformly efficient basis—from the Department of State to the humblest Consul. We have some wonderfully good men, but we have also, in places, the feeblest sort of touch. All news of both sorts comes to London.

"This war is showing how we are a part of the great world, whether we wish to be or not. Could the next Congress not be induced to have a study made of the foreign service of other great States compared with ours?

"Yours, very heartily,

"WALTER H. PAGE.

"P. S. This thought grows on me the more I ponder the world-changing series of events that, when the war is ended, nothing will be precisely as it was before, not even England. England will not only be more powerful, but she will be under very definite bonds—to Russia and Japan. Russia and Japan, therefore, will be different. We shall need a new sort of diplomatic force in most parts of the world; we shall need somehow to wake up the American public to realize that our isolation is gone and that our perfunctory diplomatic work, which has done well enough in many places in the past, will not do anywhere in the future; and a stronger navy. There simply is no end to the changes that are coming."

COOLIDGE PRESENTS TROPHY TO AVIATOR

Lieutenant Thomas Honored for Flying Navy Plane Longest Time Without Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 26.—Lieutenant Reginald De Noyes Thomas of Boston received from President Coolidge today the Herbert Schiff Memorial Trophy for flying a navy plane the greatest number of hours during the past year without serious injury to himself or plane.

The presentation was made upon the lawn on the ocean side of White Court, and the President and Lieutenant Thomas and the others who attended the ceremony stood in the shade of several large elm trees. Among those present were Admiral Louis R. De Steiguer, Commandant of the Boston Navy Yard; Lieutenant Commander Mole; Davis, Lieutenant Wallace Dillon, and Captain Adolphus Andrews, commander of the Mayflower.

President Coolidge has promised to attend tomorrow the dedication of a flagpole in Lynn Commons. Many North Shore residents who have seen little of the President are planning to attend this ceremony. The police are making arrangements to take care of a crowd of 25,000.

Following his program to visit as many historic New England places this Summer as possible, Mr. Coolidge announced today that he would go to Plymouth, Mass., next Friday on the Mayflower, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and a few friends. He expects to reach the historic landing place between 10 and 11 o'clock in the morning.

FOSTER SEES ANDREWS ON NEW YORK DRY POST

Question of Tenure Remains Undecided as Acting Administrator Prepares for Office.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—John A. Foster, the divisional Chief of Prohibition Enforcement at Philadelphia, who on Sept. 1 will become Acting Administrator of the Second District having headquarters in New York City, was in conference today with General Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Before taking up his new work, Mr. Foster will confer with officers of the Coast Guard and the Customs Service with a view to collecting information that will aid him in perfecting his organization in New York City.

Neither General Andrews nor Mr. Foster would admit today that there was any discussion of the question as to whether Mr. Foster ultimately would be named Administrator at New York. All that Mr. Foster would say was that on assuming his new duties he would proceed to the work of enforcement in accordance with department instructions.

General Andrews has not yet decided whether Mr. Foster shall be named Administrator. He wants to put in the New York post one of a number of "big" executives whom he regards as eminently fit. If he fails in this direction, Mr. Foster may be permanently retained at headquarters.

Mr. Foster is regarded as one of the most capable officials in the service and will receive a new assignment in the event that he is displaced at New York.

Mr. Foster said that he would remain in Washington until late in the week and return to Philadelphia to wind up his affairs there, and then proceed to New York.

TO KEEP LAWSON IDEALS.

Bank Trustee Says Chicago Daily News Will Perpetuate Policies.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Although a banker has been willed into control of The Chicago Daily News there will be no attempt by La Salle Str et to direct the policies of the paper, John J. Mitchell, the financier in question, said tonight.

The administration of the News, Mr. Mitchell said, may be in the hands of a great financial institution—the Illinois Merchants' Trust Company—but Victor E. Lawson's policies and purposes will be perpetuated.

That was the publisher's desire. The men Lawson trained will continue to direct and edit and circulate the paper in the spirit that guided them for so many years. And when these, in their turn, must go, the banker said, then others, still Lawson-trained, because Lawson-trained men will have trained them, must carry on.

"In a word," Mr. Mitchell said, "The Daily News will continue on to be an independent newspaper published under the ideals of Victor Lawson, always by men who knew Lawson's wishes and ideas and policies—what he wanted to accomplish. That is my wish as well as it was Mr. Lawson's."

Mr. Mitchell was asked about charges which have been made at various times by politicans that The Daily News was the mouthpiece of the bankers and if the fact that it had actually gone into the hands of a great financial institution would not tend to confirm the charges. He replied:

"Why, I would say that any such an idea was the wildest kind of a notion. What does a banker know about running a newspaper? A banker is a banker and not a newspaper editor or publisher.

"Let me tell you that the very fact that a banker and bank have been placed in this peculiar position by Mr. Lawson would lead us to lean backward, as the saying goes, so as never to be open to any such charges."

Police Aid Family of Woman Slain as Sleuth Fought Thieves

Commissioner Richard E. Enright asked members of the Police Department yesterday to contribute to a fund for the relief of Charles F. Connolly of 433 West Thirty-fourth Street, whose wife, Marie, was shot and killed last Aug. 6 in an exchange of shots between Detective Richard E. Heneberry of the truck squad and four young thieves at Thirty-fourth Street and Tenth Avenue. Heneberry, who was attempting to investigate the men as they sat in a stolen automobile, also was killed. The gunmen escaped.

Connolly, left with four children to support, is out of work and virtually penniless. He was overcome with grief at his wife's death. No more than 25 cents each will be expected from each member of the department.

FILMS SURRENDER TO CONNECTICUT TAX

Central Distributing Agency Offers to Meet Any Terms Laid Down.

BUT WILL MOVE EXCHANGES

$90,000 Raised to Protect Small Exhibitors—500 to Lose Their New Haven Jobs.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 26 (AP).—An offer to pay the State tax on motion picture films under any arrangement which will be satisfactory to the Tax Commissioner, even to payment of the tax before entry of the films into this State, was made to Tax Commissioner Blodgett today by Charles C. Pettijohn of New York, chief counsel for the Central Distributing Agencies.

Details of the agreement, which means the virtual surrender of the distributers to the tax law, at least for the present, will be completed at a conference to be held in New Haven tomorrow.

While the offer came voluntarily, all tax payments will be made "under protest," Commissioner Blodgett said following a conference with Mr. Pettijohn, Benedict M. Holden, counsel for the distributers in this State and Special Agent John J. Splain.

The distributors would pay the tax under agreements to be made tomorrow, Mr. Pettijohn said, but this would not affect the method of distribution of films to the theatre owners. He said that films would be shipped by parcel post and express for the present as the distributing agencies were being moved from New Haven to New York today.

Mr. Pettijohn placed the records of the New York and Boston distributing agencies at the disposal of the Commissioner for the purpose of collecting the tax.

The small theatre owners would be protected by the proposed arrangements, Mr. Pettijohn said, declaring that it was for this reason the distributers were willing to make arrangements for payment of the tax.

"We have borrowed about $90,000," he said, "to meet the tax payments, and do not intend to allow the owners of the small theatres to suffer, if we can prevent it."

The closing of the New Haven distributing offices towady will force about 500 persons into unemployment, he estimated. "We are sorry this has to be so," he said, "but it is necessary."

Special Agent Splain favored immediate enforcement of the tax collection through the use of State police machinery if necessary, at the conference today. Mr. Pettijohn declared this would not be necessary, as the distributers were not anxious to obstruct the State tax laws, but were in doubt as to the proper method of tax payment.

In a statement issued tonight, Mr. Holden said that "the producers and distributers will comply with each, every and all existing contracts now in existence with the theatre owners of the State."

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 26.—With the report current here that New York State was preparing to pass a film tax worded exactly like the new Connecticut law, which had resulted in the announcement of Will H. Hays, President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, that distribution of films in Connecticut would cease after the expiration of outstanding contracts, distributers here today began shutting up their offices and preparing to enforce the boycott laid on the State by the national organization under the impression that there would be no change in the situation. Every distributing office in the State would be closed by Saturday, the distributers said and thenceforth moving-picture exhibitors would have to close or get films from independent producers and themselves pay the new tax.

A meeting of exhibitors was held today, following which the statement was made that many small houses would close at once and most of the remainder early next week. The exhibitors asserted they could not bear the loss attendant on payment of the tax.

There was talk today of requesting Governor Trumbull to call a special session of the Legislature to take action on the situation, but State officials scout the idea that the Governor would call such a session. The Governor is away on vacation, and although theatre owners today made an attempt to learn his address no interview with him was arranged.

The Legislature passed the film tax bill practically unanimously and Governor Trumbull gave a hearing to the theatre owners of the State and to representatives of the distributing agencies from New York before he signed it. The belief is that the General Assembly would refuse to repeal the law.

Lieut. Gov. Brainard today termed the move of the distributing agents a bluff. "An extra session of the Legislature is out of the question," he said. "It would cost the State $60,000 and the money would be wasted, because there is no possibility of the law being repealed. The law is a good one, it is carefully framed and I do not believe that there will be a boycott on sending films to this State."

Closing theatres would mean inaction in $2,500,000 worth of theatre real estate here and loss of employment for more than 400 persons connected directly with the exchanges.

Members of the Film Board of Trade estimated that this city would lose an average of $7,500 a week, customarily paid out in salaries, and that the State would be deprived of thousands of dollars in tax revenues which the exchange is now paying. There is a theatre seat tax which returns from $200 to $200 a year from each of the 200 theatres.

Lester Tobias of the Yale Exchange today presented to State Tax Commissioner Blodgett, through B. M. Holden, a complete list of all films delivered by each member of the local exchanges to exhibitors in this State from July 8. The tax on these films will be paid to the Commissioner out of the $90,000 placed in Mr. Holden's hands, as an emergency fund, at the meeting held in New York last week.

Hays Announces Boycott.

The boycott of Connecticut by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributers of America was formally announced yesterday in a statement issued by Will H. Hays. The statement said:

"The Connecticut law which provides for a one-man political censorship of a method of expression and for a tax of a confiscatory nature is as unjust in its provisions and conception as it is impractical in its operation.

"The exhibitors, producers and distributers are united and unanimous in their conclusions as to the impossibilities of the situation.

"It is a most unfortunate condition, placing an entirely unnecessary and expensive burden on the amusement of the people and placing in the hands of one man the determination of what much of that amusement shall be. It is a serious economic problem. There is left for the motion picture theatre owners, producers and distributers scarcely any option. Producers and distributers will carry out their existing contracts; they will immediately remove their exchanges for the distribution of films from the State of Connecticut; and for the time being they will not make further Connecticut contracts."

ASKS NEW 34TH ST. FERRY.

Mills Recommends Two-Boat Service to Long Island City.

William Wirt Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, submitted to the Board of Estimate yesterday a report recommending the resumption of ferry service between East Thirty-fourth Street, Manhattan, and Borden Avenue, Long Island City, as requested by Borough President Connolly of Queens and various manufacturers and organizations. He urged establishing a municipal ferry to replace the Long Island Railroad ferry, which has been discontinued. He pointed out that this would help relieve congestion on the Queensboro Bridge.

The Commissioner estimated that a two-boat service, operated sixteen hours daily, week days only, would cost approximately $100,000 a year, and should pay its own way.

George J. O'Brien, ferryboat owner of Whitestone, will forward to the Board of Estimate today a proposal that he be permitted to operate the old Thirty-fourth Street ferry between the Hunters Point section of Long Island City and Thirty-fourth Street, Manhattan. He declares that he is the owner of several ferryboats suited for the service and seeks a franchise. His proposition has been endorsed by the Hunters Point Community Council.

The new emergency bus service of the Eastern Parkway, Bronxville and East New York Transit Relief Association, which was to have started at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, was postponed until next Monday, because the buses were not all painted and equipped.

MAGISTRATE IS CLEARED.

Goodman's Bond Imposed After Auto Hit Child, Is Lifted.

Special to The New York Times.

MANASQUAN, N. J., Aug. 26.—Magistrate Henry R. Goodman of New York City was released from a $1,000 bond tonight under which he was placed by Borough Recorder William Thorp here on April 17, to await the outcome of injuries sustained by Dorothy Garrison, 6 years old, who was knocked down by a car driven by the Magistrate. Motor Inspector L. R. Wyckoff in court tonight announced that the Garrison girl had left the Spring Lake Hospital, and recommended Magistrate Goodman's release.

The Magistrate was not in court, but Judge Louis Tumen of Asbury Park, who was his bondsman, appeared for him. A charge of driving a car with neither license nor registration card in his possession made against Magistrate Goodman was dismissed. Mayor Lloyd C. Riddle, attorney for the Garrison child, announced that a civil suit would follow.

Stock's Net Gain is Now 855 Votes.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—A further gain of fifty-two votes for Daniel F. Steck, Democrat, was made today in the Senate recount for Taylor and Union Counties in the Iowa Senatorial contest against Senator Brookhart. This brought his net again to date to 855.

Army Air Service Invents New Compass, Which Records Headings Made by Planes.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—A recording compass for airplanes has been developed by the instrument branch of the engineering division of the army air service and successfully demonstrated by air service pilots. The new device records on a paper chart, by means of pen and ink, all the various headings which an airplane assumes as well as "figure eights" and other intricate turns. Courses are shown in degrees, starting with north as zero.

First successful tests of the new recording compass were made in flights over Dayton and vicinity. In one of them, after preliminary manoeuvring over McCook Field, a straight flight was made to a point, a turn made and the flight continued back. All changes were accurately recorded.

So far as is known here, this is the first practical recording compass developed that depends on magnetism for its action. The vertical movement of the recording pen is governed by a system of magnets and relays so that the entire device can be placed in the wings or in the tail of the fuselage at a distance from iron or steel. The compass can be put in the tail and the recording device arranged directly in front of the pilot, the two parts being connected by small wires.

One of the greatest difficulties encountered in using magnetic compasses in airplanes has been the errors caused by the iron and steel of the engine being so close to the compass that indications are affected.

There are two models of the recording compass—one in which the chart is marked off according to the time, so that one can tell how many minutes the plane flew in any one direction, and one in which the chart is marked off in actual miles traveled in each direction. In the latter model the chart rollers are actuated by a mechanism interlocked with a true air-distance recorder, another d vice developed by the army air service.

The first tests of the recording compass were made under the direction of Y. R. Showalter, instrument expert at McCook Field. Lieutenant D. L. Bruner was the pilot and Newton Lamm the observer.

GRANDSON FIGHTS SUIT BY MRS. THAW

SHE IS SEEKING ITS RETURN

Lawrence C. Thaw Points Out In Answer That He Alone of Family Is Engaged In Business.

Lawrence Copley Thaw, who has been sued for the return of $600,000, a gift from his grandmother, Mary Copley Thaw of Pittsburgh, entered a general denial yesterday in the United States District Court of the Southern District of New York that there had been any coercion on his part, and declared that the gift was made to him of her own free will by his grandmother. His answer was filed by Taylor, Knowles & Hack, attorneys for Mr. Thaw, who expect to fight vigorously the attempt of Mrs. Thaw to recover the $600,000 gift.

The answer to the original complaint, as filed in court yesterday, set forth that Lawrence Copley Thaw is "the only member of the immediate family of Mrs. Thaw to engage in and apply himself to business." He pointed out, through his attorneys, that at the time of the death of his father the estate of the latter was upward of $1,500,000, from which he received a legacy of $50,000, the balance going to his father's second wife and their son.

Mr. Thaw said that he had been the adviser of his grandmother and other members of the family in regard to security transactions for some time, and that he was now employed by Wood, Struthers & Co. It was specifically denied, in the answer filed yesterday, that the deed, of gift which transferred the sum of $600,000 from grandmother to grandson was obtained under any sort of compulsion. It was pointed out that this deed was drawn by the personal attorney of Mrs. Thaw and with the knowledge of the Fidelity Title and Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Thaw's financial adviser. Incidentally it was noted in the denial that the $600,000 was the proceeds of the sale of 21,200 shares of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey stock, which were liquidated to establish this gift. It was further noted that Lawrence Copley Thaw had been advised that he need not expect to be further remembered in Mrs. Thaw's will.

Finally, the attorneys for Mr. Thaw declined to return the gift and asked that the suit be dismissed.

In the complaint which Mrs. Thaw filed with the Federal Court here through her attorneys on July 20 she alleged that her grandson had coaxed the money from her when she was ill. She said that the $600,000 was given to the defendant because she believed at the time that he had spoken the truth when he said he had been discriminated against in his father's will. She alleged that her grandson's statements had succeeded in imposing upon her trust and confidence.

TRUCK HITS CAR; THIRTY ARE HURT

MISTAKEN SIGNALS BLAMED

Ambulances From Three Hospitals Rush to Scene at 3d Av. and 109th St.—Reserves Called Out.

A misunderstanding of signals by a motorman and a chauffeur yesterday forenoon resulted in a crash between a motor truck of the Street Cleaning Department and a northbound surface car at Third Avenue and 109th Street and the injury of thirty persons, most of them passengers on the car.

Ambulances were summoned from three hospitals, but before their arrival eight of the injured had walked off with slight cuts or bruises. Fifteen others were attended in neighboring stores by surgeons from Harlem, Reception and Bellevue Hospitals. The remaining seven were removed to Harlem and Reception Hospitals, but five of them were discharged in a few hours and the other two, it was reported, probably would be able to leave in a few days.

The accident caused considerable excitement in the vicinity, traffic being blocked on the surface line for some time. Investigation by the police revealed that the surface car, which was being operated by Motorman Patrick Smith was crowded with passengers, most of them women bound for markets in upper Harlem. Children were seated on the laps of a few of the women.

The car was midway over the street intersection, witnesses said, when the motor truck, loaded with ashes and being operated by James Smith of 253 West 134th Street, crashed into the front car throwing all the standing passengers to the floor and spattering glass over those seated.

The cries of the passengers soon brought a large crowd. Several men jumped on the platforms of the car and aided in getting the injured to the street. Telephone calls to Police Headquarters brought reserves under Captain Loonam from the East 104th Street station, and lines were formed to keep the curious from interfering with the work of leading the injured to the neighboring stores.

The most seriously injured was Mrs. A. Roach, who gave the address 100 West Fifty-seventh Street and who, on her arrival at Reception Hospital, was found to have suffered a fracture of the right leg, and Max Leib, 37 years old, of 925 Upton Avenue, the Bronx, taken to the same hospital with internal injuries and contusions on the right leg.

TO TRY COOLIDGE GUARDS.

Court-Martial Ordered for Marines Found Asleep on Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 26.—Captain Andrews of the Mayflower, in charge of the forty-six marines guarding President Coolidge, has ordered a summary court-martial to try the corporal and private of marines who were found asleep while on duty at White Court. The trial will be held on the Mayflower early next week.

Marines feel keenly the charges and regret that the thing has happened, but some of them say privately they are doing the work for which the Secret Service men are paid.

The marines are complaining of the food served to them. They declare that soup containing printed bread labels was served to the guard at White Court. The commissary corporal said that the food was not up to the regulations because of the high food prices prevailing on the North Shore.

Denials were made tonight that marines attached to the President's guard had been kept busy carrying food for entertainments given by the officers. According to the story the marines were overworked at these entertainments and fell asleep while on duty at White Court.

First Sergeant Brown, in charge at marine headquarters in the absence of Lieutenant Wright, said there had been only one dinner given in the camp during the nine weeks the marines had been here. This was given three weeks ago by Lieutenant Edgar Allen Poe, and lasted from 7 to 9 o'clock.

"This story is absolutely foolish," said Sergeant Brown. "The marines were found asleep last Monday night."

BATTLES BURGLAR SUSPECT

Woman Finds Him in Home and Holds Him for Policeman.

Mrs. Celia Yuni returned from an outing late yesterday in time to surprise a burglar in her home at 701 Alabama Avenue, Brooklyn. She went to a closet to hang up a dress and discovered the intruder hiding behind some clothing.

The screams of Mrs. Yuni and her struggle with the man aroused the neighborhood and a policeman from the Liberty Avenue station came in time to prevent the alleged burglar from escaping. The prisoner gave his name as Isidor Halberdatt of 10 Gration Street. The police said he had been arrested before.

DARROW TURNS FROM LAW.

Special to The New York Times.

GIRARD, Kan., Aug. 26.—Clarence S. Darrow is about to give up the active practice of law and is looking forward to the quieter work of writing. He arrived here today to visit E. Haldeman-Julius, who plans to publish Mr. Darrow's productions.

"For twenty-seven years," Mr. Darrow said, "my main ambition has been to turn my attention to writing but the law has so absorbed my attention that I have been unable to do so. I have reached the time when I have to turn away from the law and give my literary ambition a chance for expression."

PORTERS REAP FEES IN TRANSFER STRIKE

FOUR ARRESTS DURING DAY

No Attempts Are Made to Reach Settlement—Congestion Expected on Labor Day.

There was no attempt on the part of either the striking expressmen or the officials of the New York Transfer Company and the Westcott Express Company, which are affected by the strike, to settle their differences yesterday or to do anything to bring about a cessation of the trouble. There was no baggage congestion at any terminal, and to all outward appearances there might have been no strike.

The first violence of the strike was reported last night by Vincent Daves of 227 East Fourteenth Street, a driver for the Westcott Express Company, who refused to join the strikers. He said four strikers stopped his truck at Lexington Avenue and 126th Street, threw four trunks to the pavement and were about to assault him when they were arrested by Patrolman John Kranz.

The four men were arraigned, charged with disorderly conduct in Night Court before Magistrate Brodsky. They were Robert Fitzpatrick, 20 years old, of 459 West Thirtieth Street; Thomas Clark, 21, of 431 West Thirtieth Street; James Leach, 31, of 130 West Sixty-third Street, and John Morton, 35, of 411 East 147th Street, the Bronx.

Magistrate Brodsky found each guilty and in default of $25 fine he sentenced the mto ten days in the Workhouse.

"Every man has a right to strike," said Magistrate Brodsky, "but no man has a right to use violence. If any other men are found guilty before me of using violence during this strike I will sentence them to six months in the Workhouse."

Few Pickets on Duty.

There were a few pickets at the Westcott Express Company's office in the Grand Central Terminal, but as no strikebreakers appeared there was nothing for them to do. C. G. Lambert, vice president and general manager of the Westcott Company, said he would not hire strikebreakers, and that he did not know what would occur. Most of the officials of the New York Transfer Company left their offices early in the day and gave out no indication of attempting anything to put an end to the trouble.

The baggage rooms in both the Grand Central and Pennsylvania terminals were emptied of baggage as fast as it came in. The porters worked overtime getting luggage to taxicabs and earned bigger fees than they ever thought would come their way. The expense of hiring a porter to load a trunk on a taxicab and the charge for transporting it in this way was not much greater, if any, than for the services of a transfer company, and there was the added comfort of travelers in knowing that they had their baggage with them.

Expect Labor Day Congestion.

There was some doubt on the part of baggagemen, however, as to what would happen if the strike continued until Labor Day, when the baggage rooms of all terminals, under the best of transfer conditions are always piled high with trunks. There might be considerable trouble then, they thought, although they predicted that passengers might be able to take the trunks away as fast as they arrived. Much of this congestion in other years has been due to trunks being sent from station to station on their way through the city, which would not be done if railroads continue to route baggage outside the city as they are doing at present.

Nell Sullivan, business agent for the striking Local 654, in referring to the situation last night, said:

"For the past five years, the two transfer companies have pleaded that they were not making enough. Nevertheless, they were able to buy a piece of property at 603-11 West Forty-second Street for the erection of a new garage."

The agent denounced "bootlegging" expressmen, who he said, operated wagons at the West Forty-second Street ferry and charged travelers and vacationists $5 and more to move a single trunk. "They have taken advantage of the present situation and are gouging the public for all it will stand," declared Mr. Sullivan.

Although he admitted that taxicabs and private cars are keeping the streams of baggage moving at the Pennsylvania and Grand Central Stations, he predicted that the Labor Day rush would "swamp" both stations with unmoved baggage.

It was said by expressmen that the strikers could easily be assimilated by some other companies, whose business might increase as the result of the strike.

REPORT DROP IN TRUNK SALES

Dealers Blame Women's Scanty Wear and Greater Auto Travel.

A marked decrease in the sale of trunks and a corresponding boom in hand luggage was reported yesterday at the meeting of the National Retail Luggage Dealers' Association at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The scanty wearing apparel fashionable for women is blamed by most members for the change, while others consider the increased popularity of motor travel responsible.

"There are two classes of people who are out of luck under the present fashions," said William Wilmington of Toledo, President of the Association, yesterday. "Girls with homely legs and trunk manufacturers. I do not think there is any doubt but that the present fashions are responsible for the popular shift from trunks to hand luggage. When a woman can pack an entire wardrobe in a suitcase, why should she take a trunk?"

A campaign was planned yesterday for greater accuracy in luggage advertising. Dealers plan to adopt standard definitions for various materials and types of luggage. They also hope eventually to do away with fake "closing" sales.

SMITH CHIDES OTTINGER.

"Childish," He Labels Criticism of Hulbert Appointment.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP).—Governor Smith today characterized as "childish" a recent criticism of Attorney General Albert Ottinger that the Governor's appointment of Murray Hulbert, at the time President of the Board of Aldermen of New York City, to the Finger Lakes Commission was a legal error.

The Governor suggested that the Attorney General stop "trying to make political capital by foolish little newspaper attacks upon me and settle down to the serious business of his office."

The Attorney General's statement followed announcement that the Prison Survey Commission, with the consent of the Governor, intended to test in the courts Ottinger's recent ruling that the prison industries law of 1925 is unconstitutional.

New Yorkers Earn 15 Per Cent. Of Total Income in Nation

The people of New York State receive 15 per cent. of the total current income of the United States, according to a report soon to be issued by the National Bureau of Economic Research. Advance figures, made public yesterday, showed that the seven States at the top of the list—New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Massachusetts, California and Michigan—account for 50 per cent. of the total national income. The seven States at the bottom of the list—Utah, Arizona, Vermont, Wyoming, New Mexico, Delaware and Nevada—receive barely 2 per cent.

The District of Columbia has a larger proportion of persons gainfully employed and a higher per capita income than any State.

Cadets Use Real Ammunition in Three-Day Manoeuvres Near Bear Mountain.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Cadets of the United States Military Academy at West Point concluded their three-day manoeuvres as Red and Blue armies with a mimic battle in Popolopen Valley, about five miles northwest of Bear Mountain.

Shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, four American .75s opened a barrage on the targets from a point three miles away from the Red line. The barrage lasted twenty minutes and real bombs and shrapnel were used as ammunition.

Under cover of the barrage, a regiment of infantry started through a swamp at the lowest point of the valley to take the position by storm. Copperheads and rattlesnakes interfered with their progress.

Inspecting officers found that every target had been hit at least twenty times by rifle and machine gun fire, and the rear of the former Red position had been annihilated. The officers said that the attack had been perfectly planned and executed, and were gratified at the results obtained.

After the battle the officers of the Seventy-seventh Infantry, who witnessed the manoeuvres, returned to West Point for the dress parade in the evening.

BAKHMETEFF ASKS LEAGUE PASSPORT

Former Russian Ambassador to United States Says He Is Without a Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 26.—M. Bakhmetieff, last Czarist Ambassador to Washington, today called at the League of Nations and asked for a Nansen passport which will permit him to visit Italy.

By a coincidens the former promient Russian diplomat addressed his request to the American member of the Secretariat, Arthur Sweetser, who seven years ago as Washington newspaperman brought him the first news of the fall of his Government, and the abdication of the Czar.

By the second strange coincidence M. Bakhmetieff was taken by Mr. Sweetser to one of the Czarist's former friends, Princess Radzwill, who takes care of certain Russian problems. As the Nansen League of Nations passport under the most favored circumstances cannot be delivered within less than several weeks the League officials took personal steps to secure permission for the former Ambassador to cross the Italian frontier.

In his application to the League for the passport the former Ambassador, who is one of a million Russian refugees in Europe, said he was now "a man without a country."

ONE KILLED, ONE HURT IN BATTLESHIP DRILL

U. S. S. Oklahoma Reports Accident En Route From New Zealand to Samoa—No Details.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—One man was killed and another seriously injured yesterday during a turret drill on board the battleship Oklahoma, en route from New Zealand to Samoa.

The names of the men were not mentioned in a brief report on the accident received today by the Navy Department, which read:

The Oklahoma is one of the older of the first line battleships. She was commissioned in 1916 and displaces 27,500 tons. She is in command of Captain W. McDowell and is in Division 3 of the battle fleet.

Macon Woman Lawyer Surprises Husband After Her Mexico Divorce.

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 26.—Upon their return from New York yesterday the daughters of W. E. Jackson, city fireman, inserted a notice in the social columns of a local newspaper indicating the marriage of their mother to Seth Weekley, former Mercer University star athlete, later scenario writer and "bad man" in the movies on the Pacific Coast, who is now an athletic coach in New York.

Mr. Jackson said that Weekley and Mrs. Jackson went to Mexico after the close of the school where she taught, in June, obtained a quick divorce and were married in New York.

On Tuesday of this week the present Mrs. Weekley wrote to the Board of Education, resigning her position. She said she had an "attractive proposition" in New York, but there was no hint of the divorce and marriage.

Jackson and his wife studied law at Mercer University, while Weekley was there in the latter days of his career at the college. Husband and wife were admitted to the bar, she being the first woman graduate in law from that college. Although a lawyer, Jackson has never practiced.

TRADE GAINS SHOWN IN FEDERAL REPORT

MONEY MARKET IS FIRMER

CROP PRODUCTION LOWER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Renewed activity in the field of production, increased freight car loadings, advanced prices, notably on farm products, and substantial expansion in the demand for commercial credit are among the favorable signs of general business recorded in July and August of this year in the various Federal Reserve districts of the country.

While the Federal Reserve Board makes no comment on the significance of the present trade and commercial situation, the tone of a summary on the subject issued today is optimistic.

One of the significant paragraphs of the board's summary is that dealing with retail and wholesale trade. It states that sales at department stores showed less than the usual seasonable decline in July and were 3 per cent. larger than a year ago. Mail order sales were considerably above those of July, 1924. Wholesale trade continued at the June level and was 6 per cent. above the corresponding period a year ago.

Freight car loadings during July were larger than in June and exceeded those of any previous July, and weekly figures for August indicated a continued large volume of traffic of this kind.

Commercial Loans Are Larger.

"Demand for commercial credit at member banks in leading cities increased in August, and the volume of commercial loans on Aug. 12 was larger than at any time since the middle of May, but still considerably below the level at the beginning of the year," said the board summary. "Loans on securities increased between the middle of July and the middle of August, while the banks' investments showed little change for the period.

"Discounts for member banks increased at all the reserve banks in recent weeks, and the total on Aug. 19 was the largest in more than a year and a half. The reserve banks' holdings of securities and bills bought in the open market continued to decline, but the total earning assets in the middle of August were near the high point for the year.

"During the latter part of July and the first half of August conditions in the money market were somewhat firmer. The prevailing rate on prime commercial paper, which had remained at 3¾ to 4 per cent. since early in May, advanced in August to 4¼ per cent.

The reserve board's index of production in basic industries, which makes allowance for usual seasonal variations, advanced by about 2 per cent. in July to a point nearly 20 per cent. above the low level of a year ago. In this connection the board summary said:

Basic Production Is Upward.

SAY BOY CONFESSED MANY BURGLARIES

CAUGHT IN FIRE ESCAPE

Passkey, $110 and Valuable Jewelry Found on Him, the Police Declare —Kept Diary Also.

An unusual record of juvenile delinquency was revealed yesterday with the alleged confession to the Coney Island police of Harold Dicker, 15 years old, who was arrested Tuesday. He escaped two weeks ago from the reformatory at Hawthorne, N. Y., where he was serving an indeterminate sentence for burglary.

Patrolman James Murphy of 3,160 Coney Island Avenue was on the roof of his home when he saw the boy climbing a fire escape. He gave chase and arrested him. According to detectives, Dicker confessed to seventeen burglaries in Manhattan and Brooklyn since his escape from Hawthorne. His father, Jacob Dicker, who lives at 2,028 Mermaid Avenue, Coney Island, has a restaurant. He did not appear at the police station when the boy was arrested.

A passkey, searchlight, screwdriver and $110 in cash, besides a gold watch and chain and a number of valuable stickpins, were found on the Dicker boy when arrested, according to the police. In addition he carried a diary with notations of each robbery since his escape from the reformatory, and such intermittent phrases as "Good work," "Hope my luck lasts," "I'm getting a good break," and others.

CHICAGO UNIVERSITY WILL BUILD CHAPEL

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—A cathedral structure similar in proportion and artistic treatment to those of the Old World, the gift of John D. Rockefeller, was described today for the first time with the signing of contracts for the new chapel of the University of Chicago.

The building, which will dominate the square block bounded by Woodlawn Avenue, University Avenue, East Fifty-ninth Street and East Fifty-eighth Street, will tower 102 feet over the highest of the other university buildings. Work under the contract will be started in the Fall. The estimated cost of the chapel is $1,700,000.

The principal features of the building were placed in the architect's plans at the suggestion of the late President Burton, who spent a Summer in England studying cathedrals that might be reproduced in part to grace the Midway. Among the architectural features of the chapel are:

A tower rising to 205 feet above the normal grade line of the sidewalk and with a solid parapet 70 or 80 feet above other pinnacles of the university building; a nave, with aisle 74 feet wide; nave span between piers 41 feet; length of building, 265 feet.

The crown of the vaulted ceiling will be 75 feet above the floor. The sides are to be divided into four bays, each 39 feet 8 inches. Three great arches are thus produced on the side elevation, forming great shadows over the windows. The seating capacity, nearly 2,100.

185 TRAFFIC DEATHS IN JULY

State Fatalities 35 More Than in June—5,771 Injured.

ALBANY, Aug. 26 (AP).—A total of 185 persons met death as a result of traffic accidents in New York State in July, according to statistics compiled by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. The number injured in July was 5,771. Sixty of those killed and 1,767 of those injured were children under 14 years of age. The deaths represent an increase of thirty-five over those of June.

Of those killed 107 were pedestrians. Fifty-six were killed in the street, 16 were jay walking, 13 were crossing streets where traffic officers were not on duty, six were on the roadway and two were intoxicated.

"An important remedy for the accident situation is education," Commissioner Charles A. Hartnett said today, "education of the public in the proper manner of crossing streets, of children to avoid playing in the streets, of municipal authorities to the necessity of public playgrounds and of motorists in the proper use of streets."

CURB SWINDLE EXPOSED.

Bilked Customer Reveals Depravity of Whistling Bird Vendor.

A squawk like that of a parrot floated across a busy corner of Forty-second Street and Broadway the other afternoon, attracting the attention of a man gently squeezing the neck of an inflated green rubber object which, by the exercise of some imagination, might be associated with the old green family bird. Dabs of shading on its slightly tubby figure indicated feathers and the contour of its head was moderately convincing. A little group promptly formed around the vendor. Just then a meek-looking little man piped up:

"I've been laying for you. You sold me one of your red devils at Christmas time and I took it home to the children. The one you had blown up and held in one hand, while you pulled its tail with the other, let out a whistle just like that parrot, but the one I bought and took home didn't. You've got a little bird whistle in your mouth, that's what you've got, and you ought to be arrested for cheating."

The group of prospects dissolved.

Detective Saves Drowning Girl.

Detective James Melver of the Tottenville Precinct was in bathing at the foot of Rockaway Street, Tottenville Beach, during his time off yesterday, when he saw Miss L. Bobeck, 25 years old, of 52 Bergen Avenue, Jersey City, another bather, sink beneath the surface, apparently in distress. He brought her ashore. She said she had fainted while in the water.

FRENCH ARE UNABLE TO ESTIMATE WHEAT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—Expert opinion on the French wheat crop remains quite as divided today as it did two weeks ago. Then the first thrashing results showed 20 per cent. greater crop than in 1924, but most of the crop was still stacked in the fields. Since that time there has been one week of fairly fine weather, followed by another week of steady rains and cyclones in many parts of the country, which may have injured the crop considerably by mold, shedding and germinating the grain.

Many farmers advance the belief that the crop will be no larger than last year's, because of the latter causes. The President of the French Millers Association declared today that two-ninths of the entire crop is still in the fields and that the damage to this fraction will amount to 30 or 40 per cent., with the final yield of the entire crop the same as last year's.

The Secretary General of the Grain Federation estimates that between one-quarter and one-fifth of the crop is still unthrashed, but due to the fact that early estimates of the crop were 15 to 20 per cent. greater, the final results should show certainly eighty-five to ninety million quintals—the latter figure is all the country needs for domestic consumption. The Secretary added that fifteen days' sunshine are needed to save the remaining grain.

A third expert says the crop is so bountiful that, despite great losses due to storms and rainfall, the yield will equal that of 1898 and 1899, the two best years in more than half a century. It is impossible to obtain any official estimates, as the Ministry of Agriculture has received returns from agents which he is now actively preparing. All experts praise the efforts of the farmers, who spent three or four times more money on the crop than ever before, and it is only due to them that the country is not now facing a wheat famine.

Wheat prices are 5 francs higher this week, ranging from 125 to 127 francs per quintal.

Company Officials to Celebrate Progress on Long Island.

The five hundred thousandth telephone on Long Island will be installed tomorrow at noon in the office of Ralph Jonas, President of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, 32 Court Street, Brooklyn. James S. McCulloch, President of the New York Telephone Company; Howard Drake, Division Commercial Manager, and other officials of the company will attend the installation ceremony, which will be followed by a luncheon.

On Jan. 1, 1900, there were only 2,540 telephones in Brooklyn and 849 in Queens. It is said that enlarging the telephone system to meet the steadily increasing demand in these two boroughs alone has been and continues to be the biggest telephone construction task in the country. It is estimated that 1,700,000,000 conductor feet of new cable will require this year to maintain the outside plant of the system.

STORE MERGER DUE SOON.

It was announced yesterday that the proposed combination of Arnold, Constable & Co. and M. I. Stewart & Co. probably will be declared effective soon. Sixty per cent. of the outstanding stock has been deposited with the Chase National Bank and it requires 7½ per cent. more to make the combination effective.

While Sept. 5 has been set as the final date upon which stock may be deposited and stock certificates issued when the plan becomes effective without cost to stockholders, the management has announced that it is anxious to get sufficient stock in at once to declare the plan effective so as to follow out plans for cooperative buying, with resultant savings on Fall purchases.

PROTESTS ELECTRIC RATES.

Tarrytown's President Wants an Inquiry in Westchester County.

Charging that rates for electricity are too high in Tarrytown, New Rochelle, White Plains and several other towns in Westchester County, Ernest F. Griffin, President of the Village of Tarrytown, has written to Mayor Frederick E. Weeks suggesting that the City Council be directed to inquire into the electric rates. Mr. Griffin says that the customers in New Rochelle, Tarrytown and White Plains are paying the highest rates of any community in the country. No action has been taken in White Plains.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 26.—The disturbance that was central over the South Carolina coast Tuesday night has continued to move slowly northeastward, with little change in intensity and it is now centred a short distance southeast of Cape Hatteras. A disturbance of considerable intensity is central over Newfoundland, with a trough of low pressure extending southwestward to Northern Virginia. Another disturbance of wide extent is over the Canadian Northwest, the northern Rocky Mountain and plateau regions and the interior of the Pacific Coast States.

An area of high pressure of great magnitude extends from Hudson Bay southward over the Lake region, the Ohio, the lower Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys, and it is moving slowly eastward. There have been scattered showers within the last twenty-four hours in Minnesota, the Dakotas, the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions and Texas and along the North Carolina coast.

Elsewhere fair weather has prevailed. The temperature has fallen decidedly from Wisconsin and Northeastern Minnesota eastward over the lake region, Ontario and Quebec. Somewhat cooler weather prevailed Wednesday in Northwestern Texas and in northern sections west of the Rocky Mountains, but the weather became warmer in Eastern Texas, Eastern Colorado, the Central Plains States and the Canadian Northwest.

The weather will be fair generally in the Washington forecast district during the next two days. The temperature will be lower Thursday in the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic States, and it will rise slowly during Friday in the lower lake region and the upper Ohio Valley. The weather will remain cool Friday in the Atlantic States from Virginia northward.

Courtesy-Wire Weather Conditions.

In the following records of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday, the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M., and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

MACMILLAN SHIPS RESUME TRIP SOUTH

BATTLE WINDS AND FOGS

Explorers Speed Program to Cross Melville Bay Before Leads Are Closed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Battling head winds and fogs, the two ships of the MacMillan Arctic expedition have resumed their journey south, it was learned here today in the first word indicating the expedition's success in breaking away from the northwestern coast of Greenland, where it has been weatherbound for several days.

Winter, says the advices to the National Geographic Society, is rapidly advancing, and the explorers are making every effort to clear the ice-filled waters of Melville Bay before the leads are closed by the increasing snow and cold.

Steaming south toward Baffin Bay, and close to the Greenland shore line, the Peary has reached Parker Snow Point, which is just below Cape Dudley Digges, about 150 miles from Etah. The Bowdoin, in order to conserve fuel, anchored in the lee of Saunders Island, a few miles further north, to await more favorable winds.

Head winds and fog were fought all the way down the coast from Booth Sound, where the two ships were anchored last night. The Peary reports a blinding snowstorm which permitted visibility of only 100 yards.

The two ships of the expedition now have the hardest stage of the southward trip before them. As soon as they round Cape York, a few miles beyond their present position at Parker Snow Point, they will enter the notorious Melville Bay, which occasioned delay on the voyage north.

The photographers and scientists have made use of the delays so far encountered. The famous bird cliff at Akiahuk, home of the murres, a small and common northern bird, highly prized as food by the Eskimos, was visited by the scientists today. Near by were several large patches of snow, but the light was too poor in this spot to allow the photographers to work. The men on both ships are reported well on the whole.

Additional details of the events on the final day at Etah are contained in a delayed message from MacMillan, dated Aug. 22 to the National Geographic Society from Commander MacMillan as follows:

"Left Etah yesterday morning, Aug. 21, at 8 o'clock, but encountered such strong headwinds that we put in to Pandora Harbor, a few miles south. Pandora Harbor was named by the famous Sir Allen Young after his good ship Pandora, which endeavored to carry mail to the British North Pole expedition of 1875.

"To this port also the crew of the Proteus made their way following the crushing of their ship off Cape Sabine. Here also we found the remains of their encampment last year, with knives, forks, spoons, &c., scattered about the ground.

"Getting under way again at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, we reached the Eskimo village of Igloo Dahouny in Robertson Bay. I made my last flight this morning over to the village of Kahna to see my old dog driver E-took-a-Shoo, who hopped into the plane and rode back with me to the Bowdoin, thoroughly enjoying the trip."

PRESIDENT'S SON DOES CAMP WORK FOR FILMS

Corporal Coolidge and His Squad Drill Before Cameras at Camp Devens.

CAMP DEVENS, Mass., Aug. 26 (AP).—John Coolidge, son of the President and a student citizen-soldier at this camp, was turned over today by those in authority to the tender mercies of some fifteen photographers and a delegation of newspapermen.

For the best part of the hour allotted Corporal Coolidge and his squad did "squads right" and "squads left," "right by squads," and "to the rear march" while cameras clicked and movie men used up feet of film.

"What was your object in coming up here?" the young corporal was asked.

"You'll have to ask father," was his only reply.

Asked if newspapermen had bothered him during his stay in camp, he answered "No; but it wasn't their fault."

Camp authorities have ruled against interviewing and photographing the President's son during the training period. But today more photographers were on the scene than when the President reviewed the Yankee Division.

Would he return next year? Young Coolidge said that he planned to and hoped to and had enjoyed this year's encampment very much; in fact, more than last year's.

It was from reliable authority that if he does return next year he will hold the rank of sergeant.

Seek Incendiary in Newark Fire.

A fire, believed to have been incendiary, which drove more than a score of persons from their beds in a three-story tenement house at 32 Bedford Street, Newark, early yesterday morning, is being investigated by the police. The fire started in a baby carriage under the stairs in the front hall and was discovered by two policemen, who aroused the sleeping occupants. The police were told that a man said to have lived in the house was seen leaving the building a few minutes before the fire was discovered, carrying two valises.

Women Held for Fire Exonerated.

Mrs. Isabelle Francolini and her daughter, Agnes, of 1,865 Cropsey Avenue, Brooklyn, who were arrested after a fire in the house at that address last Friday in which 7-year-old Murray Krieger lost his life, were freed by Magistrate McCloskey in Brooklyn Homicide Court yesterday. It was alleged that the women had started the fire, but there was nothing to support the charges.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

On the Stock Exchange, the prevailing movement of prices yesterday was downward. There were exceptions. Advances of 1 or 2 points occurred in a few stocks; one of the volatile "specialties," which had risen 35 points on Monday and declined 18 on Tuesday, was bid up 26 on yesterday's market, and a temporary advance of 2 points in United States Steel received the attention which speculative Wall Street always bestows on a "demonstration" in that stock. But the industrial shares to which manipulation for the rise has lately been directed were in nearly all instances distinctly weak. A fairly long list of them lost 5 to 9 points apiece, with smaller declines in most of the market. There was little recovery from the day's lowest prices.

The day's decline, like the advances of preceding days, occurred without reference to anything in the news; which, indeed, was favorable rather than otherwise. A three-cent fall in wheat prices was plainly attributable to a feeling in the grain trade that the Spring wheat crop was doing better than had been expected, and a similar interpretation could be placed on the further weakening of spot cotton's price, to the neighborhood of the year's lowest figure. As against yesterday's quotation of 22.05 cents a pound, the low record of 1925 is 22.20; for 1924 it was 22.15. The market, at any rate, is expressing its belief in the largest yield since the war.

The familiar and very striking comparison with other years was again presented by yesterday's weekly statement of railway traffic; loadings of freight in the second week of August exceeded by nearly 25,000 cars the highest achievement ever previously made up to that date. They were more than 46,000 above the largest weekly loading in the whole of 1920, and this occurred notwithstanding the smaller grain shipments. The striking part of the comparison was again the movement of merchandise and general freight, which was no less than 48,230 cars above the best previous midsummer record, and which has never been surpassed except in the eight weeks of last September and October and in two October weeks of 1923. In an active business year the weekly shipment of such goods in the Autumn season, when merchants are preparing for the "holiday trade," will usually run 40,000 to 50,000 cars above that of August—which would seem to mean the largest recorded distribution of general merchandise in the coming season.

What this signifies in regard to the actual volume of trade in motion is evident enough; but it is also being translated in an impressive way into railroad earnings. Loadings of freight reported as during June ran 9 per cent. above 1924, and the total railway gross earnings of the month, $506,800,000, exceeded the $465,600,000 of the preceding June by precisely the same percentage. The July loadings were greater than last year's by more than 10 per cent.; an equivalent increase over the gross railway revenue of July, 1924, would bring the total for last month above $530,000,000, a figure not matched with 1923. For the railway finances, such a result would mean much more than the comparison would indicate, for curtailment of expenses has carried a steadily increasing proportion of gross earnings to account of net. In the first six months of the present year, for which the complete figures are available, gross revenue of the American railways was $208,000,000 less than in 1923 but net operating revenue larger by $3,000,000. The individual reports, now in course of publication for July, show that the increase will be much greater for the second half-year.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 26, 1925.

Call loans were renewed at 4½ per cent., the highest renewal rate since July 18, and that rate prevailed all day. It was reported again that banks in the interior were withdrawing funds to prepare for monthly settlements, and the firm tone was attributed to these operations. Time money was unchanged from the levels that have prevailed for the last two weeks, and rates were steady. Call loans against bankers' acceptances were quoted at 4 per cent., a somewhat higher level than that of last week. The commercial paper market was fairly active and somewhat broader.

JULY RAIL EARNINGS UP TO EXPECTATIONS

HUGE INCREASES IN EAST

Earning reports filed yesterday with the Interstate Commerce Commission gave every evidence of bearing out the prediction that the carriers increased their aggregate net income in July at least $26,000,000 over the same month of 1924. Even the bankrupt St. Paul showed an increase of $1,241,013 in operating revenues, although a large increase in expenses incident to the receivership resulted in a drop of $1,107,482 in net operating income.

Several remarkable increases in net operating incomes were reported by Eastern railroads. The Pennsylvania statement showed a gain of $4,547,759, and that of the New Haven a net income of $626,897, compared with $48,328 for the corresponding month of 1924. The Lehigh Valley announced an increase of $568,581.

The total operating revenues of the Pennsylvania for July were $57,181,073, an increase of $4,131,802. Expenses were cut $159,615 and equipment rents decreased $470,741, leaving $10,132,982 in net railway operating income. The New Haven's gross revenues increased $711,400, part of which, it is said, was due to advance buying by commuters in anticipation of the increase effective Aug. 1 and the heavier than normal shipments of coal as a result of the threatened coal strike. Net income of the road for the first seven months of this year was $3,290,472, compared with $521,843 in the same period last year.

The Boston & Maine earned a July net income, after fixed charges, of $561,697, compared with a surplus of $144,072 in July, 1924. Freight revenues were $423,421 more than last July, but passenger revenues were $134,613 less. Gross operating revenues topped those of last year by $313,550. Operating expenses were cut by $95,329, the ratio between operating revenues and operating expenses being 75.91 per cent., compared with 80.03 for the same month of 1924.

The St. Paul received $13,529,271 in gross operating revenues for the month, compared with $12,288,252 the year before and $87,059,241 for the seven months, compared with $87,153,227 for the corresponding period of 1924.

COAL CONSUMPTION GAINS.

Million More Tons Used in July Than in June.

Coal consumption shows a marked increase for July as compared with June, the National Association of Purchasing Agents reports. The same number of Sundays occurred in both June and July and the Independence Day holiday in July equalized the number of business days. Consumption of 29,300,000 tons of coal in July therefore shows an actual increase of nearly a million tons over the June figure of 28,362,000 tons.

Production for July exceeded that of June by a little more than 3,000,000 tons. In the two fields, anthracite and bituminous, the total mined amounted to 47,844,000 tons. Of the total 8,635,000 were anthracite and 39,239,000 bituminous. Industries increased their stocks by more than 6,000,000 tons in July, laying in larger supplies of both anthracite and bituminous coal, apparently in anticipation of possible trouble in both fields. The estimated amount of coal on hand in industries August 1 was 46,873,000 tons of anthracite and bituminous combined. This is sufficient to last 48 days based on the amount consumed in July.

TRENTON PLANT FOR KOHLER

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 26.—Negotiations have practically been completed, it became known today, whereby the pottery plant of the Cochran-Drugan Company here will be taken over Sept. 1 by the Kohler Company of Kohler, Wis., one of the leading manufacturers of enameled plumbing ware. China bath fixtures will be made at the Trenton plant, this line supplementing the Western concern's regular product. With the change in ownership Walter E. Drugan will retire from the business. Andrew C. Cochran will be retained as manager. No other changes in personnel will be made, it is understood.

This is the first change in local pottery circles since the Crane Company of Chicago acquired control of the Trenton Potteries Company.

CITIES SERVICE EARNINGS.

Net for 12 Months Showed Increase to $17,702,264.

Gross earnings of the Cities Service Company for the twelve months ending July 31 were $18,463,238, compared with $17,134,512 in the previous twelve-month period. Net earnings amounted to $17,702,264 against $16,569,070. Net applicable to stock and reserves was $15,656,048, compared with $14,350,121.

Net to common stock and reserves was $10,506,091, equivalent to $2.84 a share on the actual amount of $20 par value common stock now outstanding, as compared with $9,295,891 for the twelve months ended July 31, 1924.

BUYS PRAIRIE OIL HOLDINGS

Texas Company's Deal in Wyoming Involves $500,000 Property.

The Texas Company has purchased the seventeen-mile pipe line of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, also the 160-acre tank farm, booster station, loading tracks, &c., all a part of the Prairie's system in Wyoming. The property is valued at about $500,000.

The Prairie Company will retain the oil in storage Aug. 16. This will be run to the Parco refinery for treatment. Many oil men expect the Texas to follow the acquisition of the Prairie's property by the erection of a refining plant in Northern Colorado.

Large Order for Eaton Axle & Spring.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Eaton Axle and Spring Company that it had closed a five-year axle contract which is expected to add $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 to its volume of sales annually. The name of the company with which the contract was made was withheld.

GASOLINE PRICE CUT TO 17 CENTS IN CITY

DUE TO CALIFORNIA SUPPLY

The Standard Oil Company of New York announced yesterday a reduction of 2 cents a gallon in the tank wagon price of gasoline to 17 cents, effective immediately in New York City and on Long Island. This reduction brings the price in line with that quoted by the Tide Water Oil Co. since Tuesday. The Standard of New York also announced a reduction of two cents a gallon, to 16 cents, in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The reductions in price were immediately met by the Texas Company and the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation.

The wholesale price of gasoline in New York City is now fully five cents a gallon below the high price for the current year thus far, established early in July, but the current price is still three cents a gallon above the low price quoted in this city last Autumn.

As a result of the further reductions in gasoline prices posted by the leading companies in the past week the average price of this product is quoted in thirty representative cities of the country is now 17.208 cents a gallon, a drop of 1.667 cents from the high of 18.873 recorded on July 21, the high level for the current year. The present average, however, is still 4.472 cents above the low level of 1924.

Cheap Coast Gasoline the Cause.

These numerous reductions in gasoline prices, as previously pointed out, reflect the shipment of cheap gasoline from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic seaboard. California gasoline is now being laid down in New York at from 11 to 12 cents a gallon. To meet this competition the larger Eastern companies have reduced their prices from 15 cents f. o. b. refinery on July 15, to the current price of 12 cents f. o. b. refinery, and the tank wagon prices have dropped in sympathy. Standard of New Jersey is now quoting 16 cents tank wagon against 19 cents in July.

The following table as compiled by Dow, Jones & Co. gives the present tank wagon price of the Standard Oil companies in thirty representative cities of the country, with the prices quoted at previous periods, the prices in all instances being exclusive of State taxes:

Gasoline prices on Jan. 1, 1921, were probably the highest ever reached in the United States. The lows established in 1923 reached the lowest level since 1915.

A Cut in Denver Territory.

In the West the Continental Oil Company announced a reduction of 2 cents a gallon in the wholesale price of gasoline in the Denver territory, making the filling station price 22 cents a gallon, including the 2 cents State tax. This cut was immediately met by the Texas Company and the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation.

In Pennsylvania and Delaware the Gulf Refining Company reduced gasoline 1 cent a gallon, thus meeting the reductions previously announced by the Atlantic Refining Company, Tide Water Oil Company and other organizations operating in that territory.

The Magnolia Petroleum Company announced a reduction yesterday of 11 to 35 cents a barrel in the price of crude oil produced in the Middle West in the territory served by the company's pipe lines. These reductions meet those announced by the Texas Company last week. Up to the close of business yesterday afternoon neither the Prairie Oil and Gas Company nor the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation had announced a reduction in mid-continent crude oil prices, and in local trade circles it is viewed as significant that these companies have not as yet posted lower prices in view of the reductions announced in other sections of the West and Southwest.

Two-cent Cut in Denver Today.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 25 (AP).—Gasoline prices in Denver will drop two cents a gallon tomorrow. This will make the retail price 22 cents a gallon, including a two-cent State gasoline tax.

Continental Optical Corporation

7% Serial Gold Notes

Dated August 1, 1925 — Due Serially August 1

Authorized $750,000. Outstanding $750,000. Interest payable February 1 and August 1 in New York without deduction for the Normal Federal Income Tax not in excess of 2%. Coupon Notes in denomination of $1,000 only, except that Notes of $1,000 and $500 are available in the last maturity. Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company, Trustee.

BUSINESS: Continental Optical Corporation is the fourth largest manufacturer of ophthalmic products in the United States. It is successor by consolidation to four companies, including the Onepiece Bifocal Lens Company. Each of these companies manufactured without duplication a single class of ophthalmic products. For the past seven year their combined net sales have averaged $1,201,589 per annum and in 1924 amounted to $1,534,160. The products of Continental Optical Corporation, especially the widely used Ultex lenses, are well and favorably known to the optical trade.

SECURITY: These Notes are direct obligations of the Continental Optical Corporation and are issued under a Trust Agreement which provides that so long as any of these Notes are outstanding, the Corporation may not mortgage any of its property now owned or hereafter acquired unless by the terms of such mortgage these Notes are equally secured. After giving effect to this financing net tangible assets of the Continental Optical Corporation as of June 30, 1925, are reported as $2,217,094, or $2,956 for each $1,000 par value of these Notes outstanding.

EARNINGS: As reported by Messrs. Haskins & Sells, combined net earnings of the four constituent companies, after depreciation, have averaged for the seven years ended December 31, 1924, approximately $150,650 per annum, or over 2.85 times the maximum annual interest requirement of $52,500 for this issue of 7% Serial Gold Notes. Similarly, net earnings, after depreciation, for the year ended December 31, 1924, amounted to $170,297, or about 3.25 times the maximum annual interest requirement. In no year during the period 1918 to 1924, inclusive, did the operations of the properties as consolidated fail to result in a profit.

GENERAL: The management of the Continental Optical Corporation includes the men who were responsible for the success of the constituent companies. The Corporation was organized only after the most careful consideration on the part of the executive heads of the constituent companies and it is believed that the consolidation will result in larger earnings, not only through the elimination of certain advertising and selling expenses, but also through the development of a substantially larger business.

The income on an investment in preferred stock is nearly always limited to dividends on that stock. The offering of Henry Maillard, Inc., 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock is different in this respect. It gives investors an opportunity to participate in the prosperity of the company, because with each share of preferred goes ½ share of common stock on which net earnings for 1925 are expected to exceed $6 a share.

HEAVY BUYING SENDS KRONE TO NEW HIGH

MILREIS GAINS 30 POINTS

Brazilian Advance Tops All Former Figures; Other Exchanges Steady.

Excited dealings in foreign exchange yesterday led to new high records for Danish and Norwegian kroner and for Brazilian milreis. The Danish currency closed at a net gain of 32 points for the day at 24.33, the highest point reached in several years. The Norwegian advance was 23 points, the close being at 19.46, while milreis gained 80 points, closing at 13.55, a new high record for the year. The advances were accompanied by heavy transactions, representing both short covering and new buying, and were reflected in a firm range of prices for the bonds of Denmark and Norway and of several South American countries.

The advances in Norwegian and Danish exchanges came on top of a steady upward movement in the last several days. The present quotation on the Danish krone represents an advance of about one cent and a half over the level of a week ago and is more than 8 cents higher than the quotation of a year ago. Much of the buying has been done in Europe and represents investments by foreigners who have believed that the krone was selling below its true value in relation to other exchanges. Also, speculators have been large buyers of kroner, as offering the only opportunity for a profitable movement among the European exchanges.

The advance was temporarily halted early this week by a reduction of 1 per cent. in the discount rate of the Bank of Denmark, which would be expected to cause the withdrawal of part of the foreign funds now on deposit in Copenhagen. The bank rate reduction was accompanied by reports that the rise in exchange was troubling the Government because of an adverse effect on Danish trade and industry and that the Government was determined to check the advance. Many foreign exchange dealers, however, believe that the Danish Government is engineering a movement to put the krone to par, which is 26.8 cents. The bank rate reduction, it was pointed out, need not interfere with such a program.

There were advances of about $5 yesterday in the internal kroner bonds of both Norway and Denmark, putting these securities from $50 to $60 above the levels early in the week. Dollar bonds of these countries traded in New York were steady but showed few changes in prices.

The advance in Brazilian milreis was a continuation of an upward movement of more than a week. It was accompanied by reports of improvement in the Government's financial position and of the country's trade situation. Brazil, like Chile and several other South American countries, is understood to be preparing for a refunding of some of its national obligations, which may call for good-sized blanket loans to be placed in the New York market.

A. O. Corbin Hints of Another Advance to Foreign Industries.

A. O. Corbin of F. J. Lisman & Co., who returned yesterday on the Olympic from Europe, said that he had received inquiries which will probably result in some important financing for industries in England, France, Austria and Hungary. Last year Mr. Corbin arranged some $15,000,000 in foreign loans, including one to the City of Carlsbad and several to hydroelectric and steel concerns. His trip was primarily for the purpose of seeing how this money was being spent and he expressed himself as well satisfied with the results of his investigation.

"While abroad I made some tentative arrangements for additional loans to hydroelectric and steel concerns," said Mr. Corbin. "In normal times most of these industries would never come to America for financing because the big foreign banks take an interest in them and run them. Just now, however, the need is for additional capital, and so they are turning to American investors in their need." Mr. Corbin said he had found conditions in Austria and Hungary far better than at this time last year.

TO GROW OUR OWN RUBBER.

H. A. MacKellar Says Americans Will Break British Control.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 26.—British efforts to control the world's supply of rubber will be nullified by American development of tropical lands and the growth of rubber trees there, according to statements made today before the Rotary Club here by Hugh A. MacKellar, Eastern division manager of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

Mr. MacKellar declared that British producers of rubber were limiting the output and that this had resulted in advances in the prices for the past three years. Mr. MacKellar said, however, that experiments had been conducted on 1,100 acres of ground in Liberia showing that rubber can be produced on that soil by American capital and that the opening of vast rubber plantations there and in other sections of the world by American planters is certain to come.

CANADIAN BAKERIES MERGE.

A merger of ten baking plants has been effected in Western Canada. They include the Shelly Brothers of Vancouver, the Nanaimo Company in Westminster and Victoria and plants at Calgary, Lethbridge, Moosejaw and Regina. The new company will operate under the name of Canadian Bakeries, Ltd. James Stewart, head of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, is President.

A. E. Ames & Co. of Toronto and this city will offer $1,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of this company soon. It will carry a 50 per cent. bonus of common. There will also be an offering of about $800,000 debenture bonds.

Trade Acceptances Drop.

Dollar acceptances covering exports and imports for twenty-eight leading banks throughout the country reporting to the magazine Export Trade & Finance as of Aug. 20 amount to $266,000,808, as compared with $276,634,513 for July 23. Acceptances in foreign currencies, executed by foreign banks for account of twenty-four banks, amount to $40,736,-997 for Aug. 20, compared with $42,654,-615 for July 22.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

New High Records Established in Danish, Norwegian and Brazilian Currencies.

The Scandinavian and Brazilian currencies again furnished the features of the foreign exchange market, establishing several new high records. Danish kroner scored a net advance of 32 points, closing at 24.33, the highest point reached in several years. This rate is about a cent and a half higher than that of a week ago and more than 8 cents above the quotation at this time last year. Norwegian kroner advanced 23 points to 19.46, this also being a new high record. Transactions were heavy, the demand coming both from Europe and from New York banks and dealers. At 13.55, Brazilian milreis reached their highest point of this year. Sterling was steady all day, being unchanged at the close. Advances of 5 points were made in French francs and Italian lire and of a point and a half in Belgian francs, the demand being associated with the generally improved international outlook in Europe. Most of the other exchanges were steady.

LEAD PRICE PUT UP $2 A TON

The American Smelting and Refining Company yesterday announced another advance of ten points in the price of lead to 9.50 cents a pound. The advance is equal to $2 a ton, making a total advance of about $15 a ton in the last few months.

In the copper market dealers and producers reported a slackening in demand both for domestic and foreign accounts, and as a result the price situation is easier. The red metal was quoted at 14¾ to 15 cents a pound for domestic delivery, with little business done at the higher levels. The curtailment of buying for domestic account, it is said, is due to consumers awaiting a renewal of buying for foreign account before making new commitments at current levels.

Export prices were shaded from five to ten points yesterday. Dealers quoted the product at 14.75 to 14.87½ cents a pound c. i. f. New York harbor and 13 to 13.02½ cents a pound f. o. b. European ports. It was admitted in some quarters that these prices would be shaded for large orders.

Higher Grain Freight Rates Barred.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—Proposed higher rates on grain and grain products from points on the Pennsylvania Railroad west of the Indiana-Ohio State line to Aurora, Garrettsville, Mantua and Solon, Ohio, on the Erie Railroad and the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railway, were ordered suspended by the Interstate Commerce Commission today until Dec. 26. The proposed new schedules would increase the rate from 15½ cents to 24 cents per hundred pounds.

AMERICAN BANKS VIE FOR CANADIAN BONDS

Unusually High Bids Expected for Dominion Issue, Which May Be Made Next Week.

OPTICAL COMPANY OFFERING

$6,700,000 City of Munich Financing Has Been Oversubscribed and the Books Closed.

Award of a large Canadian Government bond issue is expected to be made next week. Several New York banking groups have sent representatives to the Dominion in competition for the loan, and Wall Street expects that the keen rivalry will result in unusually high bids being submitted.

The Canadian Government has $90,000,000 of one-year notes maturing in September and in some quarters it is believed that the present refunding operations will include taking care of a $40,000,000 bond issue which matures later in the year. The form of the new financing has not yet been announced, however, and it was reported in Wall Street yesterday that the Government might permanently retire $20,000,000 of the maturing note issue, arranging for a new loan of $70,000,000.

The maturing $60,000,000 note issue was underwritten last year by a syndicate headed by Blair & Co., Inc. Previous Canadian national financing done in the New York market had been handled by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Taylor, Ewart & Co. offer today $750,000 Continental Optical Corporation two to ten year 7 per cent. serial gold notes. They are priced to yield 6.45 and 6.63 per cent. for the 1927 and 1928 maturities, respectively, and 7 per cent. for all subsequent maturities. Stock warrants are attached to the notes, entitling holders to purchase Class A stock of the corporation at $20 per share. The company ranks as the fourth largest manufacturer of ophthalmic products in the United States.

Harris, Forbes & Co. announce that the $8,700,000 City of Munich, Germany, 7 per cent. serial gold bonds offered yesterday have been oversubscribed and the books closed.

WEEK'S WEATHER HURT IN THE COTTON BELT

Too Much Sun and Too Hot Winds Trying On the Plant—Corn and Wheat Less Harmed.

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture issued at Washington yesterday in part follows:

"The weather in the cotton belt was less favorable than during recent weeks. Some record-breaking high temperatures prevailed in the droughty Eastern sections of the belt, the drought in much of Texas was still unrelieved, while high temperatures, excessive sunshine and hot winds were trying on the plant in the northwestern portions of the belt.

"In Texas, conditions are practically unchanged, with fair to very good progress in the western half and locally in the northeast, but poor elsewhere; picking and ginning made rapid progress. In Oklahoma deterioration was reported because of hot winds and the absence of rainfall, with plants wilting and shedding in many sections, and leaf and boll worms active in the southeast and eastern portions; the condition of the crop in this State ranges from poor to excellent. It was also unfavorable in West Central Arkansas, but elsewhere progress was fair to excellent. Bolls opened rapidly in Louisiana, with picking considerably ahead of an average season.

Cotton Deterioration Noted.

"Late crops need rain in Mississippi, and progress was mostly poor in Alabama, with reports of deterioration in many places and premature opening. In Tennessee, progress and condition continued generally very good in most of the west, but less favorable in the eastern portions, where moisture is needed. There was further serious deterioration in Central and Northern Georgia, with much premature opening, while blooming has practically ceased in South Carolina with the drought unrelieved in the central, western and northern portions. Cotton continued very good in Central and Eastern North Carolina, and mostly good growth was reported from Virginia. The weather was generally favorable for picking and ginning, which made rapid progress.

"The weather, in general, was favorable for corn in much of the greater portion of the principal producing areas, although it was too hot and dry in the Southwest. The crop showed improvement in Nebraska and considerable sections of South Dakota were benefited by rains, although others were still too dry. Some improvement was reported also from Kansas, with the crop in excellent condition in the northeastern portions of the State. In Iowa corn made fair advancement, with the state of development near normal and about three weeks earlier than last year, although deterioration continued in the northwestern portions and some of the more northern counties. It was too dry in Central-Northern States.

Where Corn Was Helped.

"Condition of corn continued very good to excellent in most of Missouri and also in the States bordering on the north and of the Ohio River except in a few local areas, while good development was maintained in the Middle and North Atlantic States. It was too dry for late corn from Southern Kentucky and North Carolina southward and also in much of the West Gulf area, although the condition of the crop is good in Louisiana. Corn, in general and in contrast to last year, shows a normal or earlier seasonal development, with reports indicating that the bulk of the crop, with normal weather, will be safe from frost in Missouri by Sept. 20, and much of it will mature in Indiana by that date; some is reported as already safe from frost in the northern great plains.

"Harvesting of small grains is well along in New York, Wyoming and Idaho, nearly completed in North Dakota and is finishing elsewhere. Threshing has been completed in the majority of the States and is making rapid progress in the remainder. North Dakota yields are better than expected, and Idaho and Utah report good results. Fall plowing is making good progress with mostly favorable soil moisture in the Central Valley States, and it is practically finished in Nebraska and Kansas, but is delayed because of dry soil in Minnesota, North Dakota and Oklahoma. Winter wheat seeding has begun in Kansas and Montana."

Southern Roads Ask Ship Extension.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Illinois Central and Central of Georgia Railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to extend the service of their subsidiary company, the Ocean Steamship Company, by establishing a water line between Savannah, Ga., and Miami, Fla. Such a service, the application set forth, would supplement the company's existing lines and would not increase competition between the rail lines and the steamship service.

MIDDLE WEST SEES WEALTH IN THE CROPS

Optimistic Reports From Most Districts as to Volume of Yields and the Gain of It.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26 (AP).—Reports from agriculture throughout the Middle West today indicate bumper crops in several sections, and all heard from reported better prices for farm products.

Statistics compiled by the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis stated that, while three years ago a given quantity of farm products, when exchanged for industrial goods, was worth only 63 per cent. of its 1923 exchange value, now its worth was 97 per cent. William McMartin, Chairman of the Board of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, said there is increased purchasing power in the country, due to large crops and higher prices.

Optimistic reports on crop conditions in Michigan were made by Verne H. Church, Federal statistician, and L. Whitney Watkins, State Agricultural Commissioner. Corn was rated at 85 per cent., potatoes normal, beans 82 per cent. and sugar beets 83. An apple crop of 8,356,000 bushels was predicted. The peach crop was short.

C. J. West, State Federal agricultural statistician, said there is not an important crop failure in Ohio. A bumper corn crop in Southern Ohio was predicted by J. G. Stock of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Everett C. Brown, President of the Chicago Livestock Exchange, after a three weeks' trip in the Western farming country, said this year's corn crop was the biggest ever raised.

Better crops than for years, in quality and quantity, were reported for Wisconsin, and in Minnesota both grain and livestock marketing showed increases over a year ago.

A bumper crop of small grain and corn production above the average were predicted in Iowa. Charles D. Reed, director of the Iowa Weather and Crop Reporting Service, predicted a crop average of 40.8 bushels per acre with an increase in production of about 145,000,000 bushels over last year, or a total of almost 450,000,000 bushels.

In Nebraska, statisticians said there was a possibility for exceeding last year's corn crop of 23,000,000 bushels.

Although Kansas harvested one of its smallest wheat crops, about 86,000,000 bushels, better prices were expected to compensate partly. Corn was estimated a little over 100,000,000 bushels. J. C. Mohler, Secretary of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, said the Kansas livestock industry is sounder than at any time since 1921.

J. W. Jater, Vice President of the First National Bank of Oklahoma City, said: "The cotton crop (this season) may reach the unprecedented total of 2,000,000 bales."

A joint report by Illinois and Federal Departments of Agriculture rated the State agricultural situation as fairly strong and the best since 1920.

Agricultural and livestock conditions were reported fair in South Dakota, while authorities at Bismarck said that conditions generally were at least average good in North Dakota.

American Machine's Profits Grow.

Net profits of $288,188 were reported yesterday by the American Machine and Foundry Company for the half-year ended June 30, 1925, after all expenses and reserves for depreciation, interest and taxes. This is equal to $4.77 a share earned on the 60,000 shares of capital stock outstanding. In the first half of 1924 profits were $23,000, equal to 40 cents a share on the capital stock.

GLASS DIVIDEND SUSPENDED

Payments for Loew's, Kentucky Public Service Gas, American Public Service and Federal Truck.

Directors of the Air Reduction Company announced yesterday the declaration of an extra dividend of $1 a share on the capital stock, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1 a share. Both dividends are payable Oct. 15 to stockholders of record Dec. 30. The company issued a statement in which it said the extra dividend was declared "in view of the net earnings realized in the last twelve months and the company's present strong cash position."

The International Silver Company announced the declaration of an extra dividend of one-fourth of 1 per cent. on the preferred stock, to be credited to back dividends due on this issue. In addition the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared on the preferred shares. Both dividends are payable Oct. 1.

Dividends were suspended yesterday on the preferred stock of the Standard Plate Glass Company, on which payments at the rate of 1¾ per cent. quarterly had been made up to the present time. The company recently passed the quarterly dividend on its common stock. The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent., however, was declared on the 7 per cent. prior preferred stock, payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 19. Dividend payments were suspended because of the unsettled condition of the plate glass industry and the lower prices prevailing.

Loew's, Inc., announced the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the capital stock, payable Sept. 30 to stockholders of record Sept. 12.

The Public Service Gas Company of Kentucky declared an initial dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock, payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 31.

The American Public Service Corporation declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 15.

The regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. was also declared on the capital stock of the Federal Motor Truck Company, payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 19.

RUBBER MARKET STEADIER.

Ribbed Smoked Sheets Gain 3 Cents, Other Grades 2 to 4 Cents.

There was a moderate recovery yesterday in the prices of crude rubber, and the market showed greater steadiness than on any previous day this week. Spot ribbed smoked sheets advanced 3 cents a pound to 36 cents, and other leading grades gained from 2 to 4 cents. Quotations were as follows:

FEW FIELDS SHOW RISES

Production of crude oil increased 3,100 barrels daily last week, according to figures compiled by the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production last week aggregated 2,120,850 barrels, against 2,117,750 barrels reported in the previous week, and 2,037,700 barrels in the corresponding week last year. The increased production was due almost entirely to the larger output reported in Kansas, Oklahoma, Montana, the Eastern fields and West Central Texas. Most other districts, including California, and the Gulf Coast regions reported smaller output.

Kansas	110,900	108,700	82,750
E. Central Texas	91,250	88,150	110,150
W. Central Texas	77,350	77,000	71,050
Arkansas	253,700	256,200	140,350
Gulf Coast	93,400	97,850	74,800
Southwest Texas	45,350	46,350	45,050
Eastern	106,500	105,300	107,500
Wyoming	85,150	86,700	100,150
Montana	15,000	12,500	8,550
Colorado	4,850	4,650	2,000
New Mexico	3,950	3,850	.....
California	872,900	874,500	612,700

California production was 872,500 barrels, compared with 874,500 barrels for the preceding week, a decrease of 2,000. Santa Fe Springs is reported at 52,500 barrels, against 53,000; Long Beach, 101,000 barrels, against 104,000; Huntington Beach, 44,000 barrels, against 43,500; Torrance, 34,000 barrels, no change; Dominguez, 28,500 barrels, no change; Rosecrans, 27,500 barrels, against 21,500 barrels; Inglewood, 106,000 barrels, against 107,000.

The estimated daily average gross production of the Mid-Continent field including Oklahoma, Kansas, North, East Central and West Central Texas, North Louisiana and Arkansas was 1,095,000 barrels, compared with 1,067,150 barrels for the preceding week, an increase of 27,850 barrels. The Mid-Continent production, excluding Smackover, Ark., heavy oil, was 926,700 barrels, against 890,100 barrels, an increase of 9,600 barrels.

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 26 (AP).—Reductions of from 11 to 37 cents a barrel on Oklahoma and Kansas crude oil were posted by the Magnolia Petroleum Company here today.

PIG IRON UP $1 IN DETROIT.

General Electric Reported in Deal for 5,000 Tons.

The price of pig iron was advanced $1 a ton in Detroit Tuesday, according to advices received in local trade circles yesterday. It was also reported that the General Electric Company had just contracted to purchase 5,000 tons of foundry pig iron, this being one of the largest individual contracts closed in recent weeks. The Pennsylvania Railroad is also credited with having contracted for several thousand tons, and the Fairbanks Scale Company is in the market for 2,000 tons. Most of these orders were placed in the Central West, and inquiries in the local market are reported as small.

Increased activity is reported, however, and it is stated that two large New England consumers are in the market for prices on 20,000 tons of pig iron for delivery over the remaining months of the year. It is reported that there have been several large orders for basic iron placed within the last few weeks, and one trade authority puts the aggregate of these orders at 50,000 tons.

PRICE LEVEL LOWER IN IRON AND STEEL

AUGUST BOOKINGS INCREASE

Agricultural Prosperity Is Reflected in Better Demand for Wire Products.

The reviews of the iron and steel trade issued yesterday are generally optimistic in tone, despite the fact that the recent severe competition has weakened prices in a few lines.

In summing up the situation in the industry, the Iron Trade Review says:

"While new business in steel was liberal and kept August bookings well ahead of July, quotations in a number of finished lines show a reactionary tendency under the force of keen competition, with the common level of prices lower than for several weeks. This is not an unusual phenomenon in a reviving market, especially where buying is so largely confined to requirements immediately in sight, as at present.

"More mill capacity is being called upon to fill current run orders, and beyond this some tonnage is accumulating on mill books. Some Valley sheetmakers now have four weeks' booking on hand. Steel bar bills at Chicago continue to fill up with incoming tonnage, in August more than 50 per cent. better than July. General operations are slightly above 70 per cent. of ingot capacity. The United States Steel Corporation is above the average, having reached 74 per cent. this week.

"With coal strike prospects no more reassuring, further advances of 25 cents to 50 cents on coke come this week. Tonnages of furnace coke in fourth quarter delivery were closed at $3.50 to $3.75 a ton, Connellsville ovens."

The Iron Age thus comments on the situation:

"Buying of rolled steel products, particularly bars, shows further gain in the territory of largest consumption, bounded by Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago and Cincinnati. Some Pittsburgh mills go back to November to find a week of equal bookings, while the largest producer at Chicago took 70 per cent. more bar business in the first three weeks of August than in the like period in July.

"At the same time there has been no like increase in orders for plates and shapes, which were commonly classed with bars as the heavy tonnage products. Farm implement and tractor manufacturers have led in the bar movement. Both industries are more active than at any time since 1920, implement works operating at 70 per cent. and upward.

"Agricultural prosperity is reflected also in a better demand for wire products. Contracting by jobbers is under way in the South and is spreading northward. From 50 per cent., at which it has stood for several months, wire mill output is now averaging 60 per cent. of capacity."

OUTPUT OF SLAB ZINC.

Bureau Reports on Production for Three Months.

The output of slab zinc for July for countries which in 1923 furnished 88 per cent. of the world's total and in 1894 87 per cent., was 87,780 short tons, compared with 85,261 in June, 91,264 in May and 94,876 in March, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

Notwithstanding the output of non-reporting countries in July at 13,000 tons and at 12,700 in June, the American Bureau places the world's output in July at 100,800 tons, compared with 98,000 in June, 104,000 in May and 109,100 in March, the peak of the year. The average monthly output of reporting countries this year is 89,599 tons, compared with 79,575 for the full year 1924 and 77,877 for 1923.

Live Stock Markets at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Country loadings of hogs have been curtailed as the result of the recent sharp decline in prices. With more competition for the offerings, values were 10 to 25 cents higher today. The top was $13.80 while the day's average moved up 25 cents to $11.80. The finish was about the best of the season, with the carry-over estimated at 10,000. Receipts of 12,000 today were the second smallest mid-week run of the year. The bulk of the 185-210 pound averages sold at $12.65 to $13.25 with 225-300 pound butchers at $12.25 to $13, and packing sows at $10.60 to $10.90. Fat lambs were strong to 25 cents higher with a top of $15 on rangers, while natives brought as high as $14.75. The bulk of the fat lambs brought $14 to $14.90. Sheep were steady. Receipts were 17,000. Fat steers sold up to $16.10, equalling the best figure of the season. Few were offered. Short fed steers and western grass cattle were in liberal supply, with the market steady to weak. Most grassers sold at $7 to $7.75. Receipts were 9,000.

COTTON RESUMES DOWNWARD TREND

Recovery of Quarter of Cent Is Followed by Drop to New Low Ground.

WEATHER LESS FAVORABLE

After a quarter of a cent recovery, the cotton market resumed its downward movement and sold in new low territory yesterday. Pressure from Southern sources against the moving crop and from speculative quarters carried December from 23.40 to 23.02, with closing quotations the lowest of the session at a net loss of 18 to 24 points. Room traders were inclined to cover on dry weather in the South and less favorable crop accounts from various sections, but buying fell off on the rally, while hedging operations increased in volume. In Texas thirty-four stations reported moisture ranging from showers to over an inch at three points. For the first time in weeks temperatures failed to reach 100 degrees in any part of the belt.

The weekly weather report stated that weather was less favorable than in recent weeks. Some record-breaking temperatures prevailed in droughty Eastern sections, while high temperatures, excessive sunshine and hot winds were trying on the plant in northwestern sections of the belt. In Oklahoma the deterioration was reported because of hot winds. In Mississippi late cotton needs rain and progress was mostly poor in Alabama. In Tennessee progress was good in the West, but less favorable in the East. Further serious deterioration occurred in Central and North Georgia, while blooming has practically ceased in South Carolina. The most favorable report of any State was that for North Carolina, where cotton continued to make good progress. Throughout the belt weather was generally favorable for picking and ginning, which made rapid progress.

As very little change occurred in foreign prices and early hedging operations were on a considerably reduced scale when compared with opening selling of the previous day, covering absorbed contracts the first hour. This held quotations not far from previous closing levels, and when the weekly report reflected less favorable progress in more distant dates a rally of a quarter of a cent developed. From 23.15 December recovered to 23.40, but, as the rise failed to attract outside buying and brought in a steady stream of small hedging orders for Southern account, a slow downward movement followed. Action of the market in quieting down on advances encouraged heavier speculative selling during the afternoon, which carried the list to lowest prices of the week. Though each point decline found an accumulation of trade buying orders, pressure the last hour filled all demand until the quantity of December wanted around 23 cents arrested the downward movement in final trading.

Transactions at Southern markets aggregated 22,000 bales, at a general decline of 17 to 23 points.

A further sharp reaction in grain products was again the outstanding feature in the local cash commodity markets yesterday. Wheat dropped 3 cents a bushel, corn 4¼ cents, rye 4 cents and oats 1 cent. Flour declined 15 cents a barrel, following the break in wheat. All of the non-ferrous metals were lower and spot cotton dropped twenty points.

WHEAT AT CHICAGO IN NEW DOWN TURN

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Liquidation by scattered longs in wheat which has been hanging over the market for several days set in today and resulted in a sharp break, with September touching $1.58 and December $1.58, the latter equaling the low of last week and the finish was about the bottom with net losses of 1⅝ to 2⅜ cents, the September-December spread narrowing to ⅛ cent at the last.

Support came largely from shorts and from houses with Eastern connections, which were recently aggressive sellers at higher figures, while a local operator who is in New York was credited with increasing a short line.

At the low point today wheat was off 5½ to 7⅝ cents from high of last week with corn down 6½ to 13¼ cents, the latter on the September, and it was the gossip of the trade that J. A. Patten, who has been the largest holder of September corn, had sold out.

Commission houses have for some time past been advocating the purchase of wheat on all dips, and the bulk of the support has come from smaller traders, but they have been unable to make much headway although the declines have been checked. Eastern shorts in wheat were credited with buying freely on the break.

When December was around $1.60 recently there was considerable buying by smaller traders. At the low today 5 cents of their margins had been wiped out, and it is expected that a further decline will result in heavy margin calls being sent out to the country.

Mills are understood to be carrying considerable cash wheat unhedged. The decline in futures brought in a renewal of the seaboard demand for hard winters, but no sales were reported. The 500,000 bushels Duluth No. 2 Northern reported bought to come here was for the account of the Armour Grain Company, and attention was called to the fact that this grade is deliverable on contracts for future delivery.

Winnipeg showed more strength than Chicago and was off only 1⅝ to 1⅞ cents for the day, while Minneapolis September declined only 1¼ cents and was 1¾ cents under Chicago at the close.

Primary arrivals today were 1,483,000 bushels, week ago 1,943,000, last year 3,268,000. Shipments were 999,000 bushels, week ago 710,000, last year 1,801,000.

All deliveries of corn and oats sold at a new low on the crop, with net losses of 3½ cents to 4½ cents on corn and ½ to ⅝ cents on oats, the latter breaking in sympathy with corn. Practically all the corn and oats held at the last by scattered bulls showed losses.

Primary arrivals of corn today were 910,000 bushels, week ago 863,000, last year 1,017,000, and shipments, 343,000 bushels, week ago 507,000, last year 348,000.

Rye closed 3⅝ to 4¾ cents lower, with September leading, the latter being affected by the purchase of 300,000 bushels at Duluth to come here by a leading cash house.

Charles S. Ruffner is the President of the corporation, whose executive offices will be located at 124 State Street, Albany, N. Y.

One of the largest machinery orders since the war has been placed by the Hudson Motor Car Company of Detroit with E. W. Bliss & Co., Brooklyn. The order will involve an outlay of more than $1,000,000 for 350 metal presses of various types.

Flint Elects Two Officers.

The directors of the Flint Motor Company elected R. H. Mulch of Toronto Vice President and General Manager and C. O. Miniger of Toledo, Chairman of the Executive Committee, yesterday.

Expect Spurt in Dress Cottons.

A fair amount of business is being done in the new lines of wash goods. The novelty patterns predominate and the use of rayon is a feature in them. The mills expect a considerably improved demand next month. For the Fall the greater consumption of these goods is for children's frocks, and a substantial reorder business both from jobbers and cutter-up is counted on. Some of these lines are being offered for Spring delivery. In the buying for that season the Pacific Coast jobbers have been active, but there is little demand as yet from the Southern wholesalers and the big department stores.

RAILWAY MERGER RUMORED.

Western Maryland and Traction Line May Figure in Sale.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 26.—Merger of the Western Maryland Railway and the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad, and the sale of the combined properties to the New York Central system is contemplated, according to reports current here.

The story is to the effect that the Aldred interests are engineering the deal. Furthermore, it is said, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in view of the New York Central's friendly attitude toward its absorption of the Philadelphia & Reading, would not oppose such a combination.

It would not seem difficult, say those who have studied the situation, to turn the Western Maryland and the W., B. & A. over to the New York Central, in view of the reported assent of the Aldred interests. The Western Maryland is controlled by the Rockefellers, who also are large holders of New York Central stock.

Buying of W., B. & A. common and preferred stocks is persistent. It has been in progress for many weeks. It reports be true practically all the stock changing hands in the local market is being acquired for account of Aldred & Co. Mr. Aldred is now in Europe, but is expected home within two weeks.

Father of Judge Wills Greater Part to Son and Daughter.

Frederick W. H. Crane, father of Judge Frederick E. Crane, associate member of the Court of Appeals in Albany, left a net estate of $89,542 according to an appraisal filed yesterday with surrogate George A. Wingate in Brooklyn.

The property consists of $5,450 in real estate; $5,671 in cash; $1,061 personal; $5,016 insurance; stocks and bonds, $80,541, or a gross total of $106,739.

Mrs. Elizabeth Garvin, wife of Federal Judge Edwin L. Garvin of Brooklyn, receives the house at 146 Halsey Street, which has been her residence for many years and which was the property of the late Mr. Crane, Mrs. Garvin's father. In addition, Mrs. Garvin receives one half of the residuary estate, valued at $46,473. Federal Judge Frederick E. Crane receives an equal share. Judges Crane and Garvin are both named as executors. Judge Crane lives at 78 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn.

OPPOSES BEACH SPEEDWAY.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 26.—The toastmaster at the annual dinner of the Ocean Grove Ushers' Association read a letter tonight from former Governor Edward C. Stokes, supporting the fight by the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association against having Ocean Avenue, the coast boulevard, run through Ocean Grove. Mr. Stokes's letter said in part:

"Automobile traffic congestion in Asbury Park overshadows Fifth Avenue and Broadway in New York City. Continuance of this avenue is a suicidal policy from every point of view."

Balbriggan Garments Hold Favor.

The demand for balbriggan garments continues a feature of the buying of knitted outerwear. Most factors engaged in their production are of the opinion that this vogue will last through the Fall and into next Spring. Coat sweaters and varied wool and worsted novelties are taking well. The demand for rayon merchandise, however, is still somewhat slower than was anticipated. This condition is considered temporary, and reflects the quantity of stocks which have been available. The trade generally is now giving greater attention to special sizes in outerwear for juniors. Dresses, particularly, are being offered for which entirely individual patterns have been made.

Raw Silk Situation.

Little change is reported in the raw silk markets during the first half of the week, that in Japan continuing very firm and active, while business in this city, although steady, is mostly for early delivery, according to E. Gerli & Co., Inc. Some business in Canton silks during the last few days has been reported. Offers are now coming from Shanghai and Hongkong, and shipments are slowly being resumed. The Chinese situation is still regarded as difficult, but symptoms of improvement are noted. China steam filatures and Italian silks remain on a higher level than Japan silks. Domestic consumption continues large. Prices quoted on the leading Japan varieties are $6.95 for Grand XX and $6.80 for Crack XX. China steam filatures are quoted at $7.40 for the highest grade and $7 for the Three Dangore variety. Canton is on the basis of $6.15 for 14-16 and $5.65 for 20-22. Italian silk, exquis variety, is quoted at $7.40.

Styles in Men's Pajamas.

Novelties continue to lead in men's pajamas, high colored charmeuse in flowered effects being illustrative of the type of merchandise now in demand. Among the novelties which are selling well is the sleep coat, which is provided with buttons, but in other respects is a modern version of the old-fashioned nightgown, since the pants are missing. A demand is also noted for pajamas with longer coats, so that the garment may be used for lounging purposes. There is also quite a call for buttonless pajamas, the coats of which are of the slip-on variety. The adding of collars to many models and the popularity of fancy broadcloth materials also illustrate the trend toward novelties. Cotton flannels are doing well.

Repps Lead Cloth Fabrics.

Increasing confidence in the purchase of worsteds and woolens for the Fall requirements of the garment industry has been noticed during the last ten days. The demand is said to have centered upon the repps to a great extent, hitherto upon the sheen twills, which hitherto have been fashionable. A feature of the demand for repps has been the purchase of plain varieties by jobbers and cutters-up and the decoration of these with many designs of embroidery. This procedure gives the purchaser the advantage of possessing exclusive patterns, as well as giving him a sizable price advantage in many cases, since the cost of the staple cloth plus the embroidery charges is said to be less than the price of the finished product when sold as a fancy fabric by the mill. Aside from the demand for repps an active call has sprung up for the jersey cloths and balbriggans. One large mill reports that it is sold up on these fabrics until Oct. 1.

New Ensemble Underwear Set.

In line with the progressive simplification of women's under apparel is a new ensemble outfit, combining four garments in one, which is offered by a local manufacturer. Designed primarily for youthful figures in sizes ranging from 32 to 40, the garment combines brassiere, undervest, girdle, garters and panties. No other undergarment is necessary. Among the advantages claimed for the article are the time saved in slipping it on and off and the freedom from ridges and bulges which are unavoidable when several separate garments overlap. The outfit hooks on the side and is made of soft materials which are washable and yet which are said to give ample support. Made in a variety of styles, among which is the adjustable brassiere type, the outfit will retail from $10 to $25.

House Furnishing Stocks Low.

Buyers of kitchen and house furnishings who have been visiting the market in large numbers during recent weeks have been reflecting the bareness of their stocks by their insistence upon quick deliveries of orders. In the face of so many unexpected requests for prompt shipment manufacturers have been compelled to warn of probable delays in delivery. Another result has been a moderate stiffening of prices. Sales of aluminum ware are said to be increasing at the expense of the enameled variety. Among novelties being offered in the aluminum ware is a two or three cup electric percolator intended for use in small apartments. An active response from buyers is reported on the novelty, which will retail from $4.50 to $5.

Gray Goods Trading Was Small.

With raw cotton prices again declining, buyers found little incentive to trade actively in gray goods yesterday. There were a number of small transactions in print cloths. Among them was a sale of 38½-inch 64-60s at 9¼ cents, although it was reported that 9⅝ cents could be "done" in the afternoon. Eight cents was paid for 38½-inch 60-48s for near by delivery. Small business was done in 39-inch 68-72s at 10¼ cents for quick goods and in 38½ 44-40, 8.20s at 6¼ cents. The transactions in sheetings included a sale of 36-inch 5.50s at 7⅝ cents, although first hands generally quoted an eighth cent higher. It was reported that 40-inch 2.85s sold at 12½ cents during the day, but in most instances the asking price for this construction was 12⅝ to 12¾ cents. Thirty-seven-inch 3.50 drills sold at 10¾ cents, with 10¼ cents paid for small lots of 3.05s. Sateens and pajama checks were featureless.

Novelties Taking in Bed Sheets.

While the use of colored sheets and pillow cases has not attained an extremely wide vogue, there is considerable interest in these novelty pastel bed accessories, according to a well known sheeting firm here. The sheets are 90 inches wide and are available in pink, blue and orchid, with pillow cases to match. The goods are sold in single pairs or in sets. The sheets wholesale at $12.50 per pair, and hemstitched pillow cases at $2.75 per pair. Fine imported cotton is used in their manufacture. This firm also reports a good sale for white sheets and pillow cases in a large variety of patterns. These are active holiday items and are priced from $10 per dozen to $4 per dozen, wholesale.

Burlap Prices Hold Firm.

The market in burlaps continues quiet. Purchasers are temporarily averse to trading and actual transactions are very small. Prices, however, are being firmly held and, coupled with the lack of sizable stocks, there is basis for believing that stability has been reached, with a possible future upward trend. Prices of spot and end-of-year deliveries of "lightweights" show very little difference. The latter is greater in the case of the 10½-ounce goods for the same periods. The following prices of spot and future deliveries of burlaps were quoted yesterday by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc.:

SENATORS TO HASTEN TAX BILL'S PASSAGE

PLANS CLOSE COOPERATION

Ways and Means Chairman Hopes to Send Measure to Senate by the Holidays.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Members of the Senate Finance Committee will adopt a new policy this Winter in considering the revenue and tax bill. Instead of proceeding with their own hearings without regard to what has been done by the House Ways and Means Committee, they will follow the House hearing in detail, so as to avoid duplication and useless effort.

Heretofore the Finance and Ways and Means Committees have acted independently of each other, and cooperation has been seriously impaired by respective jealousies. The Finance Committee, which holds its hearings after the bill has left the house and reached the Senate, has paid little attention to what has gone before, with the result that there have been all sorts of duplications.

To a large extent the independent course of the Senate Committee has been stimulated by the fact that the house rigidly guards its right to initiate all financial legislation. The Senators have not relished this attitude of the Representatives but, being bound by the Constitution to respect it, their only retaliation has been to ignore the work of the Ways and Means Committee when the chance offered.

This Winter the situation will be changed. If too busy on the Senate floor to attend the House hearings the Finance Committee members will digest the stenographic testimony of the House hearings and will discuss it in committee meetings.

It is believed here that the new scheme grows out of some suggestion from the White House that all Republicans in Congress should cooperate to speed the tax bill on its way. President Coolidge is credited with realizing that the country looks forward to seeing the bill passed in time to be effective when the March income tax payments are due, and those in touch with him say he will use all his efforts to that end.

Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee hopes to have the House pass the bill by the holidays. He plans to have his committee assemble for hearings about Oct. 19. The Finance Committee purposes to hold meetings of its own in November.

FINED UNDER LABOR LAW.

Admitting violation of the State labor laws covering the paying of salaries in check form, David Schwartz, Secretary of the King Auto Supply Company, Inc., 544 East 171st Street, the Bronx, was fined $20 yesterday by Magistrate Bernard Douras in Bronx Municipal Term Court.

The only condition under which checks may be issued for salaries, the Magistrate ruled, is when employes may cash them near the place of employment. Schwartz was prosecuted by Miss Reba Swain, Assistant Deputy Attorney General, in charge of prosecution of State labor law violations. Miss Swain said Schwartz had been warned last June. He said an office oversight caused the continued violation.

SMITH JOKE GEOMETRICAL.

Applies Principles to Hutchinson Statement on Grade Crossings.

ALBANY, Aug. 26 (AP).—Governor Smith paid a facetious tribute today to Assemblyman Eberly Hutchinson of the Fulton-Hamilton district. When told that the Assemblyman stated yesterday, in opposing the proposed $300,000,000 bond issue for grade crossing elimination, that less than ¼ of 1 per cent. of a total of 18,000 automobile accidents last year were on grade crossings, the Governor said:

ENGINEER ADMITS FLAW IN MACKINAC

BELIEVED VESSEL WAS SAFE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 26 (AP).—Chief Engineer John Grant of the ill-fated excursion steamer Mackinac, on board which a boiler exploded in Newport harbor on Aug. 16 and took a toll of fifty-one lives, disregarded the advice of his counsel at the Federal inquiry into the disaster today and declared himself ready to bear the blame with whoever is guilty with him, if by his act such catastrophies might hereafter be avoided.

"The responsibility must be placed on somebody," he said. "I am satisfied to go through. Whatever happens to me, I won't stretch the truth. Ask your questions."

Grant's statement came at the end of repeated clashes between his counsel and William R. Snyder, legal assistant to Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who is presiding at the hearing. His counsel urged Grant to stand on his constitutional rights and refuse to incriminate himself.

Grant said that on the morning of Aug. 18 he found pinholes in the drum, which later exploded, and called workmen to make repairs. They could not make them, he said, because of the moisture, and, believing the boiler to be safe, he decided to make the trip under reduced pressure.

George J. Kelley, general manager of the company operating the Mackinac, was sworn as a witness and refused to answer questions. Captain George W. McVay of the Mackinac denied that Kelley had ordered him to sail or that Grant had told him repairs to the boiler had not been made.

The hearing was adjourned this afternoon until Second Engineer George Mullen, now recovering from burns in a hospital, could be examined or additional witnesses be summoned.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 26 (AP).—The death toll of the boiler explosion on the excursion steamer Mackinac in Newport Harbor on Aug. 18, reached fifty-two, when James McCarthy of Central Falls, R. I., died of burns tonight. His wife and three children died several days ago.

A body believed to be that of Alfred Fawcett of Pawtucket, a Mackinac passenger missing since the disaster, was picked up near the scene by a boatman earlier this evening.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—The American Red Cross today sent $1,000 to its Pawtucket-Central Falls Chapter for use in relief work for victims of the Mackinac disaster.

James L. Fieser, National Vice Chairman, said both the Newport and Pawtucket-Central Falls Chapters have the full financial backing of the national organization in the relief work.

PEACE PROPOSAL MAY END GARMENT ROW

Union Officers and Those Ousted as Reds Agree to Meet and Discuss Differences.

There were indications yesterday of the dawn of peace in the fight between the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and the Joint Committee of Action, made up of the officers of Locals 2, 9 and 22 who were ousted from office because of alleged communistic activities. The leaders on both sides, it was said, have signified their willingness to meet at a conference to be arranged by The Day, a Jewish newspaper.

The expelled officers of the three locals, who still retain their union membership, have been making a fight for their reinstatement and to depose Morris Sigman, the President of the International.

The Day suggested as a compromise that the present officers of the union continue in office until the next convention, and that the question of the ousted officers of the three locals be decided by a new ballot. It is also proposed that all other points at issue be left to the decision of the proposed conference. Both sides are reported ready to meet, and that meeting is now being arranged.

CANADAY SEES INJUSTICE.

Says Gov. Ferguson's Denial of Extradition Was Sentimental.

Roscoe Canaday, commenting last night on the refusal of Governor Ferguson of Texas to permit the extradition of Mrs. Canaday to face an indictment in Queens County on a charge of kidnapping her son, Roscoe Jr., from the Canaday home in Forest Hills, Queens, a few weeks ago, characterized the action of the woman Governor as "unjust" and "merely a matter of sentiment."

When asked what action he intended to take to bring about his wife's return to the jurisdiction of the Queens courts, Mr. Canaday replied that he was awaiting word from J. R. McDonald, his attorney, who is now in Austin, and from whom he said he expected to hear today.

Mrs. Canaday is living in San Antonio, Texas. Governor Alfred E. Smith recently requested Governor Ferguson to sign extradition papers to return Mrs. Canaday to New York, but the Texas Governor, who has several children, refused on the ground that "one mother should stand by another."

FOUR FALL WITH ELEVATOR.

All Unhurt, but Police Are Called Out to Calm Onlookers.

Excitement caused by the three-story plunge of an elevator with four passengers in the Hotel Somerset, 150 West Forty-seventh Street, brought out police reserves yesterday afternoon to quiet several hundred guests and pedestrians in the street who thought a serious accident had occurred.

The police opened the door of the cab, which was lodged between the main floor and the basement, and found two men, a woman guest and the elevator operator in a heap on the car floor, but uninjured except for shocks.

Garfield Yates, the operator, had picked up Walter Law, a vaudeville actor, and William McKenzie, a salesman, and an unidentified woman on upper floors of the hotel. The car then descended to the third floor. A cable suddenly snapped and caused the plunge. The car fell two stories before the emergency brakes took hold.

FAITHFUL EMPLOYES GET NEWSPAPER STAND

After Fifty Years Leopold Jonas, Who Served Two Presidents, Gives Business Away.

Leopold Jonas, who has served the public with newspapers and periodicals for fifty years, announced yesterday that he and his partner, Abraham Klaronmeyer, were making a gift to two faithful employes of their stand in the Woolworth Building. Mr. Jonas and his partner will keep their hold on the other activities of L. Jonas & Co.

The two employes who will receive the stand are Samuel Decker and Patrick Pierce. They have served under Mr. Jonas for twenty-eight years and began their work by crying extras in front of the famous old Astor House. The pair will operate the business under Mr. Jonas's policies.

Mr. Jonas started his business in 1875 in the lobby of the Astor House. He served Presidents Grant and Arthur with newspapers. When the Astor House was replaced by a modern office structure he moved his stand to the Woolworth Building and added a back number service. Later he and his partner branched out into bookselling and opened a theatre ticket office.

ROBBERS SEIZE TRUCK AND ABDUCT DRIVER

The driver of the last of a line of a convoy of six trucks bound from New York to Philadelphia with loads of merchandise was held up in Newark on the Lincoln Highway near Blanchard Street, Newark, last night. He was taken away by four of the robbers in their automobile, while the fifth drove off with the truck, which contained merchandise valued at about $5,000. The driver was set free an hour later on the outskirts of Newark.

The driver was Harry Barney of 809 West Norris Street, Philadelphia. He was employed by the E. and S. Motor transportation Company of Philadelphia which had an office at 203 Hudson Street, Manhattan. He told the police that he lagged a short distance behind the other trucks and that the automobile carrying the five men drove in front of his truck and forced him to stop. One of the robbers produced a pistol and forced him to get into the automobile, he said.

The Newark police sent out a general alarm to nearby communities to be on the watch for the truck and the robbers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 26.—At today's session of the Opium Advisory Commission of the League of Nations Sir John Jordan of the Committee of Assessors, and one of the world's foremost experts on opium, said that in his estimation the efforts made by the recent conference to suppress the smoking of opium had been unsuccessful. Sir John declared that conditions in China today were deplorable and it was the duty of all States to do everything in their power to kill the contraband trade.

China, he said, has made the most praiseworthy efforts in the past twelve years to stamp out the opium evil, but today not only were Chinese officials cultivating opium but huge quantities of the drug were smuggled into the country from all sides.

On the question of propaganda against the opium, the commission decided to support the opinion of the League Health Commission that such propaganda might incite natives to experiment with drugs.

The American-Canadian treaty for the extradition of opium smugglers will be called to the attention of various Governments with the idea of similar measures to be concluded between other nations in an effort to stamp out the drug evil.

DWARFS COMING IN SCORES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—The Philadelphia Sesquicentennial Exposition in 1926 is assured of the largest collection of dwarfs ever assembled, according to Asher Carter Baker, Commissioner General from the United States in Europe for the exposition.

When he advertised for midgets more than a hundred answered the call and noisily attempted to explain why they should be chosen for an American engagement. Deep bass voices vied with high trebles in cheers when he explained that all of them and more were needed. Every lilliputian promised to bring brothers, sisters and parents.

Mr. Baker is confident that the German Government will be represented, though it was at first the intention to decline the invitation on account of business depression. A proposed outline for a German exhibit includes relics of General von Steuben's examples of Dresden and other china, a history of printing and binding from Guttenberg to the present and German modern paintings. The building would be furnished in Bavarian and other characteristic German furniture.

3 HELD IN BUILDING CRASH.

BOSTON, Aug. 26 (AP).—Three new defendants, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Edith Jordan of Somerville, one of the 44 persons killed in the collapse of the Pickwick Club building on July 4, pleaded not guilty and each was held in $2,500 bail today when they were arraigned before Judge Lummus in Suffolk Superior Court.

The defendants, who were arrested on secret indictments, were Martin McKeras, City of Boston Concrete Inspector, Linton Hart, Vice President of the Charles R. Gow Construction Company, and Charles A. Leary, the construction firm's General Superintendent.

The Gow Company held the contract for construction work in progress adjacent to the five-story Pickwick Club building when it fell with 125 or more dancers.

Tattooed Man Held for Drug Selling.

Tattooed from head to toe and said to have performed in the sideshows or many circuses, Peter Alassio of 66 Mott Street was locked up in the West Thirtieth Street Station last night, charged with selling narcotics. Also arrested was Miss Garne Williams of 750 Eighth Avenue, to whom he was charged with having sold a quantity of heroin. She was charged with possession.

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

TWO 20-STORY LOFTS FOR SIXTH AV. SITES

Samuel Hoffman Buys Fifty-seventh St. Corner for $3,500,000 Project.

A. E. LEFCOURT TO BUILD

Sixth Avenue, which has been having a building and real estate trading boom of unprecedented proportions between Thirty-fourth and Fifty-ninth Streets, is to have two more twenty-story structures as the result of deals closed yesterday.

A $3,500,000 operation will be undertaken by Samuel Hoffman, who has just purchased for the purpose the northeast corner of Fifty-seventh Street and Sixth Avenue, a plot fronting 75 feet on the street by 125 feet on the avenue. The site was purchased under the name of the Fifty-seventh Street Development Corporation from Harry T. Galpin and Julian A. Ripley.

Upon the expiration of present leases on May 1, 1926, it is Mr. Hoffman's intention to erect upon this plot a twenty-story building with stores on the ground floor and an arcade running through to Sixth Avenue, in order that the entire ground floor can be utilized for stores.

Negotiations are pending for the leasing of the corner portion of the premises to a national bank, which is also negotiating for the entire basement of the premises for the installation of vaults. Negotiations are pending with firms for several floors of the proposed building for their business. N. J. Greene and E. D. Barrett were the brokers in the transaction.

An expenditure of $3,500,000 is involved in this enterprise. Mr. Hoffman also owns the southwest corner of Fifty-eighth Street and Sixth Avenue, which is on a plot 100 by 100 feet. Plans are now being prepared for the erection of a twenty-story apartment hotel upon this plot. Demolition of the present structure will be started Oct. 1. This proposition entails an expenditure of $2,500,000, including hotel equipment.

Mr. Hoffman is the owner of the northwest corner of Seventeenth Street and Sixth Avenue, the Alexander Building, at Nineteenth Street and Sixth Avenue; 468-490 Sixth Avenue, between Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Streets, and 470 Sixth Avenue, at Twenty-eighth Street, taking in 83 feet on Twenty-eighth Street, known as 49-55 West Twenty-eighth Street.

Lefcourt Buys Building Site.

In another twenty-story operation A. E. Lefcourt purchased from the Herschmann estate 623 to 629 Sixth Avenue, being 00 by 100 feet, just south of Thirty-seventh Street, on the west side of the avenue, which plot adjoins the Greenwich Savings Bank to the north.

To provide accommodations for the millinery trade, with permanent lights on all sides, he will erect a twenty-story building, which will be completed on or about Dec. 1, 1926, with the possibility of two more building operations. The combined projects planned by Mr. Lefcourt will cost the total amount of about $15,000,000, including the cost of land and buildings.

This makes the third building operation he has planned for 1926. The builder started work in December on the new twenty-three story Lefcourt-Manhattan Building, at the northeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street, and on Feb. 1 he started on 306 to 310 West Thirty-eighth Street.

The northeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, fronting 100 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on the street, was sold for improvement with a twenty-four story structure for the millinery trades. A twenty-four story building for the millinery trades is being erected at the northeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street. Deals are reported pending for the purchase of other large frontages in the immediate locality.

SOVIET PREPARES TO EXPORT GRAIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 26.—Despite bad weather reports from the chief grain producing sections, Soviet authorities remain optimistic about the harvest. At a session of the Moscow Soviet yesterday Scheinman, Minister of Internal Commerce, asserted the total would be, according to one estimate, 2,050,000,000 bushels and according to another 2,350,000,000. Other information puts the figure rather below the first estimate—at 1,950,000,000 bushels owing to rains—but the informants agree that finer weather will increase this materially.

At any rate, it seems certain that the plan to export some 200,000,000 bushels is realizable and Odessa reports upward of 50,000 tons already in elevators awaiting shipment.

Scheinman said he recognized the difficulty which might result from a fall in agricultural prices simultaneously with a rise in the price of manufactured goods consequent on a big demand by the peasants, but he contended the schedule for collecting and exporting grain at first would uphold the price sufficiently, while arrangements through cooperatives and State merchandising organizations for the sale of imported and home-made manufactured goods ought to meet the greater part of the demand.

Nevertheless he advocated strong measures against goods hoarding of speculation, and an appeal to urban populations to defer their purchases of manufactured goods so far as possible until after Christmas.

It is clear that strenuous efforts are being made to remove possible causes of peasant discontent. The Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party has issued a decision of considerable importance that the greater part of the timber resources of the Soviet Union be thrown open to the peasants. According to previous regulations, 50,000,000 acres of timber, under State supervision, was administered by the "State Timber Fund," whose prices the peasants found too high and whose purchase conditions were too onerous. Now upward of 10,000,000 acres are to be placed in the "Land Fund," in which the peasants are to have direct access, at much lower prices and with long-term credits.

Indian Held in Taxi Hold-Up.

Jether Crossland, 24 years old, who says he is a full-blooded Cree Indian and who lives in Tulsa, Okla., was held in $10,000 bail for the Queens Grand Jury and in $500 bail for Special Sessions by Magistrate Thomas F. Doyle in the Long Island City Police Court yesterday. He is charged with holding up Louis Sherman, a taxicab driver, near Flushing late Tuesday night.

DEVELOPER BUYS TRACT.

Eugene V. Welsh sold for the Sisters of the Sorrowful Mother, St. Francis Health Resort at Denville, N. J., ninety-nine acres of land with a lake to the Arthur D. Crane Company of Denville and Newark.

About two years ago the Crane Company purchased the property now known as Indian Lake consisting of 350 acres of land and successfully developed it as one of the most attractive Summer resorts in this section. There are about 250 cottages at Indian Lake at present and many new ones under construction.

The Crane Company also purchased about two years ago 100 acres of land between Denville and Mountain Lakes now known as Rainbow Lakes. Six individual lakes have been built on this property at different levels and many attractive Summer homes constructed.

Work on the newly purchased acreage will start almost immediately and it is expected that the development will be one of the finest in the northern section.

Commercial Leases.

The 620 Sixth Avenue, Inc., leased to Joseph Polansky for a long term period, the two four-story buildings at 620 Sixth Avenue and 66 West Thirty-seventh Street, forming an "L" around the southeast corner of Thirty-seventh Street and Sixth Avenue. Mr. Polansky is the present store tenant in 620 Sixth Avenue.

I. Arthur Fischer was the broker in the deal.

Henry Shapiro & Co., have leased to the Burnes Corporation, controlling the Nedick chain of orange drink stores, the store in the building located at the southwest corner of Thirty-first Street and Sixth Avenue. This location is directly opposite the 10,000 square foot plot recently sold for improvement with a twenty-three-story building.

After extensive alterations, Nedicks will occupy the corner portion of the store for their own business and sublet the balance. The lease is for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $150,000.

Buy to Protect Light.

For the protection of the southerly light of the thirteen-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Eighty-first Street, the owners, the 980 Park Avenue Apartments, Inc., have purchased the four-story dwelling at 71 East Eightieth Street, 20 by 82.2, abutting the apartment house. The purchase was made from Dr. Richard Hoffman last May through Pease & Elliman, title being taken in the name of J. F. Donovan, who has conveyed the property to the apartment owners.

SUBURBAN BUILDERS PLAN MORE HOUSING

PLACE NEW ROCHELLE LOAN

Negotiations were advanced yesterday on suburban properties which will be improved with housing structures, including an apartment house, a hotel and private residences.

Financing arrangements were closed yesterday and foundations will be started today for the erection of the Locust Arms Apartment Building, companion structure to Locust Court, New Rochelle. This is the second unit of Locust Park, a $2,000,000 group of garden apartments. The other units will follow in rapid succession, making Locust Park the most pretentious residential garden development so far projected in Westchester County and already shaping the country-home colony setting which the builders have planned. The second building will be ready for occupancy May 1.

Edward Reynolds, First Vice President and general manager of the Postal Telegraph Company and an extensive real estate owner in Westchester County, is President of both the Locust Court and Locust Arms building corporations. Thomas J. Steen is the builder and one of the principal stockholders in both corporations. Mr. Steen built the Pintard Apartments and Locust Court.

Other officers and stockholders of Locust Arms Apartments, Inc., are Martin J. Tierney and Dr. Frederick G. Kemple, Vice Presidents; Sidney J. Goldsmith, Secretary; Allen J. Steen, Treasurer. They are practically the same interests which control the Locust Court and Pintard Apartment buildings.

S. W. Straus & Co., who financed the Pintard and Locust Court buildings, yesterday underwrote an issue of $450,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent. sinking fund gold bonds of Locust Arms Apartments, Inc., secured by the land and the building, appraised at $680,000.

Fox Meadow Estates have sold a half-acre of land on the northeast corner of Wayside and Oak Lanes, in Fox Meadow at Scarsdale, N. Y., to George Eggert, on which he plans to erect a residence of English architecture in keeping with the residences of Leonard Schultze, the architect, whose property it adjoins.

The Estates also sold to the Theodore Stafnholt Building Corporation the southwest corner of Cohawney and Hampton Roads, being a half-acre plot, for which the buyers are having plans drawn by their architect, B. E. Stern, for a large house of Colonial design, with a two-car garage, and which they will have completed for Spring occupancy. The broker in this transaction was the Westchester Land Exchange, Inc.

They have also sold a half-acre of land on Cohawney Road to Lester Stafnholt, on which he plans to erect a residence of Spanish architecture and which he expects to have completed in the late Fall. The broker in this transaction was also the Westchester Land Exchange, Inc.

The Scarsdale Estates sold seven large wooded plots in its Greenacres development at Scarsdale, N. Y., to Casper Trumpy, a builder of White Plains. Mr. Trumpy intends to build on the property and will have some houses ready for the Fall market. The Robert E. Farley Organization were the brokers and also sold for Mr. Trumpy, to a client, a house on Elm Road, Greenacres, Scarsdale.

Stilwell & Co. sold for Adolph Munter his new Dutch Colonial stucco-shingle house on Heathcote Hill, Mamaroneck, N. Y., to Houghton R. Deane, who will occupy. The price was $15,500.

Prince & Ripley have sold for Thomas J. Case a brick Colonial house on the corner of Bolton and Grandview Avenues, White Plains, N. Y., to Mrs. H. B. Eastwood of New York. They have also leased for Mrs. Charles H. Grasser her residence on Bogart Avenue, White Plains, to Edna H. Hayne, and have leased for Miss Hookstadt her property at 99 Waller Avenue, White Plains, to Arthur Coburn for a term of years.

Buy Site at West End, N. J., for Hotel.

As a site for a hotel, Newmark, Jacobs & Newmark, builders of this city, have bought through Wardell & Burke of West End, N. J., the Edward Schafer property and the adjoining realty, which belonged to the estate of Samuel M. Schafer, Wall Street banker.

The combined properties have an Ocean Avenue frontage of 320 feet and a depth of 1,000 feet extending to a private beach. Included in the sale are two cottages.

The properties carry riparian rights and have a private fishing pier and an enclosed bathing beach. The property is located within 300 feet of the new West End Casino.

The purchase price is said to have been $175,000.

Two Big Deals in Jersey City.

Two big realty deals involving property in Jersey City valued at nearly half a million dollars, have been closed by J. I. Kislak, Inc.

In one deal the Jewris Realty Company, of which Joseph Harris and Louis J. Krieger are the principals, sold the modern apartment house at 150 Belmont Avenue, near Bergen Avenue, to the Follansbee Restaurant, Inc. The house contains twenty apartments.

The second deal turns over to Margulies & Gerstenfeld a new apartment and store building at 2,252 Boulevard, corner of Communipaw Avenue. This building has just recently been completed by Morris Bauer, and is the first Boulevard apartment property in that section of Jersey City to contain stores.

Don't Lease an Apartment!

LEASES are not required of those guests staying at Briarcliff Lodge, America's Foremost Resort Hotel. Those who rent apartments at Briarcliff Lodge are held here only by their own appreciation of the nice things in life—an attractive apartment, good food, a pleasant environment, a social atmosphere. If you, too, enjoy these things it will pay you to investigate, for an apartment, from one to twelve rooms, may be rented from November until May at a rate more attractive than staying in the city.

The commuting time to Scarborough station is only fifty minutes, a whiz of the motor and you are lost in the quiet, health-giving pine woods—far away from the strife of the city. We will be pleased to furnish you with additional details.

205 Apartment Homes

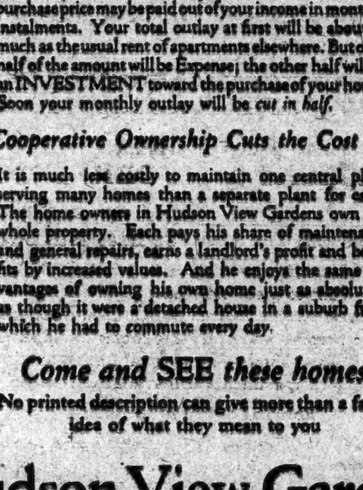
already have been bought in Hudson View Gardens



THE location is the loveliest in all Manhattan; 300 feet above the Hudson on historic Fort Washington heights. The setting is as charming as nature and landscape gardening can make it. The architecture is the quaint old Tudor, with its delightful casement windows.

Each apartment has oak parquet floors (in the kitchen tiled linoleum) a door-bed compartment for guests, and is completely fitted with modern devices such as dish-washing machines, automatic refrigeration to make housekeeping easy.

Some Choice 3-4-5 Room Apartments Still Available

$4300-$9100 for Equity—Elevator & Non-Elevator

MONTHLY MAINTENANCE EXPENSE FROM $40 to $83

Each person in search of a REAL HOME who has visited Hudson View Gardens has wished that he might live there, ALL the apartments would now be taken, were they for rent. Buying a Home requires a little capital. Not much; a moderate payment down is acceptable. And we make every effort to meet the financial requirements of desirable purchasers.

When you have taken an apartment the balance of the purchase price may be paid out of your income in monthly instalments. Your total outlay at first will be about as much as the usual rent of apartments elsewhere. But only half of the amount will be Expense; the other half will be an INVESTMENT toward the purchase of your home. Soon your monthly outlay will be cut in half.

100% Cooperative Ownership Cuts the Cost of Living

It is much less costly to maintain one central plant serving many homes than a separate plant for each. The home owners in Hudson View Gardens own the whole property. Each pays his share of maintenance and general repairs, earns a landlord's profit and benefits by increased values. And he enjoys the same advantages of owning his own home just as absolutely as though it were a detached house in a suburb from which he had to commute every day.

The Service of Expert Maids

THE spirit behind the maid service in this new residential building is that of courteous helpfulness. You may safely assume their competency; you have our assurance as to their being personable and desirous of doing your work your way.

The residents of 277 Park Ave. eliminate the servant problem the day they move in. The carefully organized Housekeeping Staff, under experienced direction, furnishes on schedule, or now and then, a competent maid at 75c to $1.00 an hour. And you will discover that she will accomplish as much in two hours as an ordinary maid does in twice the time.

We believe you would be interested in inspecting the apartments in 277 Park Ave., with their rooms looking down on "An Acre of Garden". The charm of the apartments themselves, the notably moderate rentals, and the unique service facilities, all serve to make this Park Ave. residential building attractive. We suggest a visit to 277 Park Ave.

MIAMI, FLORIDA
NORTH FULFORD

We own a tract known as North Fulford, adjoining the well-known subdivision of Fulford-by-the-Sea, consisting of 485 acres suitable for a subdivision of 3,000 lots. We purchased this tract because of its physical character for quick development as a residential and business center of the better type.

The demand for property of this character, in this vicinity, is far in excess of the properties offered (many lot resales have established prices which should net a handsome profit on this development), and because of its close proximity to Miami in the midst of the larger advanced development projects and because of its psychological position, the Seaboard Air Line Railroad will undoubtedly pass through this property and perhaps place its passenger and freight station thereon. Little acreage is available in this section.

We offer this desirable property because we are this Fall placing on the market a larger subdivision known as North Miami, consisting of 16,000 lots and located near North Fulford.

Our organization is well known through its many large realty operations and fully qualified to prepare and have North Fulford ready to sell in lots during the coming season.

500,000 visitors in Miami last Winter and 1,000,000 are expected this coming season.

The price, $8,000 per acre, is quoted to move quickly, and convenient terms may be arranged. Conference in New York by appointment for the next few days, at which time full details will be available.

Does This Prove Anything?

In the past three years our sales of Ready to Wear clothes have increased 500%. Eighty-six per cent of new customers who bought our clothes once have come back for more.

Doesn't it suggest that our efforts to adapt custom methods to Ready to Wear clothes have been successful? That it supplied a real need in the men's clothing business? That it might give you just what you have been looking for in clothes?

SWIMMING PARTIES in The SHELTON POOL—

For non-guests as well as guests of the hotel. They have already become one of the features of the city's social life. Arrangements for the accommodation of large parties should be made in advance. Single tickets, $1.50. No charge to guests before 10:30 A.M.—afterwards, a nominal fee.

THE SHELTON in the brief period of a year has altered completely the New Yorker's idea of hotel life. It is not an ordinary hotel—instead it is the atmosphere of a huge club home for both MEN and WOMEN, unlike anything in the city.

Yet living here, with all its comfort and luxury—its complete hotel service—costs no more for beautifully furnished rooms and suites than for similar sized unfurnished accommodations elsewhere in this desirable neighborhood.

Enjoy the GYMNASIUM, the SWIMMING POOL. Keep yourself fit. Play SQUASH. BOWL. Use the LIBRARY—the lounges—the roof garden—the solarium. To live at The SHELTON is to get the best there is in New York life.

OUT OF TOWN GUESTS!

Comfortable rooms and all the permanent guest privileges of the club. Single rooms, $3 to $6; double rooms, $6 to $9.
